Sit-Down Ban In Coal Bill Is Defeated By Senators

Byrnes' Clause Rejected in Passing Guffey-Vinson Measure.

Measure Already Approved in House

A. F. L. Fights C. I. O. Move to Organize Million Oil Workers.

On the Labor Front.

The Senate passed the Guffey-Vinson bill to regulate interstate commerce in bituminous coal after refusing to write public condemnation of sit-down strikes into the measure.

The American Federation of Labor, striving to offset John L. Lewis' inroads into the Nation's labor ranks, launched a counter-offensive to the C. I. O. drive to organize a million oil workers.

Sit-Down Ban Loses.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Senate yesterday by a 48 to 36 vote refused to write public condemnation of sit-down strikes into the Guffey-Vinson bill to regulate interstate commerce in bituminous coal.

A few minutes later the Senate passed the coal bill by a 58 to 15 vote. The bill previously had passed the House. The measure reenacts a modified version of the coal law invalidated last year by the Supreme Court.

Defeat of the sit-down amendment followed three days of vigorous opposition by Administration leaders, who insisted it be separated from the coal measure. One of three separate denunciatory resolutions will be called up for consideration tomorrow, confronting the Senate with a new vote on the strike issue.

Sponsored by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, the sit-down amendment declared it "the sense of Congress that the so-called sit-down strike is illegal and contrary to sound public policy."

Robinson Objects.

Although the language was general and not limited to the coal industry, Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson and others objected to its inclusion in a bill dealing exclusively with coal mining. Robinson said "if possible" a separate resolution will be considered tomorrow.

The three measures now pending are both concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions. As such, they would not require signature by the President. The Byrnes amendment, had it been adopted, would have gone to the White House with the Vinson-Guffey bill, forcing the President either to agree with the condemnation, or veto the bill.

Thus, yesterday's vote may mean that the President, who never has expressed an opinion on sit-down developments, is not to be placed in a position by Congress that will force out his views.

Rejection of the Byrnes amendment came after the South Carolina Senator early yesterday withdrew his original proposal, directed at sit-downs only in the coal industry.

Substitute Offered.

He substituted instead the broader language of a resolution offered last week by Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada. It would have added the sit-down denunciation to other declarations of labor policies in the coal bill, with one restriction —that "Congress only assumes to speak as to strikes in industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

Opponents objected that alleged "illegal" practices by industry were not mentioned, that both should be embodied in a resolution, independent of the coal bill. Byrnes joined in condemning the so-alled industrial spy system, but insisted that his sit-down amendment be included in the coal bill.

His defeat came after a half-dozen Senators took the floor to insist that their negative votes did not mean approval of sit-down strikes. Twelve Republicans joined 24 Democrats to

'Little Egypt,' Mauve Decade's Dance Sensation, Dies at 65

— MRS. FRIEDA SPYROPOULOS.

Columbian Fair's Oriental Rhythm Exponent, Who Made Grandpa Goggle-Eyed, Succumbs to Heart Attack in New York.

By the Associated Press.

Mrs. Andrew Spyropolous succumbed to a heart attack at the age of 65—44 years after she reigned as the terpsichorean toast of the 1893 World's Fair.

Then trim and 21, this daughter of far-off Damascus came to Chicago with a troupe of Syrian entertainers. She put on her number in the dim recesses of the "Streets of Cairo" concession.

While drums throbbed and flutes skirled a harem rhythm, she gathered her veils, placed a lighted candelabra on her head and swayed and swirled to the mystic music. The gentry of grandpa's day looked on, goggle-eyed, while she capped the climax by pretending to plunge a pair of gleaming knives into her full bosom. Her fame spread.

With the turn of the century, "Little Egypt"—her right name was Frieda Mahzar—gradually faded into obscurity. In 1912, she married Andrew Spyropolous. He conducts a restaurant here.

During the 1933 World's Fair, she essayed a comeback. But the competition of Sally Rand and others of the undressed era proved too much. She frankly and fervently detested such "modern dances."

Still pending in the Supreme Court of New York is her $25,000 damage suit against the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation. She complained she had been misinterpreted in the film "The Great Ziegfeld," a story of the life of Florenz Ziegfeld based in part upon his experiences as an entrepreneur who pitted Strong Man Sandow's muscles against "Little Egypt's" muscle dance in a bid for World's Fair trade.

Board's Bond Buying Plan Aids Market

Commodity Prices Rise; Corn at New Peak for 17 Years.

U. S. Securities Climb; Cotton Makes Gain; Stocks Up.

By William V. Nessly.

An upward move in commodity prices, with corn for immediate delivery touching a 17-year price peak, and a firm Government bond market yesterday marked reaction to Sunday's announcement that the Federal Reserve Open Market Committee would buy United States bonds to maintain "orderly" conditions.

Other movements, with related interest, included:

Federal Reserve System reports revealed member banks in 101 ing cities had sold $300,000,000 of direct Government obligations in the week ended last Wednesday, when United States securities were declining steadily.

Secretary Morgenthau said the Treasury would borrow new money before the fiscal year ends on June 30. He said the need for it will be shown when President Roosevelt's recasting of Government receipts and expenditures goes to Congress about April 14.

Possible resumption of common stock dividends by United States Steel Corporation in the "not very distant future" was indicated by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the corporation.

Stocks on the New York Exchange generally moved higher as United States bonds gained broadly, though profit taking in the latter issues curbed their gains.

May Corn Soars Limit.

At Chicago, May corn jumped upward the full 4 cents a bushel permitted by trading rules in one day. The May future contract rose to $1.33⅛ a bushel, a gain of almost 15 cents in eight days. Cash corn went to above $1.40 a bushel, attributed largely to reports of a possible shortage in the immediate future and indications, unofficial, of a short crop this year.

The selling of United States securities by member banks in the week ending March 31 was the heaviest such liquidation this year. The banks' holdings have declined $528,000,000 in the past three weeks, though the total on March 31, which was $8,396,000,000, was only $247,000,000 below the total for April 1 a year ago.

The heaviest selling in the week was recorded in the Chicago district, where holdings were cut $201,000,000 of the total $300,000,000 decline. The New York district's banks sold $55,000,000, the Minneapolis district $14,000,000, and the Cleveland district $11,000,000.

The banks also disposed of $6,000,000 of obligations fully guaranteed by the Government, leaving the total holdings at $1,199,000,000, a decline of $66,000,000 from a year ago.

Loans Show Increase.

Loans to commerce, agriculture and industry gained $39,000,000 to a total of $4,362,000,000. Loans on real estate went up $6,000,000 to $1,157,000,000, but loans to banks were down to $1,000,000, a drop of $11,000,000. Demand deposits decreased $210,000,000 to a total of $15,126,000,000, which was a gain of $1,548,000,000 over a year ago.

Bulls in the corn market were far ahead in paper profits last night as a result of the sensational price climb for the last week.

May corn, reaching $1.33⅛ yesterday, was 59½ cents a year ago. Yesterday's price was the highest

Police Name N. Y. Sculptor Triple Slayer

Huge Net Is Spread as Mysterious Easter Crime Is Solved.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Police closed off the city in a tremendous manhunt tonight as they flatly announced they had solved at last the bizarre triple slaying Easter Sunday morning on Beekman Hill.

The man they sought—blocking with policemen railroad terminals, bus stations, ferries, highways—is blond, chunky Robert Irwin, 29 years old, sculptor and former divinity student at St. Lawrence University, released only last summer after three years of mental treatment at the Rockland County Hospital, a State institution.

Like a bombshell in the midst of one of the greatest murder mysteries the metropolis ever has known, exploded the statement today of Chief Dtputy Police Inspector John A. Lyons:

"We are definitely hurting Robert Irwin for the triple murders of Veronica Gedeon, her mother and Frank Byrnes, their boarder. There has been no doubt in our minds since last Wednesday that he committed the crime."

Revenge Called Motive.

Revenge, police officials said, was the motive; revenge against "Ronnie" and her mother Mary for opposing his love for the elder daughter of the family, Ethel, now married to George Kudner and living in Long Island City.

The police have traced Irwin's course to the city on Good Friday from Canton, N. Y., where he was asked to leave school March 18 because of "instability."

The trail led here to a $2.50-a-week room he had taken in a house on Fifty-second street, just around the corner from the police station that has been the center of investigation.

"I wish I could tell you all the evidence that we found against Irwin in the apartment where the murders were committeed," confided a high police official today. "But it would ruin our case against him.

"We never would have sent out an eight-State alarm if we had not amassed sufficient evidence to convict Irwin of first-degree murder."

Father Cleared.

With this statement went the last question of suspicion against 54-year-old Joseph Gedeon, the estranged father who was questioned two successive days by police as sensation piled on sensation through a week of feverish investigation. Gedeon was bound over in felony court until May 5 on a charge of illegally possessing a firearm.

Gone, too, was the importance of the mysterious "millionaire from Boston," of the phantom "man in the hall," of the former husband of the model, of her many friends and admirers among illustrators and artists.

Piece by piece detectives put together the story of Irwin, a roomer in the Gedeon home, like the little English waiter, Byrnes, who was stabbed to death, until he walked voluntarily into Bellevue Hospital in July of 1933 and asked for mental treatment.

Released as cured of "mental conflictions" and "great agitation," he went off to St. Lawrence University last fall to study theology and earn his way by teaching sculpture and art, aided in his ambition by Dr. Russell E. Blaisdell, superintendent of the Rockland Hospital, who became deeply interested in his case.

Evangelist Parents.

He visited the hospital only a month ago, Dr. Blaisdell said today, and was "in fine spirits."

Only ten days ago, in an interview in Canton, N. Y., Irwin told of his ambition to study for the ministry rather than "waste my life making pretty statues."

He told of his job as a wax worker in Hollywood, how he "got so much religion as a boy that it sickened me." He was born of evangelist parents in a tent on an old-fashioned camp meeting ground in Portland, Oreg.

His first love was sculpture, and he hopped freights, slept wherever he could to get to Chicago to meet his ideol, Lorado Taft, the artist. He said he lived with the Taft family 15 months, finally got a $50-a-week commercial job, made busts of Max Schmeling, Gov. Lehman, President Roosevelt, Marlene Dietrich and Prof. Einstein, all from photographs.

He wouldn't model the co-eds at St. Lawrence.

"No, thanks," he said. "I have work to do."

So close were detectives to him

Threat to Quit Neutrality Bloc In Spain Made by Mussolini

'Flagrant Violations' of Arms Embargo by France Are Charged in Il Duce's Newspaper; U. S. Planes Mentioned.

By the United Press.

Rome, April 5.—Premier Benito Mussolini, charging France and other European powers with violation of the Spanish neutrality accord, threatened tonight to plunge whole-heartedly into the civil war on the side of Gen. Franco's rebels.

The Gornale d'Italia, mouthpiece of Il Duce's foreign policies and often used to lay down a 'barrage" for hi ssurprise announcements, published a list of alleged "flagrant" neutrality violations by France.

"Either we must have control of this neutrality or abandon the whole idea," the newspaper said

Drastic Action Hinted.

Government spokesmen admitted that the newspaper's charges were a direct reflection of Mussolini's attitude, and hinted broadly that Il Duce might withdraw at any time from the Spanish neutrality accord of 27 nations.

Mussolini's open entrance into the Spanish war would, in the opinion of diplomats, assure a rebel victory and the establishing of a Fascist dictatorship under Franco.

But, moreover, it might bring Europe to the verge of a general war, with democratic England and France—along with Red Russia—aligned against the two great Fascist powers, Italy and Germany.

Diplomats in Rome openly admitted their fears, pointing out that Mussolini usually precedes his diplomatic moves with newspaper propaganda. They also recalled the statements four days ago of Dino Alfieri, of the foreign office, to the effect that Italy would be forced to "reexamine the situation" if it were proved that other countries were violating the nonintervention agreement.

Immediately after Alfieri's statement Italian newspapers began pub-

London Sees Hope for End of America's Policy of Isolation.

War and Peace.

Great Britain, France and Belgium launched an ambitious scheme to bring about a world economic disarmament conference with the aid of the United States.

Warning against the "suicidal" world armament race, Secretary of State Cordell Hull urged reestablishment of friendly trade and political relations among all nations.

Premier Mussolini, charging flagrant violations of the Spanish nonintervention pact by France and other powers, threatened to plunge openly into the Spanish war.

Col. Francois de la Rocque, indicted on charges of reviving his banned Fascist Croix de Feu under a different name, defied the French government of Leon Blum to try dissolution of the party.

London, April 5.—Great Britain, France and Belgium—harassed democracies of Western Europe—launched an ambitious scheme tonight to bring about a world economic disarmament conference with the aid of the United States.

Many diplomats regarded the tri-power move as the approach to a program of military as well as economic disarmament inasmuch as Europe's bickering statesmen are agreed that the two problems are inseparable in the threatening state of Old World affairs.

It was announced in London and Paris that their foreign offices have communicated with Belgium "with a view to exploring the direction in which it may prove possible to promote a reduction of trade barriers, including quotas."

Would Include U. S.

The real objectives of the scheme, it was said, will be to find a basis which ultimately can be extended not only to all Europe but to non-European countries, including the United States.

The exploratory talks on economic disarmament are intended, it was explained, to "lend substance to the hope expressed in the tripower monetary agreement among the United States, Britain and France of last September 26."

The British and French foreign offices were quick to point out that no general economic conference is contemplated at present but the presence in London of several important foreign statesmen attending the international sugar conference—including President Roosevelt's roving Ambassador, Norman H. Davis—may provide a basis for "informal exchanges" on economic co-operation.

France and Britain asked Paul Van Zeeland, Belgian premier, to compile documents of the world's economic situation with a view to bringing them before a world economic conference.

It was pointed out in Paris that the "soundings" of the project would require almost a year and that, meanwhile, no plans could be fixed tor a conference of any kind.

France Makes Bid.

It was admitted, however, that France and England hope that the move will lead to a revival of the ill-fated London economic conference of 1931 at which Davis was the American delegate.

Around Davis centered the hopes of European statesmen that a way can be found to enlist American aid for the economic rehabilitation scheme, and perhaps the broader suggestion of armaments limitation to prevent another general war in Europe.

France has made a direct bid for United States co-operation in efforts for lasting peace. It came in a radio speech last night by Francois de Tessan, Undersecretary of State.

Despite repeated denials from Washington, belief persisted here tonight that, despite his attendance at the sugar conferences, Davis actually is on an informal peace mission and may—before he returns to the United States—disclose a relaxation of the firm American policy of isolation.

Captain, Mate Hurt, 1 Dead on Disabled Ship

German Vessel Is Able to Limp to Port, Wireless From Bremen Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—The North German Lloyd Line late today announced it had received a message that one man was dead and two were injured on the S. S. Borkum, whose S O S sent ships in the North Atlantic steaming to her aid.

From Capt. Ahrens of the S. S. Bremen came the following:

"Last night at 2:30 G. M. T. (11:30 p. m. New York time) S. S. Borkum, captain and chief officer injured, one sailor dead, navigating bridge and two hatches slightly damaged. Weather improving. Able to proceed to Horta accompanied by battleship Schlesien. S. S. Schwaben is at present of temporary assistance. S. S. Borkum cannot be reached by boat on account of rough sea. The Bremen's probable arrival at Cherbourg 3 p. m. the seventh."

Earlier the Bremen had reported the disabled Borkum was in "safe" condition as she drifted helplessly in heavy seas off the Azores.

After standing by the freighter from midnight until 2:30 a. m. unable to take off her crew because of heavy seas, the Bremen proceeded to Cherbourg, leaving the S. S. Subaldo standing by until the German naval training vessel, Schlesien, arrived.

The Borkum, carrying a crew of 34 and 3 passengers, first asked for assistance early Saturday.

The vessel was bound for Houston, Tex., from Hamburg when she became disabled in a storm.

Later the Radio Marine station reported the Bremen radioed the Schlesien arrived alongside the Borkum, followed by another German ship, the Schwaben.

Relief Measure Md. Assembly's Chief Problem

Fist Fight Between Two Delegates Enlivens End of Session.

By Joseph M. Mathias,
A Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., April 5.—As the hour for adjournment drew near, the Legislature here tonight still faced the task of providing nearly $6,000,000 to finance the State relief program.

The Legislators convened for the last day of the session at 11:15 and spent the day disposing of a flood of local measures. At 10:30 p. m., the ways and means committee was still wrestling with the problem of providing relief money.

A 64-year-old State Senator, James B. Latimer, of Calvert County, enlivened the final session of the State Legislature here tonight when he became embroiled in a fist fight with John W. Williams, about 35, former member of the House of Delegates from Calvert County.

Packs Wallop.

A brother of Dr. Thomas Latimer, Hyattsville, Md., chairman of the Republican State central committee for Prince Georges County, Senator Latimer is a mild-mannered man. But witnesses of the brief bout declared he packs a potent wallop.

The altercation, Senator Latimer said, began in the Senate chamber with a verbal argument over a bill he had introduced to make the cost of hunting licenses higher for nonresidents of Calvert County.

Presently the men emerged from the chamber. Senator Latimer was heard to say, "Now, say that again." Williams mumbled something and the senator uncorked a vicious right-hand punch that landed flush in the former delegate's face.

Oyster Dredging Fight.

The afternoon session was marked by a bitter fight in the House of Delegates between the Eastern Shore and southern Maryland representatives on the question of dredging for oysters in the Potomac River.

Proponents of the bill to allow small dredges, known as hand scrappers, in the Potomac River opened the fight shortly before 4 p. m. The Legislature was technically still in Saturday's session.

The fight was to suspend the rules to allow the committee on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries to report out the bill. Had a vote been called then, only a majority would have been needed to call the

D. C. Case Cited In McReynolds Reply to Critics

Uses Police Decision to Deny Economic Views Sway Justices.

A justice of the United States Supreme Court yesterday used a District of Columbia Police Court case as an occasion for replying to the charge that conservatives of the highest bench in the land have been influenced in their decisions by personal economic leanings.

The justice was James Clark McReynolds, one of those who have stood against the constitutionality of New Deal measures.

The case concerned the constitutionality of the conviction in District Police Court without a jury of Ethel Clawans, of Washington and Newark, N. J., of selling unused parts of railway tickets without a license. She was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 or 60 days in jail.

A majority of seven members of the court upheld the constitutionality of the District law under which Miss Clawans was convicted without the jury trial guaranteed her by the Constitution. They concluded the offense was "petty" and that the punishment decreed was not an unusual one for similar offenses tried without a jury in the days when the Constitution was being drafted.

Court Change Foes Combine On Amendment

Wheeler Backs O'Mahoney Plan; Burke Also Is Favorable.

By Sidney Olson.

In an effort to prove Senators opposing the President's court program can agree among themselves on a constitutional amendment, Senators Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, both Democrats, yesterday joined forces behind the O'Mahoney amendment.

This amendment would require a two-thirds majority of any court, high or low, before any law could be declared unconstitutional.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, who challenged the two to prove Wheeler's assertion that individual Senators opposing the President's plan would "willingly submerge their views" behind any reasonable amendment, was notified formally by the two that such an agreement had been reached.

Pittman told reporters he would not favor the suggested amendment as an alternative to, or compromise with, the President's plan, but that he was "inclined to believe it will be favorably reported out by the Judiciary Committee."

Cites Minority Power.

He confessed, however, to certain doubts about the measure, pointing out that under it a minority of the Supreme Court could exercise a

Air, Land Search Widens for Plane, Eight Passengers

Alpine, Ariz., April 5 (AP).—Search for a skyliner missing with eight passengers spread north from here tonight on reports an apparently distressed plane took that direction after being seen here Saturday.

A report an 11-year-old boy had seen the ship "crash into the trees" near here was discounted after it had sent searchers by air and afoot hurrying over the snow-choked mountains near the New Mexico border in this vicinity.

C. E. Moore, supervisor of the Apache National Forest at Placerville, 25 miles north of here, said the boy, son of Henry A. McDaniel, forest ranger at Alpine, "only heard the ship."

Errol Flynn Safe; Flying to Paris

Barcelona, Spain, April 5 (U.P.)—Errol Flynn, actor and adventurer, was located tonight—his 6-foot-2-inch frame unmarked by a Spanish machine-gun bullet as had been reported erroneously.

The Hollywood star arrived by automobile from Valencia and took off by plane for Paris, where he probably will meet his wife, Lili Damita, who was excitedly planning to rush to his side from London "if he is hurt."

"I visited the Madrid front and operated a machine gun," Flynn said.

Public Opposes Compromise to Prevent Trial Of Va. Dentist for Chloroform Murder of Girl

By Edward T. Folliard,
A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—Growing resentment was noted here tonight following announcement of the compromise agreement in the case of Dr. Richard G. Miller, alleged chloroform killer of Cleo Sprouse, 18-year-old high school girl.

Under the agreement between prosecuting and defense attorneys, Dr. Miller will escape a jury trial by pleading guilty to second degree murder and leaving it up to Circuit Judge Lemuel T. Smith to sentence him to a jail term of from 5 to 20 years.

Meanwhile, in Staunton, Va., Mrs. Lula Sprouse, of Charlottesville, mother of the girl victim, engaged Charles Curry as attorney for the family.

Mrs. Sprouse made it clear she retained the attorney to ascertain what steps, if any, could be taken in view of the announcement that Dr. Miller would plead guilty to second-degree murder in the case.

Opposes Second Degree.

Mrs. Sprouse said tonight she did not know "they were trying to make a compromise on second-degree murder until this morning."

She said she wanted Miller, Charlottesville dentist held since soon after her daughter's body was found beside a cemetery wall March 2, prosecuted on a first-degree murder charge if prosecuted at all.

She said the entire family was unalterably opposed to any proposal to accept the second-degree murder plea.

Mrs. Sprouse in Staunton said she came there to confer with the local Commonwealth's attorney, but was unable to find him.

Curry said tonight he had arranged by telephone to confer with Fife in the latter's Charlottesville office tomorrow. He said members of the Sprouse family would be present.

Dr. Miller was indicted for first degree murder, which calls for a sentence ranging from 20 years in

Kirby and Gingell Given Life Terms In Banker Holdup

Charleston, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—War Joseph Kirby and Lawrence Gingell, who received 18-year sentences in a murder case, drew life terms today for armed robbery.

Kirby, 21, of Baltimore, Md., and Gingell, 20, of Kensington, Md., pleaded guilty to second degree murder at Sutton last week after their companion, William B. Read, 25, of Four Corners, Md., was sentenced to be hanged for slaying W. Earle Dollman, Charleston salesman, last November.

Man, Sister Save 3 as 6 Die In Windstorm on Texas Lake

By the Associated Press.

San Antonio, Tex., April 5.—A brother and a sister emerged tonight as heroes of a Medina Lake boating tragedy in which six persons were drowned.

Frank Trahan went to the aid of a party spilled into deep water when a squall upset their motorboat while his sister, Carolyn, 21, swam half a mile to shore and summoned help.

Sam Johnston died trying to save his 5-year-old daughter, Minnie Lee. Mrs. Johnston and a son, George, were rescued. Rescuers found Mrs. Johnston supporting the body of her daughter.

Five of the victims and four other persons, including Miss Trahan, were in a large motorboat when a sudden squall overturned the craft. Trahan and Johnston were in a smaller boat nearby. A wave capsized the boat as they hurried to the rescue. Trahan was struck on the head.

"For a moment I was stunned," Trahan said, "then I began frantically pulling my riding boots off. I dived in and grabbed my wife and little George Johnston. The wind and the waves were getting pretty rough, but I finally succeeded in going back and getting Mrs. Sam Johnston, my sister, who held her

Congress Members Hope to Block President's 300,000 Limit.

A few hours after President Roosevelt had asked, in a special message, legislation for a permanent Civilian Conservation Corps limited to 300,000 enrollees, members of Congress last night were ponedring ways of boosting the maximum enrollment above the President's figures. At the same time, throughout the country, members of the corps were holding 2,000 open house celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the corps.

A Democratic steering committee of the House, eager for an enlarged CCC rather than a restricted one, at a meeting today will consider the possibility of fixing the permanent strength at 350,000 or higher. The committee, early in March, carried to the President a plea that a higher enrollment be provided for, but the President at that time said he had to consider the matter in terms of budget requirements and pointed out that the 300,000 figure would provide for all applicants from relief families.

Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat), Oklahoma, who led the group visiting the President more than a month ago, said last night he was prepared to lead the fight for an enrollment of 350,000. He suggested that postponement of construction of one of the two new "$50,000,000 battleships" could help provide the additional funds. It is estimated each enrollee costs about $1,000 a year.

A Question of Money.

Johnson said at the time the House group visited the White House that it was a question of finding the money, and indicated he expected the President's acceptance of the greater CCC strength if members of Congres could find the money without upsetting budget figures.

In his message yesterday, the President said in view of improved business conditions an enrollment of 300,000, including war veterans, who now number about 25,000 of the corps members, was as great as could be expected.

"To go beyond this at this time," the message said, "would open new and difficult classifications of enrollment, and the additional cost would seriously affect the financial position of the Treasury."

The President, recalling that in his budget message last January he had indicated his desire that the CCC be made permanent, pointed out that its legislative authorization is due to expire June 30, and added:

"I am convinced that there is ample useful work in the protection, restoration and development of our national resources, upon which the services of the corps may be employed advantageously for an extended future period.

"It should be noted that this program will not in any respect reduce normal employment opportunities for our adult workers; in fact the purchase of simple materials, of food and clothing and of other supplies required for the operations of the corps tends to increase employment in industry."

CCC Members Celebrate.

Meanwhile, as CCC youths throughout the country ate or danced at jollification ceremonies marking the corps' fourth anniversary, figures made public here by Robert Fechner, corps director, revealed something of the magnitude of its accomplishments and operations to date.

In a report to the President, portions of which were written by the Secretaries of Labor, Interior, Agriculture and War and the Veterans' Administration, who have a share in the CCC activities, Fechner revealed that more than 1,700,000 young men and war veterans have been taken from relief rolls and put to work on conservation projects. It estimated that employment had been supplied to an additional 300,000 nonenrolled persons, and the expenditures of funds for supplies have stimulated business recovery and furnished employment indirectly to many engaged in production, manufacture and distribution of supplies and equipment.

Up to last December 31, financial obligations of the emergency conservation work had totaled $1,511,650,509.

Pay of members reached $460,684,157, and enrollees sent home to dependents more than $360,000,000. Civilians received an additional $171,110,055.

For subsistence was spent $201,608,780, and for clothing $154,893,327.

Supplies, materials and equipment cost $192,497,285 ,and $67,785,183 went for shelter.

Steady Reduction Made.

Other lesser expenditures, all serving to swell the totals, were for travel, transportation of materials, utilities, pay of reserve officers and land.

The actual peak enrollment of the corps, including Indians and residents of the territories, was 519,000 on August 31, 1935. The number was gradually reduced by a policy of nonreplacement of enrollees who left the corps to take jobs or for other reasons. On January 31, this year, there were 351,382 enrollees in 2,084 camps, but this number has since been reduced.

On March 21, 1933, I addressed a message to the Congress in which I stated:

"I propose to create a civilian conservation corps to be used in simple work, not interfering with normal employment, and confining itself to forestry, the prevention of soil erosion, flood control and similar projects. I call your attention to the fact that this type of work is of definite, practical value, not only through the prevention of great present financial loss, but also as a means of creating future national wealth."

The prompt consideration given this message by Congress resulted in the enactment, on March 31, 1933, of Public—No. 5, to provide for the relief of unemployment through the performance of useful public work; and on April 5, 1933, Executive Order, I set up the office of Emergency Conservation Work to carry the above act into effect.

It is not necessary to go into detail regarding the accomplishments of the corps. You are acquainted with the physical improvements that have taken place in our forests and parks as a result of the activities of the corps and with the wealth that is being added to our natural resources for the benefit of future generations. More important than the material gain, however, is the improvement we find in the moral and physical well-being of our citizens who have been enrolled in the corps and of their families who have been assisted by monthly allotments of pay.

The functions of the corps expire under authority of present law on June 30, 1937.

In my budget message to Congress on January 5 of this year I indicated that the corps should be continued and recommended that legislation be enacted during the present session to establish the corps as a permanent agency of the Government. Such continuance or establishment is desirable notwithstanding the great strides that have been made toward national recovery, as there is still need for providing useful and healthful employment for a large number of our youthful citizens.

I am convinced that there is ample useful work in the protection, restoration and development of our national resources, upon which the services of the corps may be employed advantageously for an extended future period. It should be noted that this program will not in any respect reduce normal employment opportunities for our adult workers; in fact, the purchase of simple materials, of food and clothing and of other supplies for the operations of the corps tends to increase employment in industry.

I recommend, therefore, that provision be made for a permanent corps of 300,000 youths (and war veterans), together with 10,000 Indian and 5,000 enrollees in our territories and insular possessions. It would appear, after a careful study of available information, that, with improved business conditions, these numbers represent the maximum enrollment. To go beyond this number at this time would open new and difficult classifications of enrollment, and the additional cost would seriously affect the financial position of the Treasury.

I trust the Congress will deem it wise to enact legislation making permanent the Civilian Conservation Corps.

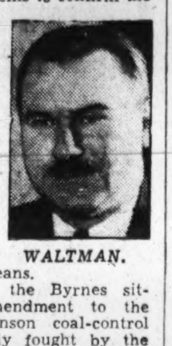
Senate's Refusal to Vote 'Sit-Downs' Illegal Seems to Back Roosevelt Aid to Lewis.

By Franklyn Waltman



WALTMAN.

REFUSAL of the Senate to brand sit-down strikes as illegal and contrary to public policy seems to confirm the widespread opinion that President Roosevelt is anxious to do nothing which would interfere with the union organization activities of John L. Lewis — by fair or foul means.

Approval of the Byrnes sit-down-strike amendment to the new Guffey-Vinson coal-control bill was bitterly fought by the Administration leaders in the Senate, even though it was sponsored by a close friend of the President. Presumably the Democratic leaders in the Senate acted on White House inspiration.

This presumption becomes stronger if the tactics used to defeat the Byrnes amendment are examined. Democratic Leader Robinson pleaded for rejection of the Byrnes amendment on the ground that the question of sit-down strikes should be considered independently of the coal-control bill, and finally it was proposed to let the Senate vote on this matter later in a concurrent resolution, which, if adopted by the House and Senate, would not require the President's signature. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt does not wish to take a stand on sit-down strikes.

This action of the Senate adds a great deal of force to the statement several days ago of Walter Lippmann that "for the first time in their history the American people are questioning whether the party in charge of their Government believes in law or is willing to sustain courts."

That is the real issue in this controversy. It is not a question of the right of labor to organize, of collective bargaining or of fair treatment for workers. All these issues are subordinate to the higher question of whether the Federal Government shall continue to encourage lawlessness—even though the objectives sought are meritorious and worthy.

Many industrialists have been arrogant and stupid in their resistance to collective bargaining. Many of them blindly have spent millions of dollars in recent years employing labor spies and strike-breaking organizations to thwart every effort of their workers to form organizations to protect their rights.

Perhaps many of these industrialists would have been shocked if they had been present and heard the words yesterday of Thomas Ashurst, employer delegate from Great Britain and secretary of the British Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers Association, before the World Textile Conference meeting here.

Mr. Ashurst declared that he viewed with "great concern any international action which would involve the abandonment of our system of settling wage and hour conditions in the various countries otherwise than by collective bargaining." He added that collective bargaining had proved "satisfactory" and "equitable" and asserted that "any attempt to take from us our system of such bargaining will be resisted not only by the employers, but, I am quite sure, by the workers section as well."

Mr. Ashurst was urging opposition to proposals for an international labor organization imposing a 40-hour work week on the textile industry—because the British textile industry does not want a 40-hour week. But his remarks in regard to the value of collective bargaining in England—where it is regarded as a natural relationship between workers and employers — indicates how unenlightened many American industrialists have become.

But all of that is beside the point in this controversy over sit-down strikes. The real issue is the contempt for law and the courts which is being engendered by the attitude which the Roosevelt Administration has taken in regard to sit-down strikes. Surely one can fight for humanitarian ideals and undertake to see that no person starves without acquiescing in the actions of hungry men stealing or tossing bricks through restaurant or bakery windows.

From the inception of the sit-down strike movement in this country, the Roosevelt Administration has not lifted a finger to discourage them. Indeed, it has subtly encouraged them from the day that John L. Lewis, as Senator Bailey phrased it in the Senate on Friday, "in an excess of arrogance announced that he had elected Mr. Roosevelt President; that he had contributed half a million dollars to the campaign fund, and he demanded that the President of the United States come to his deliverance and take his side."

It was after that the President forced Alfred P. Sloan, of General Motors to confer with Secretary of Labor Perkins; that Secretary of Labor Perkins held that the legality of sit-down strikes had not been determined, and that SEC Chairman James M. Landis, with all the prestige of his new appointment as the Harvard Law School dean, suggested in the developing concepts of law sit-down strikes in the future may be regarded as lawful.

And now the President's lieutenants in the Senate beat down, with Democratic votes, a proposal to put that body on record as pronouncing sit-down strikes illegal. Whether the Senate by passing a concurrent resolution later can repair the damage done is doubtful. Indeed, many a Senator may well ponder why he should take a definite stand on the question which the President apparently wishes to evade.

We will be lucky and fortunate people if the germs of disrespect for law and authority now being injected into our national life do not become a malignant growth within the body politic with serious consequences at some future date.

vote for the amendment, while 43 Democrats, 3 Republicans, 1 Independent and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted "no."

Senator Pittman, whose language Byrnes used, but who favors action by resolution, voted against the amendment. Later Pittman introduced a concurrent resolution condemning alike sit-down strikes and the industrial "spy" system.

"Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that the so-called sit-down strike is illegal and contrary to sound public policy; and

"That the so-called Industrial spy system, breeds fear, suspicion and animosities and is contrary to sound public policy.

"The Congress only assumes to speak as to strikes in industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

Other resolutions were offered by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania. These are simple Senate resolutoins, and would not require action by the House or White House signature.

The King resolution declares continuance of sit-downs "inimical to the maintenance of a democratic form of government and is subversive of the authority of the United States," while the Davis resolution declares it "the sense of the Senate that so-called sit-down strikes are illegal and contrary to sound public policy."

Another Row Likely.

Another row is imminent when and if any one of the three is called up tomorrow. One unanimous consent request will be presented to refer the proposal to committee, with instructoins to report back next Monday. If this fails, a motion to the same effect will be made.

The Guffey coal bill, passed yesterday by the Senate, and previously by the House, now goes back to the House with Senate amendments. It shortly will be sent to a conference committee to work out differences in detail.

It represents the second major attempt to regulate the soft coal industry. The original Guffey-Vinson act was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in the Carter coal case. Attempting to meet the high court's objection, the revised measure makes no attempt at regulating wages and hours.

Aimed at unreasonable price cutting and trade practices, the new measure seeks to establish minimum prices based upon average production cost in the competitive coal-producing areas. Power would be vested in a National Bituminous Coal Commission, and the country divided into 23 coal producing districts. Boards in each district, comprising at least two members of the industry and a representative of labor, will submit to the commission for approval minimum prices based on average production costs. Consumers' interests would be represented through a consumers' counsel.

To finance administration, a 1-cent per ton tax would be imposed on participants. Producers failing to participate would be taxed 19½ per cent of their sales.

An unsuccessful eleventh-hour effort was made by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, to strike out a paragraph in the bill exempting coal producers from prosecution under antitrust laws, for agreements in compliance with the measure.

Amendments adopted by the Senate exempted statistical employes of the coal commission from Civil Service laws, exempted sales to farm co-operatives from price requirements, and made purchasers subject to prosecution where illegal sales were made.

Walsh Criticizes.

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, took the floor to denounce personnel requirements that he said "practically abandon the merit system." Walsh said he knew it would be useless to offer an amendment to correct them.

Debate of the Byrnes sit-down amendment consumed most of the afternoon. Following its rejection, the South Carolinian predicted unfavorable reaction in the press and on the radio would have Senators clamoring for another chance to vote on the strike issue "within 48 hours."

Byrnes noted the denunciation of the industrial "spy" system in the Pittman resolution would "apply to all industry" whereas condemnation of sit-down strikes was limited to "industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

"That means it would apply only to the District and to the rairoads," said Byrnes.

Robinson in vain sought withdrawal of the Byrnes amendment promising that if the two issues were separated, he would support independent consideration of sit-down strikes when once the coal bill was passed. He argued "lawlessness" was not confined to employes alone.

since 1920, with the exception of $1.38⅞ in 1928.

May soy beans also jumped 4 cents yesterday, to $1.79, a new high record.

Wheat and oats futures were a little higher, cotton futures gained from 10 cents to 55 cents a bale, copper futures were up, but export and scrap copper, lead and zinc futures and rubber were all down.

Fair bidding and practically no offerings marked the opening of the Government bond market. Some issues went up more than $10 on a face value of $1,000. As higher prices were reached, however, and the yield on investment thereby cut, bids fell off and there were some offerings, sending prices slightly downward.

The failure of income tax payments to reach estimates was seen by some as probably responsible for the Treasury's need to borrow new money. President Roosevelt last Friday said he would send his relief budget estimate to Congress about April 14, and with it his new estimates on receipts and expenditures for the coming fiscal year.

Lauds Board's Decision.

At the press conference at which he said new borrowing will be necessary, Secretary Morgenthau praised the Federal Reserve Board's decision to buy Government bonds in the open market as "a constructive move in the right direction."

Taylor, chairman of U. S. Steel, told stockholders at the annual meeting in New York his greatest desire is that "we shall in some way in the not very distant future be able to reward you stockholders in a way which your patience justifies."

He told the meeting operations of the corporation had advanced to 87 per cent of capacity, compared with a depression low of 18.3 per cent.

A. F. L. to Fight C. I. O. Efforts In Oil Fields

Rival Labor Union Opens 'Counter Offensive' on Lewis.

By the Associated Press.

The American Federation of Labor, striving to offset the inroads made by John L. Lewis in the Nation's labor ranks, last night launched a "counter offensive" to the Committee for Industrial Organization's drive to enlist a million oil workers under the banner of the C. I. O.

A few hours after H. C. Fremming, C. I. O. chieftain, announced plans for the Lewis organization's mammoth oil field campaign, Holt Ross, Southern representative of the A. F. of L., declared:

"The American Federation of Labor will do all possible to resist the drive of the C. I. O. to organize gas well and refinery oil workers."

Charges Communism.

Charging that the committee for Industrial Organization is "honey combed with Communists," Ross warned that the Federation will "expel all C. I. O. delegates to central labor unions and to State Federations."

He outlined plans for the A. F. of L. drive among the oil workers before the convention of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor at Lake Charles.

Meanwhile, President William Green of the A. F. of L., speaking at Newark, N. J., called on labor to support the Federation and said "all those who believe in aiding one man to realize an all-consuming ambition will stand on the other side."

He did not refer by name to John L. Lewis in addressing delegates to the National Council of Aluminum Workers, as he declared:

"We're not going to have a Hitler or a Mussolini in the labor movementin America."

At the same time Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins attacked the sit-down strike, favorite weapon of the C. I. O. in its organizing drive, declaring the sit-down is "not a good technique, nor a useful one," and described it as "a vogue which is now passing over." She expressed her views in a press conference at Chicago.

Asked whether she believed Lewis had presidential ambitions, she replied:

"I don't know. He hasn't confided in me."

Sloan Hits Sit-Downs.

At Phoenix, Ariz., Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, joined in the attack on sit-down strikes, calling them a menace to the Nation.

Meanwhile Lewis and Walter P. Chrysler continued their strike peace conference at Lansing, Mich. Settlement of the four weeks old dispute, which would send at least 85,000 wage earners back to their posts, was reliably reported to be "a matter of hours," as the session adjourned until tomorrow.

These were additional developments in the labor field:

Pay increases aggregating $2,000,000 annually were granted 20,000 workers in the pottery industry. The United States Pottery Manufacturers Association announced the wage boost, ranging from 9 to 15 per cent, would affect 24 factories in the East and Middlewest.

A parade and demonstration, during which ten persons were seized by police, marked the three weeks old trucker strike at Wilmington, Del., where a sympathy walkout of 39 unions was in effect briefly Saturday.

Some 20,000 Alabama coal miners were not among the hundreds of thousands who resumed work after last week's one-day shutdown pending signing of a new contract. A delay in negotiations kept the Alabama workers from the pits.

Man Confesses Killing Coach, Stabbing Sailor

Suspect Admits 2 Attacks on Ferryboat Near Portsmouth, Va.

By the Associated Press.

Portsmouth, Va., April 5.—Detective Sergt. T. A. Talbot said today Sidney Peele, 28, admitted after his arrest on a charge of murder today that he fatally stabbed William E. ("Bill") Daughtrey, 25-year-old Suffolk High School coach, and critically wounded J. E. Brooks, a sailor, on a ferry boat here last night.

Peele, arrested at his home early today by Talbot and Detective C. W. White, was held without bond pending a hearing April 17.

A woman passenger on the Norfolk-Portsmouth boat, who said she thought she recognized Daughtrey's assailant, furnished information which led to Peele's arrest, the detective said.

Peele told them, they said, he slashed the former Hampden-Sydney College athlete and the sailor attached to the U. S. S. New York because Daughtrey struck him after Peele had trampled the coach's foot.

Dies in Hospital.

The officers said a knife with a 2-inch blade, sharpened to a razor edge, was used, and that the assailant fled from the boat as it moved into its Portsmouth slip. The stabbing occurred shortly after 9 p. m. Sunday.

Daughtrey died in a hospital about 20 minutes later, and Brooks, attendants said today, remained in a critical condition after an operation performed in an effort to save his life.

The high school coach's bride, Mrs. Anne Holton Daughtrey, and two companions, who witnessed the attack, said they believed Daughtrey's assailant was angered when the group laughed about something on the boat, which the man apparently misinterpreted as being directed at him.

Wife Sees Tragedy.

Mrs. Daughtrey, a bride of a year, said the man drew a knife and quickly struck at the two men when it was explained they were not laughing at him.

Brooks was attempting to separate the other two when he was wounded.

Supt. John E. Martin announced today Suffolk's public schools would close at 1 p. m. tomorrow out of respect to Daughtrey, who served in the dual capacity of faculty member and coach.

He was a football, track and baseball star at Hampden-Sydney a few years ago, and one year was captain of the diamond team. He was a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Officers Indicted For Shots at Car

Winchester, Va., April 5 (AP).—A special Frederick County grand jury indicted C. M. Carden and Carter Baker, recently elected to the city police force, today on charges of unlawful shooting.

The officers were among witnesses appearing before the grand jury to give their versions of a recent shooting at an automobile driven by Willard Herrell, of Round Hill, Va. They admitted they followed across the West Virginia line and fired a number of times. One shot flattened a tire.

Judge Philip Williams told the grand jurors the case was an unusual one involving the question of whether the officers had violated State laws.

Boy Admits Setting Zion Temple Fire

Zion, Ill., Aug. 5 (AP).—Alven Ruesch, chief of both the Zion fire and police departments, said early today Thomas Griffith, 19, had confessed setting fire to the 35-year-old Shiloh Temple and radio station WCBD which resulted in an estimated loss of $600,000.

Ruesch quoted the boy as saying he burned the building to get revenge for wrongs he fancied were done his foster-parents by Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva of the Christian Apostolic Church, which operated the temple.

Woman Kills Self At Home by Gas

Mary Elizabeth Whitesel, 35, killed herself with illuminating gas early yesterday in her home at 409 I street northeast.

The woman was found unconscious in her room by Glade B. Outland, the landlord, who summoned police. The fire rescue squad worked about 15 minutes in an effort to revive Mrs. Whitesel. She was pronounced dead by a doctor from Casualty Hospital.

A note found in the room believed to have been written by the woman said she had been in ill health for some time. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Shore Hotel Burns As 20,000 Watch

Atlantic City, N. J., April 5 (AP).—The once-fashionable, empty Grand Atlantic Hotel, a half block from the resort's famous Boardwalk, was destroyed by a spectacular, four-hour fire today.

Fought by 200 firemen and watched by 20,000 spectators, the blaze forced evacuation of 200 guests from the adjoining Royal Palms Hotel and threatened to sweep a vast area of frame buildings in the city's uptown section.

Fire authorities estimated the loss at $250,000. The five-story, rambling frame hotel had not yet opened for the season.

Treasury Hits Substitute Rail Retirement Act

Return of 100 Millions of Impounded Funds Would Upset Budget Status.

A new point of disagreement over the proposed substitute railroda retirement act, which involves the loss of about $100,000,000 to the Federal Treasury this fiscal year, was revealed last night.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was in conference until after dark with Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Robert L. Doughton, head of the House Ways and Means Committee, protesting the proposal to return to the railroads and their employes the $100,000,000 of taxes impounded when the carriers attacked the present retirement legislation in the courts.

The Treasury head offered a compromise proposal which was discussed with the Congressional leaders, and at the close of the conference it was reported that new estimates were to be asked from actuaries of the Railroad Retirement Board, the Social Security Board, Civil Service Commission and the Treasury. The actuaries are to be asked to report this week.

Taxes Seen Insufficient.

Previously, Treasury experts had protested that the proposed tax rates would not provide enough revenue to the Treasury to carry the load the annuity system created. The present act provides a tax of 3½ per cent of the pay roll from the employes, with the carriers paying an equal sum.

The rate agreed to by representatives of the railoads and of the employes at conference called by President Roosevelt in an effort to reach an agreement that would avoid litigation over the detirement legislation, was to start at 2½ per cent. In the course of 12 years it would be increased gradually to 3½ per cent. Negotiations have been under way between the Treasury, Congress leaders, the carriers, unions and the Railroad Retirement Board seeking to iron out the difference.

Actuaries of the roads and unions continued to insist that the taxes in the substitute plan would produce enough revenue.

Treasury Objects.

Yesterday, however, Secretary Morgenthau revealed the Treasury also is objecting to the plan, accepted by the carriers and workers, to return the impounded tax money to those who paid it. It has been estimated that the tax would provide the Treasury with some $134,000,000. Loss of approximately $100,000,000 would affect the budget position.

Meanwhile, the President's objective in calling the representatives of the carriers and the unions into conference three months ago remains to be realized.

It was December 28 that Mr. Roosevelt addressed letters to J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, asking them to get together, seeking an agreement on possible revisions in the rail retirement tax act which was due to expire February 28. Joint conferences were opened January 7, but February 28 arrived without any agreement having been reached. Congress was forced to extend provisions of the old act until June 30, 1938. Later the carriers and unions announced the new plan agreed upon.

Treasury objections to its proposals have since blocked enactment of the plan into law.

Wedding of Iowa Girl May Result in Charges

Mankato, Minn., Auprih 5 (AP).—County Attorney C. A. Johnson said tonight he expected to go to Estherville, Iowa, tomorrow to check records of the recent marriage of Virginia Deremer, 12 years old, to Ernest B. Johnson, 27.

Virginia, who will be 13 years old tomorrow, has been separated from her husband by agents of the county welfare board. County Attorney Johnson said he was considering bringing charges of contributing to a minor's delinquency against the husband and the girl's mother, Mrs. Alvina Deremer. When the girl was married March 25, her mother gave her age as 15 years.

Three Officials Of Nolan Firm Indicted Here

23 Charges Are Made Against Auto Company Head, Associates.

Charges of forgery, uttering, false pretenses and conspiracy to commit false pretenses were placed against William J. Nolan, head of the bankrupt Nolan Motor Co., and two of his former office associates, Benjamin D. Jenkins and James F. Gallagher, yesterday shortly after the District grand jury had returned three indictments in which there were 23 specific charges.

The charges revolve about the sale of allegedly spurious conditional sales contracts discounted with the Universal Credit Co. A total of approximately $30,000 is said to have been obtained. The conspiracy count of the indictment alleges they sold 45 bona fide conditional sales contracts to the Munsey Trust Co., and then sold spurious contracts for the same machines to the Universal Credit Co.

In another indictment reported yesterday, the grand jury charged Frank J. Hill, head of Crumpton & Co., with using the mails to defraud and with violating the Securities act. Hill, who has been sought since 1934, is alleged to have obtained Cities Service common stock from his customers on the representation the stock would be sold and the proceeds used to purchase preferred stock in the same corporation. With 25 salesmen on his staff, he is said to have obtained about $144,000, most of it from nearby Maryland and Virginia residents.

Former WPA Aide Indicted.

Charles B. Eliot, former official of the Works Progress Administration, was indicted on charges of forging three pay checks in the WPA. He is said to have caused the name of a fictitious person, Alex Dubois, to be placed on the pay rolls, with instructions pay checks should be delivered to him. The amount approximated $440.

Conspiracy charges were booked against Philip Gelfo, Sam Graham Hambrick, William J. Wise, Edwin Lowe and Harry H. Crossley after they had allegedly conspired to force nonunion barbers to join the union by a campaign that included smashing windows and throwing stench bombs.

Henry Berman, an automobile dealer, and Robert A. Wrenn, a teller in the City Bank, were indicted on an accusation of misapplication of funds of the bank. The former teller is alleged to have permitted Berman to "kite" two checks for $1,200 in 1936 after having been notified not to cash any more drafts for him.

Others Indicted.

Others indicted were: Robert R. Lovett, nonsupport; Nelson N. Carter, John White, Leon B. Edwards, Benjamin Taylor, Walter I. Reeves and Albert H. Rowe, joy-riding; Frank J. Blackwell, George W. Andre, William W. Scott, Joseph W. Petro, James Randsford, Rose Holzer, Helen Ryan, grand larceny; Robert Shaw, John E. Holzman, Karl O. Thornton, Lorenzo S. Wilson, Leroy Davis, Vernie Witten, James M. Cain, James H. N. Waring, Bliss Plaine, James D. Tinsley and Marion Tyler, housebreaking.

James D. Tinsley, grand larceny; Alvin Milton, Jacob Milwit, Aaron Trachtenberg, and Elmer D. Hill, receiving stolen property; Lawrence H. Brown, Rudolph Brown, Walter Kelly, Daniel R. Lewis, William Washington, Robert Hill, Earl Rowe, George I. Miles, Jsoeph H. Thomas and Joseph E. Wilson, robbery; Edward O. Brooks, George Ennett, Oscar B. Jackson and Thomas Jacobs, rape.

Robert E. Dorsett, Stanley Wyche and Bonnie McKay, assault with a dengerous weapon; Hampton L. Thompson and Harry C. Atkinson, larceny after trust; William Jeter, Horace Thompson, Samuel Wallace, William Brown, James McCoy and Edward Harris, depredation of private property; George H. Jackson and Samuel Newell, violation of national motor vehicle theft act; Cleo Garrison and Julius Manning, gaming; James Carter, James McDowell and James Jackson, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Melvin T. Salter, Helen M. Slattery, James E. O'Connor, John Anton Meyers, John Hand, Lee Wing, and Mark Ging, narcotic charges; Frederick Goldstein, Sampel David Goldfin and Mae Walsh, violation of the white slave traffic act.

Joseph L. McGuinn, pandering; Ethel Nash, violation of section 317, title 18, U. S. Code; Russel A. Strome, forgery and uttering; Albert C. Johnson, manslaughter; Edward Wilson Culpepper, second degree murder; Samuel J. Jones, first degree murder; Gerald V. Pershing, embezzlement; Harold Mollock and Sol Mollock, violation of section 335, title 18, U. S. Code; Edward Gibson, depredation on private property.

Clews Are Found In 2 Sex Slayings

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP).—Blood-stained fingerprints on a window sill and two clay models of size 11 shoeless footprints were the only clews tonight in the search for the sex-crazed slayer of Mrs. Edna A. Worden and her 12-year-old daughter, Marguerite.

Police detectives, expressing belief a huge colored man used a brickbat to crush the skulls of his sleeping victims in their apartment early Sunday morning, were checking files on all persons arrested in recent years on morals offenses.

The officers said they believed the killer is the same who has slain three women and severely beaten five others in Los Angeles in recent months. In each case the women were felled by brickbats.

Woman in 'Wife Trade' Has Marriage Annulled

Oakland, Calif., April 5 (AP).—Leah Clampitt Sewell Kaley, a principal in the Los Angeles Emerson-Sewell "wife trading" divorce hearing, obtained an annulment in superior court today from Charles R. B. Kaley, her fourth husband.

Sun Starts $25,000 Fire.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—A midday sun blazing through a plate-glass window was blamed today for a $25,000 fire. Firemen investigating the blaze, which occurred yesterday afternoon, said they believed paint, piled in the show window, exploded from the sun's heat and spread the blazing oil over the store.

Juan Lecuna Is Wed in Caracas While Playing Piano in Capital

Venezuela Bride Walks to Altar There to Marry by Proxy.

Senor Juan Lecuna, civil attache to the Venezuelan Legation, is married.

No white-gowned bride leaned happily on his arm at the ceremony, he heard no surpliced preacher solemnly intone the words.

He was alone in his rooms when it happened. A straying sunbeam fell slantingly across the piano which he played. His fingers rippled the keys, then raced faster and faster. It was a song without words, composed by him and dedicated to his absent bride. And in her honor he named it "Calina."

And at that hour in Venezuela crowds thronged a church in Caracas to see Calina in the flesh trip down the aisle to meet her betrothed's proxy, Dr. Juan J. Mendoza, former minister to the United States.

Crowds, organ music and gay laughter in Caracas; a lone man in Washington meditatively fingering the sunlit keys.

Senor Lecuna closed the piano which he had been playing for half an hour. He looked at himself in the mirror. Yes, it was the same face. He laughed, a quick laugh of self-appraisal. When is a benedict not a benedict, he mused.

Five minutes later he was in his barber's chair, all lathered and waiting for a shave.

"I just got married as I played the piano," he ventured.

The barber started, stared, then waggled his head.

SENOR JUAN LECUNA.

"I used to feel that way once. A face massage will do you good," he said.

Society editors please note: Senor Juan Lecuna was married by proxy last Saturday to Senorita Calina Torres, daughter of the former Venezuelan minister to Holland. The bride, beautiful and accomplished, according to her husband, will sail shortly to join him. He explained that proxy marriages are not unusual in his country.

Sculptor Sought in Murder

at one time this week, as he hopped from one cheap room to another, that they arrived at one place only a few minutes after he had left.

"Because he is a 'psycho' case we're afraid he'll commit suicide the moment he feels we're really getting close to him," said Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine.

No sooner had he said that than police rushed to the Montclair Hotel, where a man leaped to his death from the sixteenth floor. But it was not Irwin, they decided. The body of a man found floating in the North River also was not Irwin, they said.

Charles Ottburg, landlord of the Fifty-second street rooming house, recognized Irwin's picture in today's papers and called police. Irwin, he said, had packed up and left his room suddenly the Monday morning after the slayings.

"He wouldn't let anyone make his bed," he said. "When he left he seemed very excited—his eyes were staring wildly."

Mrs. Kudner said she hadn't "heard from Irwin" in a long time, but that he visited the apartment for some time last fall.

"Do you think the police are after the right man now?" she was asked.

"I don't know, but I certainly hope so," she said.

Meanwhile, more excerpts from the diary of the slain Veronica were made public by police.

The model frequently mentioned her love for "Bob", her willingness to marry him, her dissatisfaction with her home, and once says:

"Mother is so broke she has nothing to eat and boy, am I hungry."

The excerpts in the order released by police:

February 22, 1932—"Went to Mary's house with Bob. Had a pretty good time. Went out at night and nearly fell asleep was so bored. came home and mother gave me H—— for getting in at 11 o'clock. I hate him and told him so."

February 22, 1933—"Rest, madeup—had a quarrel with Bob in the morning. He should realize my condition."

February 23, 1933—"Feel sick and lousy. Didn't go to school. If Bobby gets a good job that pays good I'd run away with him and get married. Anything to get away from this family. I love Bob. He was swell. I am crazy, nutty, buggy, etc."

March 10, 1932.—"I am losing rible. Half of me says 'Yes.' Half of me says 'No.' This heavy feeling cant' go on. I'm going nuts—crying, etc. I am so dumb."

March 10, 1933—"Mama is so broke she has nothing to eat and boy am I hungry. Dave has a very fine nature. I like it. Bob is so funny. I don't know at all how his family stands him. I am getting so sick and tired of it all. Him, my family and myself for being dumb. Went over to an odd millionaire's apartment. He was a homosexual and erratic."

Canton, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—Robert Irwin, 29-year-old sculptor and former divinity school student, was labeled an "odd guy" on the St. Lawrence University campus long before he became the object of a police search for questioning in connection with New York's Easter morning triple slaying.

Public Opposes Compromise in Miller Murder

Apparently, Commonwealth Attorney William O. Fife, of Albemarle County, was not so sure that he could get a first degree verdict. As for the battery of defense attorneys, they are relieved of any fear that there might be a first degree verdict. In Virginia, a jury not only determines the degree of guilt but fixes the punishment.

Dr. Miller was scheduled to appear in court today and make his plea of second degree murder, but the death of Judge Smith's sister, Miss Jane Smith, caused a postponement. He is scheduled to appear Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

A canvass of sentiment here indicated a large part of the populace—probably a preponderant part—feels that Dr. Miller should undergo the traditional trial by jury so that the whole case might be cleared up.

Mrs. Sprouse, mother of the slain girl, told reporters in Charlottesville:

"They say they are not going to bring Dr. Miller to trial because of the embarrassment and sorrow that would be forced upon his wife and son and daughter. I wonder if they have stopped to think about the terrible heartbreak and sorrow that he (Dr. Miller) has brought upon me and my children."

A haggard-appearing woman, Mrs. Sprouse was dressed in deep mourning.

Dr. Miller, 53, had been the Sprouse family dentist for 20 years. He was arrested the day after Cleo's body was found outside the University of Virginia Cemetery grounds, a can of chloroform pressed down on her mouth. That night, as he was being taken to Henrico County Jail in Richmond, Dr. Miller confessed that the girl died under the chloroform while he was preparing to perform an illegal operation. He was quoted by the officers as saying she was to have a child in five months, but as insisting he was not the father.

Robert E. Taylor, one of Dr. Miller's four attorneys, said over the week-end that he, the other defense attorneys and Commonwealth's Attorney Fife were agreed that a public trial in the case would cause "publicity that would be harmful to all concerned."

Just the same, there are a great many persons who don't like the procedure that apparently is to be followed. Many of these it is declared, are substantial men.

These citizens, it was said, argue that this is a case of the people vs. Dr. Miller, and that he should be tried by a jury, to the end that the people would know all the facts and be able to decide for themselves whether complete justice had been done.

Dr. Miller, who had been in the Henrico County Jail in Richmond since the night when a crowd of 1,000 gathered outside the jail, was returned here by Albemarle County officers last night.

Heretofore he has talked as if he were confident of acquittal. In Richmond, when one of his jailers told him about a fishing trip, Dr. Miller was reported to have said:

"Just as soon as I am out of this mess, I'll show you some of the best fishing spots you ever saw."

At her home here, late today, visitors were told that she had suffered a nervous spell and had been ordered to bed by her physician. Dick, the Millers' 15-year-old son, is now in school at Norfolk. The "glares" of his schoolmates here, it was explained, caused him to choose a new environment.

Wagner Pleads For Approval Of Housing Bill

Says Speedy Passage Will Put 1,000,000 to Work in Building Field.

By Russell Smith.

Asserting that the United States must solve its unemployment problem "if we desire to preserve our economic system, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, last night pleaded for enactment, at this session of Congress, of his housing bill.

Blocked, apparently, by inability of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Congressional leaders to reach an agreement on financing of the measure, the housing bill has been stagnant for weeks since its introduction. The delay has led to numerous protests, most recent of these being that of the American Federation of Labor housing committee, joined by other federation units.

Adding to his argument that 1,000,000 workers would be re-employed directly in the building trades if his bill becomes a law, Wagner turned to President Roosevelt's assertion that one-third of the American population is "ill-clothed, ill-fed and ill-housed."

Hits at Evils of Slums.

"America is too proud and too wealthy a country," he went on," . . . to permit unnecessary sickness and suffering to be generated by the evils of the slums.

"We believe that society has the same responsibility toward the child crippled by a barren environment, that it has toward a child crippled by a traffic accident.

"More than that, we do not want the child to be crippled at all. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Instead of building more hospitals and more prisons and more reformatories, we propose to remedy the conditions which make these institutions so largely necessary. America has the intelligence, the imagination and the social conscience to create the material environment for an inspiring home life.

"The housing bill, when enacted, will directly provide better homes for one million people within the home building generally, and the next four years. To this must be fact that the program will be exadded the stimulation of private panded when its merits have been proved. Surely, here is a proposition worthy of support by all who desire to fulfill our Nation's promise of comfort and security for the masses of its citizens. Surely, here is a program which combines business wisdom with social vision. Surely, here is a program which in all good faith must be enacted at the present session of Congress."

Previously, the Senator said the rate of increase in technological unemployment was accelerated during the depression and since 1929 "every fifth man has been replaced by a machine." To ameliorate this situation, he said, his housing bill would give employment directly to almost 1,000,000.

Cites Rental Boosts.

Among the evils arising from a housing shortage he stressed reduced standards of living and rising rentals, and said that '"during the past four months alone average rentals have jumped more than 11 per cent." Proceeding to an analysis of the bill, he defended the provision for Federal subsidies to keep rents down as follows:

"This Federal annual contribution has many merits. It provides a constant check against extravagance and waste in the operation of projects. It enables the Federal Government to stop its contribution at any time, if the full benefit does not accrue to those who need low rentals, or if people with higher incomes are allowed into the project. In addition, those contributions in an annual form are on a genuine "pay as you go" basis. The subsidies paid each year will produce lower rentals in that year. On the other hand, the so-called capital grant requires huge subsidies in the first pear to pay rent reductions in 30 or 40 years to come."

$3,600 in Jewels Stolen.

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP).—Lorraine Eddy MacLean, screen actress and divorced wife of Douglas MacLean, producer, reported to police today that $3,600 in jewels were were stolen from a car she parked in front of a hospital.

Dog's Learning Costs His, Policeman's Life

New York, April 5 (AP).—Policeman Patrick Conroy and his faithful German shepherd dog, Paddy, were dead today because Paddy had learned a trick too well. Conroy had trained Paddy to attack anyone drawing a gun.

Returning home from duty early yesterday, Conroy removed his pistol from its holster preparatory to putting it away in a buffet drawer. Paddy, upon seeing the weapon, leaped upon his master just as he had been trained to do. The pistol went off, fatally wounding Conroy.

Conroy's fellow officers today shot and killed Paddy, fearing that the trick he had learned might make him a dangerous pet.

Court Plan Foes Combine On Constitutional Change

Wheeler Backs O'Mahoney Proposal for Amendment; Burke Also Is Reported as Favorable to Program.

"veto power" on legislation. He noted that in a court of nine members a minority of four could block court action that declared laws unconstitutional.

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, opposition chief, expressed himself as sympathetic toward the Wheeler-O'Mahoney amendment, and held that not only a majority of the opposition would agree to such an amendment, but that a majority of the committee would favor it.

Wheeler, meanwhile, lavished sarcasm on the statement recently attributed to Postmaster General Farley to the effect that the party would "call the roll of Congress" on the court issue. Said Wheeler with biting emphasis:

"I am extending my thanks to Mr. Farley for letting the Senate talk about this mater, and am sure the House will appreciate his letting them 'talk until they're tired.'

"I hope Mr. Farley will give the clerks of the House and Senate permission to call the roll, but when he does, I am sure he will find that he will not have enough votes to pass the bill.

"Mr. Hitler occasionally lets the Reichstag talk, and Mr. Stalin and Mr. Mussolini tell their chambers when they may speak.

"Is this what they mean when they speak of modern democracy?"

Villard, lifelong liberal, with an achievement-studded record of reforms, also struck at the Postmaster General's statement as "the most direct attack on the legislative branch by the executive branch that I have heard in my lifetime."

Stipulating his agreement with the President's objectives, "for they were mine long before he found tongue to speak of them," Villard appeared to protest that "the remedy of appointing substitute judges for the men on the bench 70 years or over is a mere temporary method of achieving the purposes that we liberals have had in mind for so long, namely, the clarification of the Constitution, in order that the country may progress toward the best and fairest social conditions to be achieved under the sun."

With the novelty of the judiciary hearings wearing off, only a minority of the committee and a handful of spectators attended the morning session, while shortly after Villard began in the afternoon, a Senate vote on the Guffey bill forced all but Senator Burke and Chairman Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, to withdraw, and the spectators dwindled to a score in the great marble room.

Ashurst took sharp exception to a remark of Villard's, when the latter said of the proposal that the President work to achieve his ends through a constitutional amendment, that "if such an amendment were proposed, especially if the President threw himself behind it and campaigned for it, and gave it even less than the half-hearted support he has given to the child labor amendment, it would go through triumphantly."

Ashurst said: "This is the first time that the President has been charged here with being half-hearted. The burden of the song has been that he has been too whole-hearted, too zealous.

"I do not see any justification of the claim that he has been half-hearted in the advocacy of the child labor amendment."

Villard held that in the event the President's plan was successfully enacted, the resulting appointees to the bench would ever after be known as "the king's men." He reminded the committee that he had been a liberal fighter for 40 years, and that he had personally introduced Franklin Roosevelt to an audience in New York in 1910 as "the young man who had the most brilliant political future before him of any young man of that period."

He remarked that in his belief "some day * * * before too long, we are going to consider a constitutional convention for the remaking of the entire Constitution * * * in order to adapt the fundamental law to the needs of 150,000,000 or 175,000,000 people then living under conditions, economic, financial, social and governmental, which will bear extremely little relation to the conditions of 1789."

Sommer, slim, sandy-haired law school dear., made a deep impression, apparently, on the committee by his evident sincerity and by the quiet earnestness of his plea that the actual constitutionality of the President's plan should not deter the legislators from opposing it as a violation of the spirit of the Constitution. Assailing indirect methods, he said:

"When once the door is opened to attaining, by technically constitutional indirection, ends for which the Constitution has provided a direct way of accomplishment, no one can tell how soon the body will follow the nose of the usurping camel into the tent of constitutional order."

Pleading for more temperate proposals, he said:

"The party now dominant, though the cross be heavy, would be wise to follow in the footsteps of the equally sorely-tried Jefferson, and give heed to the counsels of moderation."

The conclusion of his long and measured statement was a direct attack on the claim that the bill will mean a constant infusion of new blood into the judiciary. He held that it will mean, instead, "a court of 15 old men, instead of nine." He ended by suggesting that one needed constitutional amendment might well be one to "authorized declaratory judgment by the court, on request of the President."

In the House, meanwhile, Representative Jesse Wolcott (Republican), Michigan, blocked an effort to call up a bill carrying out one phase of the President's plan, a measure allowing the Department of Justice to intervene in cases involving constitutionality of Federal laws and thus to speed appeals to the Supreme Court.

Today's committee witnesses will be Charles C. Burlingham and James Truslow Adams, the historian.

bench during the Supreme Court controversy, paused in his reading of the written opinion long enough to thrust at the critics of his economic views:

"Our ideas are being influenced by social predilections. But they are so strong within us we cannot consider this a petty offense."

The justice, it was understood, was referring to a statement by Justice Stone in the New York minimum wage case last year. Stone had held that the majority opinion in this case was dictated by "personal economic predilections," a phrase that has since been picked up by President Roosevelt and proponents of enlarging the court by six new members when present justices do not retire upon reaching 70.

Justice Stone called attention to the sixth amendment of the Constitution guaranteeing to the accused the right of speedy and public trials by an importial jury, and to the seventh amendment preserving the right of jury trial in civil actions where the value in controversy exceeds $20.

He observed that the penalty inflicted by the police judge in the Clawans case is 15 times the minimum provided by the Constitution for trying civil suits without a jury.

"It seems permissable to inquire what will become of the other solemn declarations of the amendment," his opinion read. "Constitutional guarantees ought not to be subordinated to convenience, nor denied upon questionable precedents or uncertain reasoning. * * *

"This cause shows the grave danger to liberty when offenders must submit to the uncertain judgment of a single magistrate."

The decision in the police court case was the only opinion delivered in a courtroom crowded with spectators anxious to hear the court determine the fate of the Wagner labor relations act, as it was expected to do.

Five cases affecting the constitutionality of this major piece of New Deal reform are awaiting the court's decision, an action which is certain to have a far-reaching effect on the course of battle over President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan.

No opinion on the Wagner act can be delivered before next decision day, Monday, and, if not then, until April 26, due to a recess.

The majority opinion in the Clawans case was written by Justice Stone. While denying the defendant's contention that the District's jury law is unconstitutional, it did grant her a new trial.

"There must be a new trial," the court held, "because of the * * * restriction, by the trial judge, of cross examination" by the woman's attorney.

Literally hundreds of Police Court convictions hinged on the court's decision. Had the Supreme Court ruled with the Court of Appeals' holding that the law was unconstitutional, these would have been set aside and jury trials would have been required.

Counsel for the District in their brief had contended that 380 persons were charged with violations of the license law in 1935 and that jury trials in such cases "would seriously impede the effective administration of this and similar laws."

The proceedings involved a 1925 amendment to the District code prescribing trial before a judge for persons accused of violating an act of Congress for the District providing a maximum penalty of $300 or 90 days in jail.

"* * * We find it impossible to say that a 90-day penalty for a petty offense * * * does not conform to standards which prevailed when the Constitution was adopted, or was not then contemplated as appropriate, notwithstanding the constitutional guarantee of a jury trial," the majority declared.

Senator Norris Declares U. S. Won't Be Lured Into Next War

But Nebraskan Warns of Propaganda Peril on 20th Anniversary of Entrance Into World Conflict, Which He Opposed.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Norris, white-haired Nebraska Independent who voted 20 years ago against American entrance into the World War, predicted last night that this country would not become embroiled in "the next war."

His prophecy came in an interview on the eve of the twentieth anniversary of the United States declaration of war against Germany.

"I don't think they'll get us in another war," he said. "The Nation's memory of that conflict is still too fresh.

"Of course, they might stir up the Nation with propaganda for war—as they did 20 years ago—but I don't believe they will, or that they would be successful."

Norris said that if he had it all to do over again he would vote "no," and added:

"Entering the World War was the greatest mistake we ever made as a Nation. We got nothing from it. We didn't do anyone or any nation any good. And we and our children are still suffering from it."

While he expressed belief the odds are heavily against the United States engaging in another conflict, he urged precautionary legislation to prevent embroilment in the wars of other nations.

"To insure us against eventualities," Norris said, "we should have even more stringent legislation than the neutrality bills now before Congress. By going further than we have we might lose money and trade, but I prefer losing money than losing human life.

"If we could take the profit out of war we'd almost have a world of peace. The United States should prohibit the loaning of money to other nations for war, and shipping munitions of war. That's how we got into the World War.

"And we should provide for the Government to make all munitions of war and build all ships, with the idea of taking private profit out of war.

"Then wars might end, and God knows they never do good for any one.

Duce Threatens To Bolt Spanish Neutrality Bloc

'Flagrant Violations' of Accord by France Is Charged.

lishing accounts of purported French, Russian and Mexican intervention on behalf of the Spanish Loyalists.

United States Planes Mentioned.

The Giornale D'Italia, under the heading, "France's Flagrant Violations," said that from March 1 to 20 the Spanish Reds received 10 Russian Gorki airplanes, 4 Dutch Cookhoven fighters, 50 French and 35 Czechoslovakian planes.

The newspaper also charged that 10,000 revolvers destined for the Loyalists arrived at Marseille, France, on March 3, and that the Valencia government recently ordered 50,000 rifles and several light machine guns from Liege, Belgium.

Loyalist agents at Prague were described as negotiating for the purchase of 20,000 guns, and 50,000 rounds of ammunition. The newspaper also charged that several airplanes are awaiting shipment to Spain from Le Havre, France, and a loyalist representative is negotiating for purchase of 80 more.

It also was alleged that 21 American Bellanca bombing planes are awaiting shipment from Vera Cruz, Mexico.

Paris Visions "Retreat."

Paris, April 5 (AP).—Italian charges of French violation of the "hands off Spain" agreement were described in official circles tonight as part of an attempt by Premier Mussolini to "retreat with honor."

Officials, while maintaining it would be "useless to deny such allegations," expressed belief Italy sought to explain Spanish government victories by attributing them to help from France. They pointed out no war materials could be shipped from France without permission of the foreign office and ministry of the interior.

Await Official Charges.

London, April 5 (AP).—Officials tonight were inclined to believe Italian charges of French infractions of the Spanish neutrality accord would have to come from official sources rather than newspapers before they could be taken seriously.

"The nonintervention committee stands ready to receive information about any infraction of the agreement," said an informed source. "The committee would be glad to consider such charges provided they came from the Italian government itself and provided the Italian government is convinced they are true.

Rebels Renew Attacks.

Madrid, April 5 (AP).—Insurgents sought to resume th eoffensive today in two sharp attacks on the northern Guadalajara front where they have suffered successive defeats the last few weeks.

Both attacks were repulsed.

Although the Madrid defense chiefs were confident the attacks were not the signal of a much-heralded second insurgent campaign in Guadalajara, a new order for sharp vigilance was issued.

The southern government army continued its advance in Cordoba province and captured the village of La Granjuela. This opened a direct path for attack on the valuable Penarroya coal mines. A tsrong amry was advancing toward Burgos and Basques of the Bilboa area fought bitterly against Gen. Emilio Mola's insurgents.

Within the capital, police seized a store of bombs and arms in one of the principal markets and asserted they had broken up a plot to convert the market and a nearby hotel into an insurgent fortress.

The plan, police said, was for the asserted plotters to fire on government soldiers when Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent troops should enter Madrid. Twelve were arrested, including Ruiz Gonzalez, 33-year-old fish salesman whom police accused of inspiring the plot.

Rebels Advance.

Vitoria, Northern Spain, April 5 (AP).—Ochandiano, Basque srtonghold, and three villages fell before insurgent troops today in their drive toward Bilbao, capital of the Basque country.

An insurgent headquarters report said 600 government soldiers were killed and 400 Basques captured and sent to Vitoria. The day's swift offensive netted a gain of 3 miles, and put Gen. Mola's men only 6 miles from Durango, their immediate objective and key to the Bilbao defenses.

University Head Executed.

Valencia, Spain, April 5 (AP).—Official sources tonight reported the execution by Spanish insurgents of Dr. Leopoldo Alas, president of Oviedo University. They asserted he had been killed "soley because of his devotion to the republic and to intellectual liberalism" despite the intercession of intellectuals througout America and Europe.

The Spanish Embassy in Washington announced February 10 it had been advised by cable by the Spanish government that Dr. Alas had been sentenced to death by the insurgents.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

France Indicts De La Rocque, 5 Fascist Aides

Rightists Charged With Re-creating Outlawed Croix de Feu.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 5.—Col. Francois De la Rocque, in an address to the nation tonight, defied Premier Leon Blum to break up his French Social Party, which the government charges is the Nationalist Croix de Feu under a new name.

De la Rocque was indicted today with five of his aides on a charge of recreating the Croix de Feu, declared illegal by government decree.

Charging that Blum's was a "dictatorial government," De la Rocque asserted tonight his party, with a membership of more than 2,000,000, "cannot be destroyed nor suppressed."

Called a Fascist chief by the People's Front government, the colonel warned "we will continue to work no matter what happens."

He assailed the General Confederation of Labor, which last month called a half-day general strike in the Paris area in protest against Fascism, as responsible for his indictment.

The union leaders, De la Rocque said, forced Blu mto permit such action.

Still campaigning in the provinces for his new party, he spoke twice at small towns near Bourges on the eve of the indictment. Headquarters of the party received the announcement quietly.

The colonel engaged a legal staff to fight the case in the courts. Those indicted with him were Deputy Jean Ybarnegaray, leader of the De la Rocque faction in the Chamber of Deputies, and four lesser party chieftains.

The charges allege specifically that De la Rocque used the "Social" Party to continue the league. He was also charged with fostering disorders by ordering his followers to stage a counterdemonstration last October 4 to a Communist mass meeting in the Parc des Princes.

Many persons were injured when the meeting ended in rioting, halted only when police and mobile guards were sent into action.

Conviction on charges of re-creating the league would carry possible penalties of 15 days to 2 years imprisonment and a fine of from 16 francs (72 cents) to 5,000 francs ($225). The penalty for conviction of provoking disorders is one to three months in prison.

Peace by Trade Is Set by Hull As World Goal

Secretary Receives Wilson Award, Urges End of Tariff Barriers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull appealed tonight, as he accepted the award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation on the twentieth anniversary of this Nation's entry into the World War, for "a determined, and concerted effort to rebuild international political and commercial relationships."

"Animosities and resentment in the sphere of commercial and financial relations must bear an important share of responsibility for the depth of economic distress into which some nations have been plunged," he said, as he urged extension of the Government's present policy of substituting trade agreements for trade barriers.

From London, where an international sugar conference opened today, came word of a posible concerted world effort to combat barriers to trade.

Belgium Begins Survey.

Acting at the instigation of France and Britain, Belgium started a survey of European economic conditions with a view to exploring how it may prove possible to reduce international trade barriers in a manner Secretary Hull urged here.

"Out of economic distress springs temptation to seek a greater measure of self-sufficiency by force of arms," the Secretary told the Wilson Foundation.

"We have witnessed the spectacle of some nations, already in the throes of economic poverty, straining their meager resources for the creation of unprecedented armaments. The construction of such armaments gives the impression of intensive economic activity. But that activity has the unhealthy flush of fever. It destroys rather than builds. It sows the seeds of disaster, either in the form of a military explosion or an economic collapse."

"There is only one way to avert this impending doom. It is for the nations which today bend their major efforts toward preparation for war to join with those other nations that are intent on a policy of peace in a determined and concerted effort to rebuild international and political and economic relationships * * *.

"No outcome of an armed conflict can possibly bring the nations concerned greater benefits than they can derive from a peaceful and fruitful exchange of goods and services, developing in a liberal spirit upon a basis of fair dealing and mutual regard for each other's needs and rights.

"It was this type of economic peace that Woodrow Wilson urged upon the world. The acceptance by the nations of the basic ideas which underlie it is even more desperately needed today when the dark clouds of a possible new war or of another economic catastrophe gather ominously on the horizon."

U. S. Gave Signs.

Secretary Hull said the world's economic outlook brightened after the economic conference of 1927 at Geneva, but added that, "immediately following our national election of 1928 the dominant political and economic forces in this country embarked upon a drastic upward revision of our tariff rates and an extension of other trade restrictions."

"This process continued through the year 1929 and the early part of 1930. It served as a signal which unleashed the forces of extreme protectionism all over the world."

Referring to the growth of tariff barriers as "the war after the war," the Secretary asserted that "personally I am convinced that it was the most important single cause of the great depression."

Plaque Awarded.

The widow of Woodrow Wilson and the mother of President Roosevelt looked on as Hamilton Fish Armstrong, president of the foundation, presented to Secretary Hull the 15-inch bronze plaque engraved, "To Cordell Hull, Secretary of State of the United States, unremitting in his labor to remove the economic barriers to peace."

Others to whom the foundation has presented its award include Viscount Cecil, the late Elihu Root, and President Thomas G. Masaryk of Czechoslovakia.

Japan Seizes Cult Chiefs in Temple For Throne Insult

Osaka, Japan, April 5 (AP).—A dozen members of the religious cult called "The Human Way" were arrested today in a spectacular temple raid and charged with "a serious insult to the imperial throne."

A hundred policemen staged the raid after the cult's leader, Tokuichi Miki, had been questioned for six months concerning the sect that claims 100,000 followers.

It was understood the prisoners' offense consisted of denying the existence of three symbols of divinity handed down to the Emperor from the sun goddess in Japan's mythological times. The symbols are a sacred mirror, a sword and an imperial jewel.

The sect also repudiated the power of the famous Ise shrine, commonly regarded as Japan's most sacred spot.

The home ministry announced the sect, whose influence has spread throughout Japan, Korea and Formosa, will be suppressed as a menace to the throne, state and public morals.

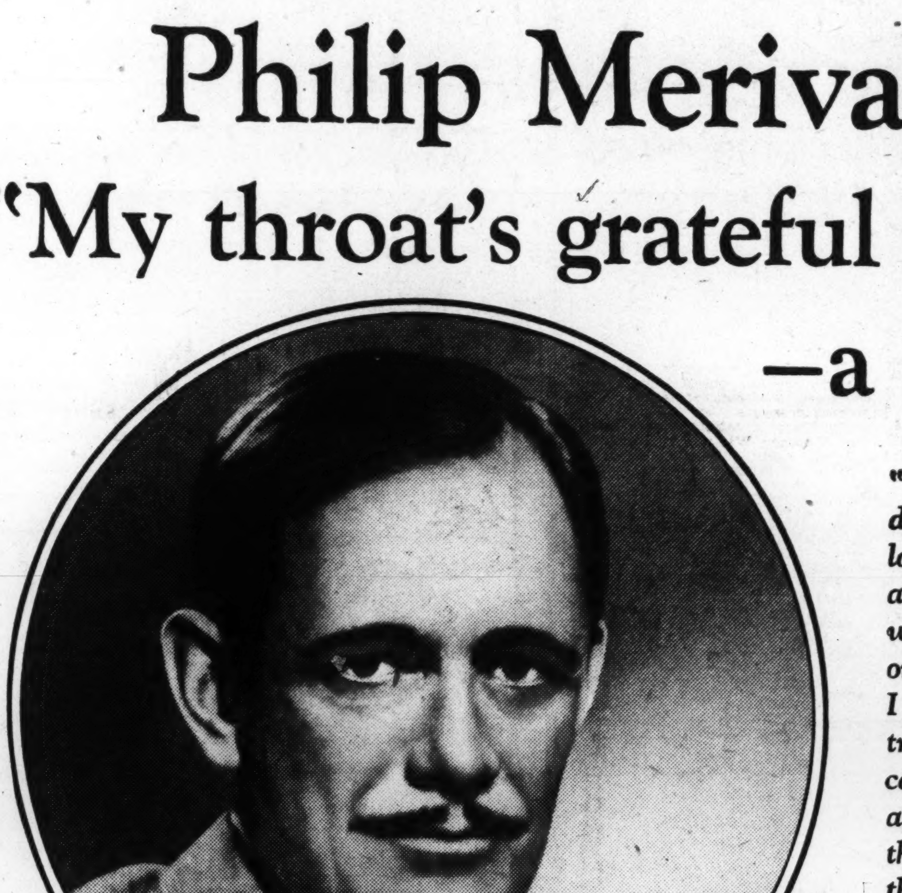
Philip Merivale says:

"My throat's grateful for Luckies —a light smoke"



"In one of the first important parts I did in America, the play called for a long and very trying individual performance. In every scene for five full acts I was on stage talking almost continuously. The strain made it imperative that I safeguard my throat and voice. After trying different brands of cigarettes, I came across Luckies. They stood the test and for many years now I've enjoyed them. I like the taste of Luckies and my throat is grateful for a light smoke."

Philip Merivale

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Merivale verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

Norment Estate Goes to Widow, Three Children

Niece, Others to Receive Shares of $1,800,000 Bequeathed.

Mrs. Lizzie S. Norment, widow of Clarence F. Norment, was named principal beneficiary of his $1,800,000 estate, it was learned in District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of his will was filed.

Norment left personal property, including cash, stocks, bonds, and other securities, valued at $1,520,000 and real estate with an assessed valuation of $299,400.

Mrs. Norment is to have the income from a $300,000 trust fund, and each of the three children, Ethel N. Alden, 1100 Michigan avenue northeast; Judith E. Norment Fuller, of the Chevy Chase Club, and Clarence F. Norment, jr., of Wardman Park, are to receive the income from $100,000 trust funds. Also the widow is to have $50,000 in cash.

Others who shared in the estate were Ida M. Walters, a niece, $10,000; George L. Starley, a friend, $10,000, and $1,000 each to the Society of Oldest Inhabitants and the Society of the Natives of the District of Columbia. In another provision Norment asked that a special trust fund of $150,000 be set up with the proviso that it be held for 15 years and then divided among grandchildren.

Nine Die, Many Hurt.

Atlanta, April 5 (AP).—Vicious spring storms hit the South today in a less destructive version of the April tornadoes which killed more than 450 persons just one year ago.

From Tennessee to Texas damaging wind and rains left their mark. At least nine deaths and a score or more injuries were chalked up against the weather along with toppled buildings, uprooted trees and disrupted power and communications facilities.

A Sunday gale capsized two boats and drowned six persons at Madina Lake, near San Antonio, Tex.

Alabama bore the brunt of today's storms.

A colored girl was killed in the wind-smashed houses in the colored section of Phenix City in East Central Alabama and two other colored persons died in a tornado which lashed Pike County further south in the same State.

More than 24 persons were hurt in the Alabama storms, six of them in the vicinity of the capital, Montgomery.

be sure of yourself with a clear SKIN from WITHIN

A SKIN that glows naturally bespeaks radiant health beneath ... it is alive ... stays fresh! So, be good to your skin from within and it will be good to you.

The reason for this is quite simple ... skin tissues must have an abundance of red-blood-cells to aid in making the skin glow ... to bring color to your cheeks ... to build resistance to germ attacks.

It is so easy for these precious red-blood-cells to lose their vitality. Worry, overwork and undue strain take their toll. Sickness literally burns them up. Improper diet retards the development of new cells. Even a common cold kills them in great numbers.

Science, through S.S.S. Tonic, brings to you the means to regain this blood strength within a short space of time ... the action of S.S.S. is cumulative and lasting.

Moreover, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite. Foods taste better ... natural digestive juices are stimulated and finally the very food you eat is of more value. A very important step back to health.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells ... to restore lost weight ... to regain energy ... to strengthen nerves ... and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel ... and have your friends compliment you on the way you look.

S.S.S Tonic is especially designed to build sturdy health by restoring deficient red-blood-cells and it is time-tried and scientifically proven.

At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The large size at a saving in price. There is no substitute for this time tested remedy. No ethical druggist will suggest something "just as good."

Germany Protests South African Ban

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, April 5 (AP).—Germany formally protested to the Union of South Africa today against a ban outlawing Nazi political units in Southwest Africa, the former Reich colony, governed by the British dominion under a League of Nations mandate.

A note of protest, handed to Prime Minister J. B. M. Mertzog by German Minister Wiehl, said the ban must be regarded as "a combative measure against Germans in Southwest Africa," asserting it was based on "unproved allegations."

What Are The Facts?

If the mass meeting held Sunday brings the local controversy on relief to a climax it will have served a very useful purpose. Apparently there is a wide difference of opinion as to the actual need for an emergency relief appropriation. In that event full discussion and the presentation of concrete facts should be encouraged on both sides.

As early as last October the Board of Public Welfare requested an additional appropriation of $835,000 for relief. Of this amount $630,000 would have been spent to care for the 3,000 men and women who are said to have neither jobs nor prospects of public aid. The Commissioners are known to have considered this request without taking action. An informal meeting between the City Fathers and the Budget Bureau left the situation unchanged.

It is not to be supposed that the Commissioners would thus remain inactive if they were convinced that an acute need for more relief funds exists. Mindful of the District's substantial deficit, they apparently have concluded that economy is more in the public interest than additional relief outlays.

A very different viewpoint was persuasively presented at the mass meeting on Sunday. Several leading citizens expressed indignation over the lack of funds for families who happen to be caught in the "twilight zone" between WPA workers, on the one hand, and unemployables cared for by the Board of Public Welfare, on the other. Coupled with the attitude of the Commissioners, that leaves the public in a great deal of confusion. Is there any shocking neglect of the unemployed in Washington? Has the situation become a disgrace to the city? What are the facts?

The mass meeting adopted a resolution appealing to Congress. If it can be shown that 3,000 families in Washington are on the verge of hunger and distress this petition will have the wholehearted support of the community. But a thorough investigation is obviously desirable. The sponsors of this movement could be most helpful if they would list the names and addresses of necessitous families.

Only through a factual survey of this sort can the extent of the need for more relief be definitely established. And if it can thus be shown that the Commissioners' apparent estimate of the situation is wrong, they will undoubtedly take the lead in demanding additional funds.

A Permanent CCC.

In requesting Congress to give a permanent status to the Civilian Conservation Corps President Roosevelt did not need to search for supporting arguments. He simply presented the record of the camps during their four years of fruitful activity. That story suggests that no New Deal agency has rendered more genuine service per dollar spent than the CCC.

Under the direction of Robert Fechner the CCC has served not one but many constructive purposes. Over a period of four years it has given healthful employment to 2,000,000 young men. Through them it has supplied $360,000,000 of well-earned wages to families in unquestionable need. It has greatly advanced the work of protecting and developing the Nation's forests and other natural resources. Many new recreational areas have been made available and numerous local problems, such as mosquito control, have been solved. Less tangible, but even more important, is its contribution to the rehabilitation of youths caught in the downward spiral of idleness, discouragement and want.

As recovery progresses there is less pressure upon the CCC as an emergency institution. But its achievements clearly indicate that it would have an important role as a permanent agency. Unemployment, especially among young men who have not had an opportunity to train themselves in any trade, will at best be very difficult to liquidate. And conservation of both natural resources and human character are problems that are always with us.

A permanent CCC would be able to carry on all the best traditions of the present organization with certain added advantages. The President has in mind an enrollment of not more than 315,000, so that costs will not become excessive and effective vocational training can be given where it is most needed. The latter activity would undoubtedly be a still more important objective of the permanent organization.

Various other advantages of permanency also are apparent. The CCC would be able to develop its present constructive co-operation with the United States Employment Service. This would assist development of the training function in occupations where the need for new workers is likely to be greatest. Likewise more definite arrangements could be made for the placement of CCC "graduates" whenever openings are available in private industry.

It may be found desirable, also, to establish a closer liaison between the CCC and the schools. The present attention to continuation of education for citizenship suggests that no opportunity of this sort will be overlooked if Congress decides that this two-fold conservation work shall be indefinitely continued.

Two World Conferences.

By an interesting coincidence the twentieth anniversary of America's entry into the World War today finds this country taking a leading role in two great international conferences.

Here in Washington we are playing hosts to the 23 nations represented at the World Textile Conference, opened last week with a message from President Roosevelt in which he emphasized the value of "free and frank discussion of the problems of the industry in a spirit of good will." Yesterday, in London, delegates of 22 nations gathered for the convening of the International Sugar Conference, at which Norman H. Davis, ambassador-at-large, is the American spokesman.

At a time when there is much cynicism over the results of American participation in the war these two conferences are particularly interesting. Both of them are held as a part of the normal program of the League of Nations, the technical work of which is much less disrupted by political setbacks than many assume to be the case. Without the Geneva technique of systematic international collaboration, developed largely as a result of our wartime participation, it is unlikely that either of these great discussion groups would be in session today.

The textile conference in Washington is essentially an examination, from a world viewpoint, of a great industry seriously disorganized and demoralized by post-war conditions. The conference has been called here, at the request of the United States Government, by the International Labor Organization, an autonomous arm of the League of Nations of which this counry is now an active member.

The sugar conference in London is equally a League conference, invitations to it having been extended by the World Economic Conference, called by the Council of the League to meet in London four years ago. The function of the present London gathering is also to examine the problems of an industry which was greatly upset by the general dislocation of the war. Both the current undertakings may properly be called stabilization conferences, since in both cases the major objective is attainment of a better balance between supply and demand, clearly in the interests of both producing and consuming nations.

The active role which the United States is playing in both meetings is an interesting commentary on the reality of that fancied American isolation which some would like to recapture on this anniversary of our entry into the World War.

Whether the subject in question be sugar, or textiles, or any of numerous other commodities which might be named, it is all too clear that present economic dislocation, adversely affecting us, sprang from the war itself—not from the fact that we were the belligerent in its later stages. Our entry did not pronouncedly accentuate the post-war problems which were inherent in the nature of that struggle. But the action of 20 years ago has made it easier for us to co-operate constructively in combatting the universal heritage of disorder.

Moreover the two current conferences, while rigidly confined to the technical problems of the two industries in their official direction and agenda, are obviously of broader general importance than the difficulties of either the textile or sugar industries.

The chaos, the fear, the pessimism abroad in the world today result primarily from the economic breakdown which the war engendered. Present political tensions have their root cause in economic difficulties. If the latter can be cleared away, and the task at best will be slow and laborious, the likelihood of another war—a suicidal war of utter desperation—will automatically diminish.

The subject of world peace will not be stressed, may not even be mentioned, either at the textile or the sugar conference. But the delegates to these two meetings will nevertheless be working for that end far more constructively than many a professional pacifist.

Indeed it is probable that these two technical conferences, and others like them, can be regarded as tests of the practicability of the disarmament conference which all would like to see reconvened, but which all know would fail dismally if it were attempted now.

The effort to achieve disarmament when there was widespread economic dislocation collapsed because it was an effort to fit a keystone into an arch without supports. Now there is intelligent concentration on the slow but rational procedure of attacking the most serious economic problems first. If they are handled successfully—and without undue delay—disarmament will for the first time since 1919 become a practical objective.

It is not without significance, also, that these two great conferences are being held away from the headquarters of the League of Nations. On the one hand it is helpful for people everywhere to see the League technique, so much criticized, so little understood, in actual operation.

On the other hand it is healthy to have some of these conferences undertaken in surroundings more robust than the rather rarefied and academic tranquillity of Geneva, where agreements readily achieved "in principle" have shown a marked tendency to remain unobserved in practice.

The Way To Insure Confidence.

No exception will be taken to the announcement of the Federal Reserve Board that it is prepared under certain conditions to buy Federal Securities for the account of Reserve Banks. But whether, from the long-range point of view, the intended action will serve a constructive purpose depends on how it is carried out. Even more will it depend on the fiscal policies pursued by the Administration.

What made such action necessary was, in part, the downward movement in Government bonds which set in on March 12. Although this decline has not been of major proportions, it was nonetheless having a depressing psychological effect on the market and was tending to make Government fiscal operations difficult. The Secretary of the Treasury's recent announcement, and now the Federal Reserve Board's statement, should help to restore confidence.

But any Government pegging of bond prices, like Government pegging of commodity prices, would if attempted serve only a temporary purpose and might even prove disastrous. One need but recall the ultimate folly of President Hoover's Farm Board efforts to keep the price of cotton at 17 cents, and its unhappy sequel, to understand the necessity of avoiding such a course. Fortunately Mr. Morgenthau has declared that the Treasury has no intention to peg Government bonds.

The essential need right now is to remove existing fears in the minds of holders of bonds, including Federal issues, concerning the ultimate consequences of the Government's policy of spending far beyond its receipts. Buying of Government securities by the Federal Reserve could hardly keep pace with increased Government borrowing. What is needed is prompt, courageous action in grappling with the problem of an ever-growing deficit.

Relic Of A Simpler Day.

Those who heard the English Singers on their repeated visits to the United States will recall their fascinating rendition of the forgotten street cries of "Old London."

In England of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries life was simpler than it is now. There was then no drowning out of the voices of the venders crying their wares in rhythms as varied as their habiliments. Nor had the deep-seated instinct for song been stifled by increasing sophistication.

In certain parts of the world street venders are still at it, their cries following age-old patterns, modified by individual variations. No visitor to the Orient but has been delighted by the singing of coolies to ease the monotony of their back-breaking labors. It is these songs, together with the street cries still heard in such fascinating profusion in Shanghai and other Chinese cities, that, some students of folk songs believe, inspired the sea chanties of the clipper ship days.

And in parts of the Old South song continues to be an unformalized human expression, as instinctive as the twitter of birds. Hawkers selling their wares, prisoners in chain gangs, Negroes at work and play—they all take to song.

It is fortunate, therefore, that two students of American folklore—Walter G. Garwick, of Rye, N. Y., and George Hibbit, of Columbia University—recently made an odyssey into the deep South to collect these stray songs. Equipped with sound-recording devices, their 20,000-mile tour through five States netted them a rich assortment of street cries as well as game songs, conjure tales, spirituals, prayers, singing sermons and work songs.

Simple and primitive as all of these are, some attain to dignity and beauty worthy of permanent preservation. Their disappearance in the more clamorous cities of the North is a distinct misfortune, for with them has gone much of the charm of a simpler and, it may be, happier day.

British Broadcasting.

From the Dallas Morning News.

Opponents of Government operation of broadcasting stations in this country frequently argue that the party in power would use the radio for political purposes, as is done in Germany, and would allow minorities no voice on the air. Perhaps this is a healthy fear, but in England the government-owned British Broadcasting Corporation has gained a remarkable attitude for fairness.

Philip Wagner, London correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, finds the British broadcasts "remarkably free of political or economic bias. The news broadcasts are succinct and entirely free of gratuitous opinion. They strike an American as being far more objective than news reporting as it is done in most of the British newspapers."

Like our broadcasting companies, the B. B. C. does, of course, have the usual rules against libel and obscenity. It censors strictly any slurs against national or racial groups and even barred a Welshman from saying that "a Welsh choir's preliminary cough is often the most musical part of its performance." It imposes some censorship to please Mrs. Grundy, but this goes no further than ours unless a King's lady friend is concerned.

Who Preserved The Union?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to reply to the letters in your columns by Mr. McCall and Mr. Loudun in which, directly and by implication, the North is posed as a Union preserver and the South as a Union destroyer.

In Mr. Roosevelt's Gettysburg address, after telling us of the patriotic work done by George Washington, in which the rights of every State and every section were equally safeguarded, he adds: "If our fathers and grandfathers had truly heeded the words of Washington, there would have been no family quarrel, no brothers' war, no battle of Gettysburg and no Appomattox." In this "family quarrel," harking back to the facts, which side is entitled to the honor of being called "Union preservers?"

First—What is the verdict of informed Northern writers on this subject:

Gamaliel Bradford: "The attempt of the North to maintain the Union was nothing but forcible conquest, and the surrender at Appomattox marked the most tremendous step, in the progression that had gone on from the beginning, to undermine the State governments and increase the power of the Federal."

Dr. A. W. Littlefield of Boston: "The South tried to divide the country; Lincoln saved it; that is the erroneous opinion in these parts still. The South, though defeated, really saved to America and the world all that was best in American nationality—the constitution of the Confederacy furnishes ample proof of that. . . . The historic fact is that the Northeastern States have nearly destroyed not only the Constitution, but also the fundamental American ideal of local self-government and a Federal Union, built upon State sovereignty."

Second, the verdict of informed Southerners:

Dr. Abernethy of the University of Virginia: "In the sectional crisis between the Northern and Southern groups of States, it is marvelous that the North can think that it alone was 'the Union.' The South was as much 'the Union' as the North with an equal right to be called the United States."

Dr. Landon C. Bell, Columbus, Ohio: "The claim that the Lincoln administration made war on the South to preserve 'the Union' is an unqualified untruth! The Union was the creature of the Constitution. The South accepted the Constitution, but the North did not. The Lincoln administration went into power with, and could not have gone into power without the support of those who repudiated the Constitution. . . . The Northern States made war upon the Southern States, not to preserve 'the Union,' for that would have involved a respect for the Constitution, but to keep the Southern States by brute force under the same government with the Northern States. . . . But a war in which the Constitution was violated and a revolutionized government created and forced upon the South, can by no strength of the imagination be truthfully called a war to preserve 'the Union.'

The Struggle For Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In letters to The Post, Ellen C. Burke insists that the Spanish Popular Front Government is a minority of the voting population. The figures she gives are incorrect as compared with those published in The Post and other papers a year ago. Even if they were correct, what does her conclusions prove? Nothing.

Several of our own administrations were elected by a minority of the total vote cast, one of them being that of Abraham Lincoln. This was due to more than two strong political parties in the field. The same thing can occur in any democratic nation. It is typical in Scandinavian nations because they do not discriminate against minority parties, as is done in most of our States today.

In the United States, the popular vote cast doesn't mean anything necessarily, because the electoral votes are what count. Though Mr. Landon polled some 17,000,000 votes he received only a handful of electoral votes, those of Maine and Vermont. The electoral college should have been abolished by constitutional amendment long ago, because it is undemocratic.

In Spain a similar situation exists. The Cortes (Parliament) elects the president and he thereupon forms the government from a coalition of parties which support the government. President Azana, Left Republican, was elected by a substantial majority of the Cortes and he appointed a Socialist (not a "red") premier, Mr. Caballero. In the previous election the Fascists had led, but the people repudiated them a year ago in a popular election. This angered both Fascists and the Monarchists, so they staged a violent revolution against the democratically-constituted government, with aid of foreigners, the Italians and Germans. Had they, the Fascists and Monarchists, co-operated in the election, they might have won. But they refused to do this. So they were not numerically strong enough in Parliament to form a government. Instead of "taking it on the chin" as political parties do in this country when they are in the minority, the Fascists and Monarchists became rebels and used violence to overthrow the duly-elected regime. In other words, they used communistic tactics, so we should look at them in the same light, if we are consistent and really believe in democracy.

Now, what is, the declared purpose of Gen. Franco and his rebels with their Moorish and foreign troops from Italy and Germany? It is to overthrow the Spanish government and its really progressive constitution, abolish all semblance of democracy and elections, and substitute a Fascist dictatorship. In other words, what they failed to do in the election they are now trying to do by revolution.

Communists in Spain are far less numerous than Miss Burke supposes. The danger to democracy is not from "Reds" but from the Fascists and Monarchists who have always been bitterly opposed to democratic principles of any kind. Mussolini and Hitler are both on record as ridiculing all democratic institutions everywhere. Despite their dictatorial rule, they have not solved a single problem of their people. This is evidenced by the fact that they now threaten with words and increased armaments every nation having democratic ideals.

We should face facts as they are, and not substitute fiction. We should read all sides, for that way lies truth. Democracy if real, must consider carefully and in an unprejudiced way, conditions as they are today. If the Communists support the Spanish democratic government, it merely shows that they have recognized their past mistakes in opposing democratic institutions, and they should be commended for this virtue, whatever mistakes they have made in the past.

Soviet Russia no longer threatens any other nation. She has changed her tactics entirely, both as to domestic and foreign policies. If the Fascists would also change their tactics to a support of democratic institutions, the writer believes they should also be commended. Thus far they have not admitted their mistakes, or changed their tactics. They still claim that "democracy is a stinking corpse." If so, who made it so? Mussolini and Hitler. But that does not make it a corpse outside of Fascist-Nazi nations!

The Anti-Lynching Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Various attempts have been made to pass Federal legislation to abolish lynching. The principle underlying the proposed legislation is corporate responsibility. In brief, it seeks to fine the county or State in which a lynching occurs.

In the Orient, where the family is the unit of society, it is possible to remedy such evils by holding a community responsible for the overt actions of individuals dwelling within it; however, among a people where the individual has been the unit of society from time immemorial any attempt to place the responsibility and punishment for the perpetration of a crime upon an innocent group instead of the person or persons actually concerned therein is bound to meet with failure.

It must be borne in mind that the Federal Government is one of limited powers. It was created by the will of the people. All legislation must conform to the nature of the people and type of government for which it is designed. In a government of limited powers such as ours one cannot make a law on anything that he pleases and expect the people to obey it. The reform must come from within the body politic through moral growth. Any attempt to solve the problem of lynching through the enactment of Federal legislation is highly impractical for the following reasons:

(1) No congressional representative from a State in which lynching occurs could vote for an anti-lynching bill and return home to live. It would be political suicide for him because he must conform to the will of his constituents. He is elected to represent them. If they are opposed to an anti-lynching bill there is very little that he can do about it.

(2) As our Constitution now stands it is positively an invasion of State rights. After all the United States is a republic of States.

(3) There is practically no chance for such legislation to be passed by a Democratic Congress.

(4) The President would probably veto it because a solid South is a necessary keystone in the political set-up of the Democratic Party.

(5) Even if such a law were passed it could not be enforced against the will of the people.

Every individual of sound mind will admit that lynching is a great moral wrong. It is unfortunate that the moral and the political have nothing in common. It seems to me that a remedy is to be found by going to that power which created the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the Government rather than through legislative action of a questionable character.

Strikes Vs. Property Rights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I usually let others do the shouting, but there has been so much yelling lately about "sit-down strikes," the Supreme Court, etc., that I finally had to put my oar in too, just to relieve the tension.

All kinds of laws have been nullified because they were supposed to infringe on these rights. One would think that the whole Constitution was built around this principle. It is only in the fifth amendment that property is mentioned at all, and then only casually in connection with the rights of a citizen accused of crime. I am sure that those who put that little clause in had no idea that it would become the most important part of the whole Constitution, and that it would ever be used as a club to keep 40,000,000 workers and their families from making a decent living.

There is nothing in the Constitution which defines what shall constitute private property. It does not state that a few people shall have the right to fence in all the land in the country and claim it as their property, with all the means of production and distribution, and that the majority of the people must beg them for a chance to make a living.

All the workers can think of is to strike, which causes losses all around, and if they ever get a little more money or shorter hours they soon have to pay higher prices for their necessities.

Some Dope About Eph.

EPH and I were shingling the roof of a barn we were turning into an office building. While we worked I encouraged him to talk, and while he talked my mind sometimes wandered to other things.

A man who moves around a bit picks up a pronunciation here, an accent there, an inflection somewhere else, until at last his speech has a rhythm and a tune all its own. And one of the first things he learns in his travels is that "good English" is the language spoken in the place he happens to be and that all other manners of speech are dialects.

We all have our little peculiarities. I have had attention drawn to mine. The trouble I have with "r," for instance, save when it is initial, is very noticeable in Pennsylvania, but less noticeable in Maryland. I can, when I have a mind to, give it a Scotch burr, but ordinarily I ignore the little cuss, treating it with silent contempt. When I say "word" or "work" I find it easier to say "wo'd" or "wo'k" than "wor-r-rd" or "wor-r-rk," but a happy medium is something I am wholly unable to achieve.

But am I downhearted? No. High or low, we have our weaknesses. I notice that when Windsor made his memorable radio abdication speech he made "throne" rhyme with "brown"—or so it seemed to me.

Perhaps this is why I have sometimes thought it a little unfair to Eph to transcribe his remarks phonetically. At least he talks with as much sense as many a man with more education.

But, on the other hand, you can't possibly properly appreciate Eph unless you get his manner of speech. His contempt for "r" (ah!) is even greater than mine. Thus "through" becomes "th'oo." And he coins words, mostly to the one pattern. The garden after rain becomes "mushified" and the kitchen floor, as a result, is apt to become "messified." The trees are gummyfied and the woods sobbified (soggy). And things mixed up (like his English) would be (believe it or not) "all jibleyfied."

Once in a while I get jolted. When I heard Eph say, "Is you is or is you ain't?" I am no longer sure the locution is natural. It may be joyous mimicry, for pretty nearly everybody nowadays has a radio.

And literacy has its drawbacks. When Eph tells me a yarn that has all the earmarks of an old folk story I am never quite certain that he didn't get it from the syndicate columns of one of the county newspapers. I feel reasonably sure about this one, though, for Eph had very evidently told it many, many times.

"Mistah Wolf he one day go a-fishin'," said Eph, "an' Mistah Rabbit he thought he like to go fishin', too. So he do, but he don' have no luck. But Mistah Wolf he get a lot o' fish an' go off wiv it in his basket. So Mistah Rabbit he run ahaid an' lay hisse'f down in the middle of the road, an' bimeby Mistah Wolf he come along an' kick him out o' the way. Mistah Rabbit he wait till Mistah Wolf go roun' the cornah 'en he git up an' run ahaid an' lays down in the road again. An' along come Mistah Wolf an' kick him away f'm dah. En Mistah Rabbit he run ahaid agin an' Mistah Wolf he say to hisse'f, 'Well, heah's one rabbit, an' back away they's anothah, an' fu'ther back anothah. Guess I'll get me a mess o' rabbits as well as a mess o' fish.' So he put his basket down an' go back. En up jumps Mistah Rabbit an' run off wiv the basket o' fish. An' Mistah Wolf he don' fin' no rabbits an' he ain' got no fish nuther. So he 'flected awhile an' he figger Mistah Rabbit fool him. So he go to Mistah Rabbit's house an' knock at the do'. 'Who's da?' Mistah Rabbit yell. 'This yere's Mistah Wolf, an' I comes to inqure about some fish.' 'Ain' no fish of yours yere,' say Mistah Rabbit. An' then he say to his wife, 'Turn that one ovah, ole woman. H'm! Ain' he nice an' brown!' An' all Mistah Wolf got of his fish was the smell."

I'm always interested in the maxims Eph quotes—"What'll fatten you won' kill you" and the like; and usually apply the necessary grain of salt to the stories he recites as facts:

Does you know Evan Britten? When he was in the ahmy camp the officer say to him. "Saddle my hoss." So he do, but he put the saddle on backward. An' the officer he say, "What fo' you do it thataway?" An' Britten he say, "Ah didn' know which way you goin'."

Britten he got a girl an' he get Ab Pearson to write to her fo' him, cos he can't write hisse'f. "Jes' give her my love," he say to Pearson. So Pearson say, "That's down. What else?" Britten he scratch his haid an' say, "Give her my love again." So Pearson writ it down again, and say, "What else?" An' Britten he scratch his haid again an' he say, "Oh, well, give her my love some mo'. The Lawd he knows it won't hurt her."

Britten was mighty fond of whisky, an' when he had money he din' drink alone. One day he say to Pearson. "Ab," he say, "all day I buy drinks fo' Coke an' now Coke drinks wiv these other people an' I gits none. Tomorrow when I feels better I come here an' pick a fight wiv him." An' Ab say, Huh! You isn't big enough. He's bigger'n me even." An' Britten, he say, "Well, you be here. An' when I waver an' make a pass at him, you hit him!"

Did you ever happen to hear the word "waver" used in that sense before? I never did.

The Farmer.

BY WHAT STRANGE kink do you suppose it came about that city people the world over assumed a supercilious attitude toward the farmers who raise all the food we eat, except fish, and the clothes we wear in such stylish superiority? How came we to adopt as terms of disdain such words as hick, bumpkin, oaf, yokel, rube, rustic sod buster, hay shaker and plow jockey.

Don't tell me, I can guess. We got that way a long time ago when the farmer was a chattel on the land and the people in the cities were rulers, traders and manufacturers.

The rulers lived in luxury and style, and the urban people around them began to ape their fancy manners and pretty soon they got an idea that anybody who pushed a plow through the soil and spent the days bent over picking insects off the parsley was a sucker and none too bright to work so hard for so little. There was something in that, no question, although most city people were not too smart, either, for they, too, worked hard and long and lived badly in congested quarters, and still do.

Yet even the poorest of the city people somehow regard themselves as being one or more cuts above the farmer, and the word itself is sometimes used as mild opprobrium. And, of course, the prosperous members of the city population, not only in this country but everywhere, feel conscious of a great superiority over the men and women whose work in the fields alone enables them to live. Literally that, because if there were no farmers the city people would go naked and starve, although it should be said that experiments in nakedness in our cities have caused no distress to date.

* * * *

I HAVE NEVER SEEN it happen, so well has the idea been woven into the social decorum of the cities, but if a farmer should appear in his farmer's working clothes—which is to say his overalls—with mud on his shoes and surrounded by his own atmosphere of honest B. O. at one of our stylish hotel restaurants or night clubs, where evening dress is desired, he would be headed off at the door and not even permitted to check his hat. He would not be allowed to intrude his presence on people gathered to eat the food and drink the liquor of his raising off tablecloths raised by farmers.

They wouldn't like him any unless they happened to be pretty well along in their drams, in which case they might spontaneously decide to clown him around in a derisive way with the orchestra playing "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Thinking," or "This Is the Life." And then they would charge him half as much for a small sheet of steak as he received for a whole cow on the hoof, including antlers, and as much for a few sprigs of asparagus as he could get for a crate of it at the loading platform.

Maybe this is two farmers, because I believe they are specialists now and do not raise meat and truck on the same acres. I once saw an $8 steak on the menu of a hotel in Washington, when a complete cow, alive and able to moo, could be had for $5.

* * * *

OF COURSE, THE FARMER himself is not as independent as he used to be. He used to know how to make his own leather and cloth, shoes and candles, or if he didn't, then someone in the neighborhood did, and he got along by trading around—a system which Mahatma Upton Sinclair tried to revive in California a few years ago.

But in case of necessity he could recapture these knacks in a short time, and meanwhile at least he would eat, which is something the city couldn't do but for him unless the city were content to go it on caviar, lobster and cod. The city could make do with stuff out of cans for a little while, but it seems that the stuff in the cans comes off the farms originally—an alarming discovery.

A very ingenious fellow is the farmer. He sticks some seeds in the ground, and pretty soon—What ho—here's wheat for breakfast or spinach for the baby or corn for whisky. If he wants milk he turns on the cow, and if it's bacon or hamburger that he craves for dinner he takes one of his pets out behind the barn and rolls his own.

He can get along without us, but we need him every hour, and yet we call him names. I hope he never gets out of temper.

Sleep, my little darlings, sleep!
May the angels vigil keep;
We must get, the way it looks,
Some one else to keep the books.

Rest, my babies, oh, so sweet!
Fifty toes and ten pink feet!
What a joy to have around . . .
(And financially so sound!)

Croon, my little babies there!
Do not mind it if I stare? . . .
Never have I seen, I think,
Wealth so fresh, so young and pink!

Smile my little cherubs, smile,
As I gaze at you a while;
Radiant as the noonday sun——
(Quick, oh Bradstreet! Quick, oh Du

Gurgle, gurgle, happy dears——
Let me pinch your toes and ears;
In each cheek a dimple's dent . . .

Shriek, my darlings; I should care
If the neighbors tear their hair;
Who wouldn't shout and yell and cheer
After such a fiscal year?

Shake your rattles as you will!
This is no time to be still;
You've a right to joy, my pet . . .

Symbols of the home and glory
Roses from some bowered court

Gonorrhea Specific

Dr. Anwyl-Davies Perfects Serum for Cure of Social Disease.

A specific cure for gonorrhea, elusive goal of medical science for 2,000 years, was described here yesterday by Dr. T. Anwyl-Davies, venereal disease director of St. Thomas' Hospital, London.

An antitaxin prepared from the blood of infected horses has cured between 60 and 70 per cent of the more than 200 persons to whom it has been administered, Dr. Anwyl-Davies reported.

Speaking before the annual conference of State and Provincial Health Officers of North America, he presented his findings to a medical group for the first time via the platform. Previously, his only discussion of the discovery, which promises to revolutionize treatment of one of the world's most common and crippling diseases, was in a technical paper published February 13 in the British Medical Journal.

Describes Research.

At the conference, held in the United States Public Health Service building auditorium, the English expert described his research and conclusions in brief. In a subsequent interview with The Post, however, he disclosed details of his experimentation with the serum.

Dr. Mervyn Gordon, British serologist, ha shailed the antitoxin as the greatest discovery in venereal research since Ehrlich gave the world salvarsan, or 606, for treatment of syphilis more than a quarter century ago.

Since beginning work with the antitoxin three and a half years ago, Dr. Anwyl-Davies has treated more than 200 patients of St. Thomas' and other hospitals in the Greater London area. Although the serum was an unknown quantity, therefore possibly dangerous to the sufferer, there have been no fatalities and very few reactions that might be called alarming, it was explained.

No Hospitalization.

Unlike fever therapy, by which the gonorrhea sufferer is placed in a cabinet for hours at a time, the administration of this antitoxin does not require hospitalization of the patient.

He—or she—merely comes to the clinic and receives a painless needle injection. The usual dose is one cubic centimeter, the patient receiving one treatment a day. Dr. Anwyl-Davis said it has effected cures in ten days.

He chose all types of cases. For example, of 157 men treated, 42 were free from complications and the rest were suffering from arthritis, conjunctivitis and other afflictions caused by the gonococcus.

Among this group the antitoxin had "excellent" results in 49.6 per cent of the total; "good," 26.9 per cent; "fair," 14.8, and "bad," 5.9. Clinical relapses occurred in only 6.6 per cent of the cases.

Observed Three Months.

Patients whose symptoms were abolished by the serum were kept under observation at least three months before Dr. Anwyl-Davies pronounced them "cured."

"Cures" in 36 acute, uncomplicated cases in men took anywhere from 16 days to 8 weeks. In treating gonoccal arthritis sufferers, pain and swelling frequently disappeared within a few days, sometimes after the first injection. Cures, whether the cases were acute or chronic, took from 3 to 40 weeks.

The discoverer had American aid in his discovery, the antitoxin itself having been prepared by the Parke, Davis & Co. laboratories. In his laboratory procedure, Dr. Anwyl-Davies was assisted by Dr. N. S. Ferry and Dr. Stanley White, of the firm.

To produce the curative agent, the poison manufactured by the germ which causes gonorrhea is "shot" into the bloodstream of a horse.

"It makes the animal quite sick, you may be sure," explained the 46-year-old venerologist, who has studied venereal diseases for 21 years.

Builds Up Resistance.

The horse builds up a resistance to the disease and his blood provides the serum for treatment of the human sufferer. Injected into the patient, the antitoxin neutralizes the poisons of the gonococcus germ and creates not only a passive but an active immunity, according to Dr. Anwly-Davis.

This does not mean, he made clear, the serum may be used to prevent gonorrhea, as vaccination guards against smallpox or toxoid against diphtheria.

Summarizing his experiments and conclusions, he stated:

"The results obtained with this experimental gonococcus antitoxin have been distinctly encouraging.

"Acute and chronic cases, complicated and uncomplicated, respond equally well, which is in marked distinction to other biological preparations hitherto available.

"Reactions and results indicate that this antitoxin possesses specific therapeutic properties; properly regulated controls confirm this.

"Clinical evidence suggests that active as well as passive immunity is established.

"Sufficient data are available to indicate that a remedy for the treatment of gonorrhea has been evolved which offers considerable promise."

Studied All "Cures."

Dr. Anwyl-Davies has studied every known treatment of gonorrhea, including fever therapy, and found all of them wanting until he developed the antitoxin.

He thinks America has been late in starting to crusade against venereal diseases but, now that it is on its way, effective results will be obtained far more speedily here than in England. This, he said, is largely because the press on this side of the Atlantic is doing far more to educate the public than the English newspapers.

Although England has achieved encouraging success in combating syphilis since the World War, the daily newspapers still shun the subject, he asserted. The first and only mention of it in his memory, he said, occurred a few months ago when the News Review, a London weekly, commented on the article by U. S. Surgeon General Thomas Parran, which appeared last summer in Readers Digest.

One of the American broadcasting chains offered Dr. Anwyl-Davies $5,000 for a 30-minute broadcast on venereal disease control, but he had to reject it because acceptance would have meant virtually professional ostracism in England, he declared.

First Visit to U. S.

This is his first visit to the United States. He arrived in New York last Wednesday. The rough crossing on the Bremen resulted in many of his lantern slides being smashed. After leaving Washington he will lecture in Rochester, Toronto and other cities.

He will return to England after the coronation next month. He would prefer to leave earlier, but says he cannot book passage, every outgoing liner being packed with Americans headed for the crowning of King George VI.

Lack of home life in this country is partly responsible for its alarmingly high venereal disease toll, he believes. The greatest cause of the spread of syphilis, he thinks, is the cervical chancre in the female because it is painless and hidden. The woman is infected without knowing it until distressing signs appear weeks, months or even years later when hope for cure is remote.

He told the assembled health officers that his country has reduced incidence of venereal diseases by providing numerous clinics which are open all day and every day and whose services are free.

Papal Golden Rose Presented toQueen

Rome, April 5 (AP).—Queen Elena of Italy today was presented formally with the golden rose, a token of Pope Pius' recognition of her pious work.

An official of the papal court presented the gift in the Paoline Chapel of the Quirinal Palace. A papal brief addressed to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy accompanied the rose, citing the queen's piety, charity and excellence as a mother. The brief used the titles of Emperor and Empress of Ethiopia nine times.

Present for the ceremony were the King, Crown Prince Umberto, Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, Marshal Pietro Badoglio and presidents of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies. The King and Queen are expected to visit the pontiff within a week to thank him for the gift.

$15,000 Is Paid To 129 D. C. Blind

During the year ending March 1 more than $15,000 in social security grants were paid to 129 District blind persons, the Board of Public Welfare reported yesterday.

Of all the States reporting to the social security board, only two showed fewer blind persons per total population than did Washington. Here, however, only 20 out of every 100,000 received grants. The average for all States was 50 out of each 100,000.

The board estimated there are 568 blind persons in the District. Of these, applications for grants were received from 288. Seventy were denied or withdrawn, and at the close of the year 102 were pending.

King of Danes Shaken As Horse Shies, Falls

Copenhagen, April 5 (AP).—King Vhristian of Denmark was shaken up today when his horse fell while the ruler was taking his daily ride through the capital.

The King was replying to the salute of a motorist when the animal shied and fell. Part of its weight fell on the monarch's leg.

Malaria Killed 4,310 in 1936, Conferees Told

Control Lies in Drainage, Carnegie Man Says at Health Meeting.

Although more is known about malaria than almost any other disease, it claimed 4,310 lives and was responsible for 137,502 cases of sickness in this country last year, the annual conference of State and provincial health officers of North America was told yesterday.

The speaker was Dr. William B. Brierly, geographer of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, who made a survey of the occurrence and distribution of diseases in the Western Hemisphere.

The United States has only one known malaria-carrying mosquito, compared to six varieties in Europe and 13 in India, Dr. Brierly reported. If marches, swamps and stagnant pools were drained, the control problem would be solver, he said.

Travel Complications.

Increasing use of hospitals and the growing migratory habits of the American people, the latter typified by the trailer craze, are complicating matters for the public health statistician, a Federal expert reported to the conference at its opening session in the U. S. Public Health Service building.

Dr. Halbert L. Dunn, of the Census Bureau, pointed out that ordinarily the death rate for a city or country is computed by dividing the number of deaths by the total population.

However, the picture is distorted if one counts the deaths in hospitals of persons who came from outside the city, or transient residents, the speaker pointed out.

"On the other hand," said Dr. Dunn, chief statistician in the vital statistics division, "it is important to include among the deaths for that area those of residents who have temporarily gone elsewhere."

800 Nonresidents.

In 1935, for instance, 800 of the 8,483 deaths reported in the District of Columbia were of nonresidents. In a preliminary study of 18 States, it was found that 22 per cent of those dying from tuberculosis died in a city in which they were not residents. Of those dying from auto injuries, 34.9 per cent were outsiders.

"As a cause of bodily illness, mental stress and misery, gonorrhea has few equals and its control must take its place with cancer, tuberculosis and acute rheumatism among the medical problems of this or any age," Dr. Ambrose King told the conference.

A member of the staff of London (England) County Council clinic, he urged health officers to apply themselves in every way possible to curb the disease, which is three to four times as prevalent as syphilis both in England and the United States.

Research Facilities.

"The future solution," he said, "is dependent upon improved facilities for research work and for treatment and upon the attraction of selected general practitioners into the field. The formidable mental barrier of public fastidiousness and, in sharp contrast, the morbid interest of many individuals can only be surmounted by skilful and persistent propaganda."

Dr. R. R. Spencer, chief of public education activities of the Public Health Service, told how the Federal Government is using the radio, newspapers, magazines and other means to spread the gospel of disease prevention and cure among health officers and laymen alike.

Other speakers yesterday were Dr. F. W. Jackson, who spoke on control of infantile paralysis in Manitoba, Canada; Dr. James A. Tobey, who discussed the courts' consistent support of milk control laws; A. V. Rohweder, of the National Safety Council; Dr. Rufus Cole, of Rockefeller Institute; Dr. G. F. Amyot, whose subject was health conditions of Vancouver, B. C., and Dr. R. H. Riley, Maryland State health director.

Davies Returns, Enthusiastic on Post in Russia

New York, April 5 (AP).—The American Ambassador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies, and Mrs. Davies returned home today aboard the liner Queen Mary enthusiastic over his diplomatic post and the Soviet Union.

"Russia has be na fascinating and stimulating experience," said the Ambassador. "It is a tremendous laboratory, in which one of the greatest experiments in government is being projected.

"They are doing extraordinary things. The leaders of their government are exceptionally able, earnest, hard-working and strong men and women.

"Naturally European experience causes one to be deeply grateful for the blessings of our own system of government," Mr. Davies said.

He said he expected to report to the State Department, attend to some private business and return to Moscow about June 1, after attending the coronation ceremonies in London next month.

Court Rules Pepco Must Pay D.C. Tax

A tax of $45,303.84 levied by the District Government on the Potomac Electric Power Co. for revenues derived from the sale of electricity in nearby Maryland towns will have to be paid, the District Court of Appeals held in an opinion handed down yesterday by Associate Justice Charles H. Robb.

The company had protested the assessment on the ground the tax was in effect an interstate commerce tax and as such was not enforceable.

The Appellate Court ruled the tax was a franchise tax measured by gross earnings from within the District and without the District, and was properly subjected to levy by Congress. Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal and two assistants, Hinman D. Folsom and Raymond Sparks, appeared for the District in opposition to the power company's move to nullify the assessment.

20 Years After

Dregs Of Disillusionment.

THE TWENTIETH anniversary of our entrance into the World War is being observed in a sombre mood. The bubble of high hopes aroused by America's intervention in the European conflict has long since been pricked. On the subject of the war and its aftermath, the attitude of the people of the United States is now one of bitterness and disillusionment. A striking indication of this is that seven out of ten queried by the Institute of Public Opinion, as last Sunday's Post revealed, now feel it was a tragic mistake for this Nation ever to have abandoned its neutrality in 1917.

Not hard to find are the reasons for this disillusionment, with its clear implications that the American lives that were sacrificed, the treasure that was spent with so lavish a hand, the enormous efforts that were exerted, were largely in vain.

These reasons are writ large across the contemporary scene. They constitute America's morbid reaction to the disturbing spectacle of present world trends.

* * * *

IT IS A WORLD whose terrifying realities are a mockery of the dreams of 1917. Despite the "war to end war" the gates of Janus are again ajar. To many, Spain is but the bloody rehearsal for another such spectacular orgy of bloodletting and destruction as occurred between 1914 and 1918.

Despite our efforts to "make the world safe for democracy," the democratic principle has been trampled under foot in more than one of the victorious nations. And the dictatorships erected on the "bloated corpse of Liberty," to use Mussolini's phrase, are far more ruthless, because less scrupulous and more efficient, than the autocracies of the past.

As for the "new world order" which the war was to bring into being, it is no glamorous castle in which peace and justice are enshrined, but a foul nest of fear, passion and greed.

The beautiful damsel we set out to rescue 20 years ago has proved, in the opinion of the rescuers, only a repellant ogre.

* * * *

THE FAIRY TALE simile is by no means out of order. On the contrary it is perfectly descriptive of the subjective unrealism which has dogged our thinking from 1917 to the present time.

Twenty years ago we went to war with Germany because we had been attacked and because we did not propose to submit to such attacks any longer.

It is really beside the point to argue that we should not have gone to war whatever the provocation. That argument may be sound although there is no way of proving, or for that matter, disproving it. But obviously we did not then possess the hindsight we now claim to have. Nor was the American Nation in 1917 in the same mood of disillusionment and defeatism that is the case at the present time.

We acted in 1917 in the same manner as we had acted in the past, as all other nations with any pretensions to importance had acted from time immemorial. But we were not content with the simple reflex action of fighting back when attacked. The World War was not a war of armies as past wars had been; it was a war of peoples. Because it was that it was necessary to clothe the bloody business in the sacred garments of a crusade.

* * * *

THIS CIRCUMSTANCE, true not only for the United States but for all nations engaged in the war, explains our disillusionment. It also explains why that disillusionment is to no small extent naive.

Because the war had been transformed into a crusade it was necessary to inflame the passions of the populace to fever heat and arouse their hopes to great heights. These two emotions of hope and hate were in conflict. But while, so far as we were concerned, the hates were quickly satiated, we took the position that somehow the hopes would be automatically fulfilled.

Instead of viewing the problems of peace and of democratic survival in the world as continuing problems we felt, after the Armistice, that we had done our duty by peace and by democracy and let it go at that.

In other words, we considered America's role as that of a midwife rather than a mother. We had helped in the delivery of the "new world order." But from 1919 until the present we have refused to accept any responsibility for the upbringing of what soon proved a sickly infant. Yet now we complain that because the infant is sick it was a sorry day for us when we assumed the responsibility for helping bring the brat into the world.

* * * *

WE CAN ARGUE, of course, and with some justice that those into whose care we placed that infant proved poor foster parents. That may be. But it does not relieve us of the failure of having done nothing or next to nothing for it ourselves.

To abandon the simile, there can be no denying that the peace system established after the war and largely through our efforts was faulty in many particulars; that it contained many evils. But it is certainly open to question whether these evils would have flourished as they have done during these last years had we, in the period after 1919, actively and continuously taken the position that the aims we so ardently professed during the war had to constitute the bases of our policy in peace time as well.

The fact of the matter is that peace and the survival of the democratic ideal, which can only flourish in a world at peace, remain our concern whether we realize it or not. The feeling that we can somehow insulate ourselves against the consequences of another world upheaval, by laws or otherwise, is a product of sheer ignorance of world conditions and our relation to them. So also is the feeling that it is of no concern to us whether or not the festering spirit of totalitarianism spreads in the world.

Indeed we are much more safe from an armed invasion than from an invasion of ideas and philosophies destructive of the fundamentals of our own democratic way of life. Should democracy go under in the few corners left to it in western Europe does anyone imagine that American democracy will not suffer from such a collapse? And since nothing is clearer at the present time than that totalitarianism means war, a shrinkage in the world's democratic area means a heightening of the forces making for war—with its vastly evil consequences for us and for all other peoples of the world.

In the retrospect of 20 years it is clear that while we won the war our battle for peace was lost by default the moment the bloody phase was over. And having lost that battle our participation in the war itself now appears to us a mockery. The real mockery, however, lies in the circumstance that had we expended in the preservation of peace half the energy and idealism we devoted to the prosecution of war, there might today be no occasion for disillusionment.

Diplomats

By William Lyon Phelps.

A Young Country.

Stimulating conversation is one of the real pleasures of life, and I shall not soon forget an evening I spent with Prof. Clarence Manning, of Columbia University; for, after varied discussion of life and contemporary literature, he told me that one day the Countess Margit Bethlen, wife of Count Stephen Bethlen, former Premier of Hungary, said to him that the United States of America had no really great Ambassadors to foreign countries, and could not have, because a young country cannot produce great diplomats. Quite naturally he replied, "And how about Benjamin Franklin? Wasn't he a great foreign minister and diplomat?" And she said, "Of course; he was one of the greatest in the world, and one reason for that was that he belonged to a very old country, Great Britain."

* * * *

That was a neat counterstroke, and it was true. We often forget that the men of genius who founded our country belonged to a very old one, and had been brought up and trained in old traditions. George Washington was an English gentleman; Franklin, during nearly all his long life, belonged to Great Britain, and did his utmost to prevent the final separation from the mother country, and he failed, because of stupidity at London.

Fulpan On Sit-Downs

Petunia Correspondent Seeks Light From Washington.

By Louis M. Jiggitts.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

(Special delivery) Petunia, March 22.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

My employes have sat down and won't get up. They have been reading in the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette about people sitting down all over the country and they say they won't move until I do what they want.

As one of the leaders of this country are you going to let this happen to me? Please let me know what you are doing about these sit-down strikes by return mail.

How can they sit on my property?
Yours very truly,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 23.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
My Dear Mr. Kluck:

You want to know how they can sit on your property. As soon as the Congressman returns to the office I am sure he will be glad to tell you how.

Whenever this office can serve you please do not hesitate to call on us. Yours very truly,
WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

Petunia, March 24.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I've already seen how. What I want to know is why. What are you leaders going to do about it?

They are still sitting down on me. Hurry up. Yours very truly,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 25.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
My Dear Mr. Kluck:

The Congressman is unavoidably detained, but I am sure that he will regret to learn that your employes are still sittting down on you. And you may be sure that he will be glad to advise you on this matter immediately upon his return to the office, as he has been giving some thought to this subject for the past few days.

Assuring you that we enjoy serving the Congressman's constituents, I am, yours very truly,
WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.
P. S.—What are they sitting down on you for?

Petunia, March 26.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

As you know, I own and run the Kluck Chicken farm on the edge of town. The other morning I went out to see why the hens were making so much noise and there was all five of my employes sitting in the chicken house, and they had got all the straw from the nests to make themselves comfortable. This made the hens uncomfortable, and they were showing it. They said they wouldn't leave until I gave them a raise of 30 cents a day and more molasses for breakfast.

And, besides, while the men are sitting, the hens won't set. What's gone wrong with the world anyhow? How can I get the men up and the hens down?

Why don't you leaders do something? Yours very truly,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 27.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
My Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am sure that you will be delighted to know that the Congressman is still giving this new problem his most serious consideration. He is again sitting in an important conference today, but instructed me to suggest that you reason with the employes.

I called the Department of Agriculture and asked them to send you their latest bulletin on how to persuade hens to sit. This should solve half your troubles. Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

Petunia, March 28.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. Fulpan:

I don't need the Department of Agriculture to tell me how to set hens. I was setting hens when most of the young fellows up there was still wearing three-cornered pants. If you'll get the men up, I'll get the hens down.

I tried reasoning with them, but Willie Sitz, the leader, said they wouldn't move. I told him it was illegal and the Government wouldn't allow it, but he said the Government wouldn't do anything, as he knew some people who had been sitting down ever since they got on the Government payroll, and nobody's ever done anything about it.

How long are you leaders going to let people's property be trespassed on this way? While you are sitting down in conference my business is going to rack and ruin. I want to hear from you directly why you and the other leaders can't think up a law.

Don't you have any legal members of Congress? Your worried constituent.
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 29.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
My Dear Mr. Kluck:

All the members of Congress are legal. The House rules do not permit illegal members.

Assuring you that this office takes great pleasure in answering your inquires, I am, yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

TELEGRAM.
PETUNIA, MARCH 30.
CONGRESSMAN CICERO FULPAN
WASHINGTON, D. C.
WILLIE SITZ STILL SITTING WHERE ARE YOU
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 30.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
Dear Mr. Kluck:

I have been sitting in my office all day giving the sit-down strike problem my most serious consideration. It has long been my custom to approach with caution and a clear, deliberate judgment.

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

There are many angles which call for consideration; for instance, the rights of the employer, the rights of the employe and the rights of the public. I am sure that you readily understand a man in my position cannot afford to be swayed by emotions. My approach to every problem of importance is always governed by cool reasoning. The welfare of the country, which is placed in our hands by the people is a sacred trust not to be held lightly.

I hope to arrive at a conclusion shortly that will prove eminently satisfactory to all concerned.

With best regards, I am, yours very truly,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia, March 31.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

It's easy to be calm when your hens are not refusing to set and your eggs are not being eaten by trespassers in your chicken house. Suppose you were losing your eggs and your hens were acting finicky, would you be cool? From the results you have got so far it looks to me like you have been doing more sitting than thinking.

I am being worried by people coming around to see the sit-downers. They have got the hens so nervous they won't even lay. And now it looks like the hens have gone on a stand up strike.

It looks like whenever anybody starts anything in this country everybody else copies it.

Why? Yours very truly,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 1.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
My Dear Mr. Kluck:

I regret to inform you that the constant strain of work and the very serious consideration he has been giving lately to sit-down strikes has made it necessary for the Congressman to go to bed for the next day or two with a headache. But I am glad to give you the information you desire. You want to know why when anybody does anything in this country everybody else does it. It's just an old American custom.

Trusting that this is the information you desire, I am, yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.
P. S. Why don't you charge the people a dime each to see the sit-downers?

Petunia, April 2.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I thank your secretary for a good idea. This is the first sit-down strike in Petunia and everybody is curious. As your secretary suggested, I charged everyone a dime yesterday to see the sit-downers and made $5.10. I only wish she had thought of it sooner. But they are still sitting.

I hope you have now got out of bed with your headache and will do something about it. Yours very truly,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 3.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am conferring with other leaders today, and I have very definite reason to believe that we shall devise a plan to settle the problem to the satisfaction of everyone. I am happy that I can give you this good news of our progress. Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia, April 4.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

If you are still sitting and thinking you can get up and stop. My employes have already got up. I got tired of waiting for the hens to set and for you to think up something and so they got tired of the egg diet. So we compromised for 15 cents and more molasses. Besides they got pretty bored with everybody looking and poking fun at the sit-downers. I want to thank you fine secretary for helping to settle the strike. You ought to raise her salary. Your relieved constituent,
CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 5.
Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.
Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am delighted to know that your dispute has been settled just as I arrived at a conclusion about the sit-down strike.

I assure you that it has been a pleasure for us to render you a service and I trust that whenever we can help you again you will not hesitate to call upon me. I am always at the service of my constituents. With best regards, I am, yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Belgium Nearing Neutrality Satus

Paris, April 5 (AP).—Belgium's return to complete neutrality in the European scheme of alliances and ententes will be effected this week, informed diplomatic sources said tonight.

This will be carried out by the exchange of letters between the Belgian government and Great Britain and France, by which Belgium will be released from the obligations she assumed concerning the defense of those powers under the Locarno treaty.

Britain and France, it was asserted, already have indicated their readiness to free Belgium from her undertaking to go to their aid in case of an attack by Germany. This is in accord with the new neutrality and isolation policy which the Brussels government adopted last fall on the direction of King Leopold III, has carried out with the consent of its former allies.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a bride of a year. My husband likes to drink beer and I, too, like it. A few times he drank until he became ill. I did not scold but asked him to promise me never to do it again. He did promise once, but the promise was broken. Then I asked him to promise again. This he would not do. Then he started gambling with dice and often kept me waiting outside gaming places. I did not like this either. Finally I asked him to stop it. He promised never to do it again and as yet has not broken the promise.

* * * *

But now he is planning on a stag party with two other men, one of whom is married also. I am trying to stop this, too. He says he loves me and I am trying to believe him, as he means everything in the world to me. I do not like to go any place that he does not go or cannot go. I love him so much that I cannot bear to be parted from him.

* * * *

Please help me. Tell me whether I am to blame. Am I being fair? Should such things as he does be permitted? If I am to blame please tell me how to overcome my fault. Does he really love me as he says?

UNHAPPY.

What to Believe.

DEAR UNHAPPY: It is natural that you should be distressed over your husband's occasional excessive drinking, tendency to gamble and partiality for "stag" companionship. It is understandable that you should wish to weed out these potentially dangerous habits before they spoil his life and yours. Such habits should not be permitted if they can be eradicated. But here's the rub. It's proverbial wisdom that a woman should never marry a man with the intention of reforming him. She usually has to take him "as is," for better or for worse, as very few adults of self-indulgent habits are willing to refashion their lives to suit another's taste.

* * * *

Drink, gambling and resistant indifference to the disciplinary demands of family life are three faults which usually go hand-in-hand. They are the hall mark of the weakling, who, however, often manages partially to conceal his weaknesses from the woman he wishes to marry. He goes through a period of "being good" while courting her. He may even believe he is committed to everlasting reform. Then he marries her, and when romance becomes routine, his good resolutions begin to slip. He falls first into one habitual petty vice and then another. He pulls himself up short, promises to do better, does so for a while, then slips again. After while he no longer promises. He argues that it isn't fair to himself or to his accuser to promise to do better when he knows in his heart he can't. In some subtle way, the technique of which seems to be known only to such weaklings, he manages to put his accuser on the defensive. Often he winds up by saying he drinks, or he gambles, or he goes out with "the boys" because his wife nags—blandly closing his eyes to the fact that his habits caused the nagging; and not the nagging his habits.

* * * *

Not one woman in a million thus afflicted has ever managed to deal successfully with such a husband. There is no pat answer to the riddle. Some women of forceful character have finally browbeaten weaker mates into submission to their dictates. Others, through the exercise of tolerance, sympathy, encouragement, kindliness, love and never failing companionship of spirit, have sometimes managed to convince their erring husbands that all of happiness may be found with and through them—and not in spendthrift waste of time, money and health on profitless pursuits and companions. A woman must be sufficiently intelligent to analyse her husband and determine which method is likely to be most effective with him.

* * * *

You have been wise in not scolding your husband thus far. The best approach at present, probably, is to try "sweet reasonableness" with him. Leave emotion out of it. Don't use the argument that you cannot bear to be parted from him for an hour or an evening, as he is likely to dismiss that as childish and odiously possessive. Try instead to show him that both of you must give your wholehearted best to the partnership if it is to survive and thrive; that excessive drinking is only a short cut to a bad headache; that gambling is cheating one's self out of little niceties of existence which could be purchased with the same money, and that "stag parties," if they become a habit, are apt to be inimical to real happiness in marriage.

* * * *

I do not mean, however, that any husband is not entitled to an occasional evening out with "the boys." This is a psychic necessity for most men and the urge for exclusively masculine company now and again is almost irresistible to the average husband. It is a wise wife who lets her husband go on his first post-martial stag party with an indulgent smile. If she puts up a fight, he is likely to wonder if he has married a sort of old-woman-of-the-sea, whom he is never to have off his neck from now until the moment he dies. He will also be wretched at the thought that "the boys" are going to razz the life out of him for being tied to his bride's apron strings. Rather than suffer such humiliation, such seeming loss of his manly independence, he will probably go no matter how much she objects. I believe there is nothing to do but withdraw your erstwhile objections to the proposed stag party, and let him go with your blessing. Only if such parties become too frequent and too painful in their after-effects (for him) will you be justified in taking a definite, and reasonable, stand against them.

* * * *

It may be your husband's little vices, as described above, are of the most innocent sort. If he confines his drinking to an occasional bout with beer, keeps his promise not to gamble, and asks no more than an occasional evening out with his men friends—bachelor or married—and in all other ways is a faithful, dependable, devoted, hard-working, bill-paying husband, you haven't a thing to worry about.

* * * *

Your disinclination to go any place your husband does not go or cannot go bears looking into. You must be definitely lacking in personal and social resourcefulness. You are apt to become a deadly bore if you don't find some real interests in life aside from your husband. And if you can't really find them, you should at least pretend you have found them. It might be well for you to join some women's clubs or movements; or enroll in a daytime gym or dancing class, or arrange little evening parties with women friends to coincide with those evenings when your husband will be out with his men friends. Maybe you are gradually suffocating your husband's interest in you by clinging to him too devotedly and too constantly. Maybe he's got to get away from you in order to breathe, so to speak. Many a bride whose heart is broken by her husband's wish to spend an evening away from her has only herself to blame for the temporary desertion.

Medieval Styles Appear in Shoes For Autumn Wear

One pair on medieval lines has a high-cut front and back, with the top curled over. The low-cut sides are of elastic material, the body of dark suedé and the curled-over part patent leather.

High cuts and side lacings are leading new notes. Many of the tongue-like fronts come up to the ankle. There are new stitchings, some in scallop formation, others looking like braid, and many shoes have side openwork.

Fall shoes will have dark, rich colors or shades of copper and beige. Among the new colors are "red cedar," a coppery shade; "oak brown" and coffee brown."

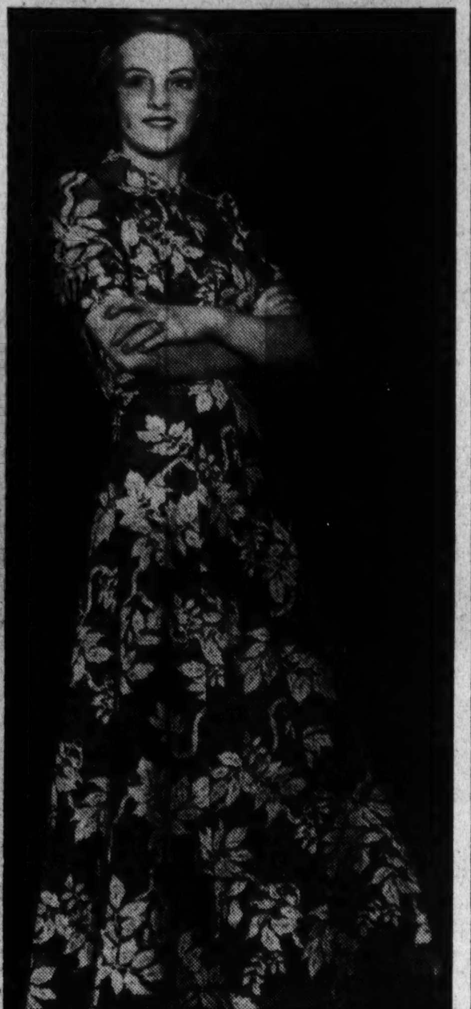
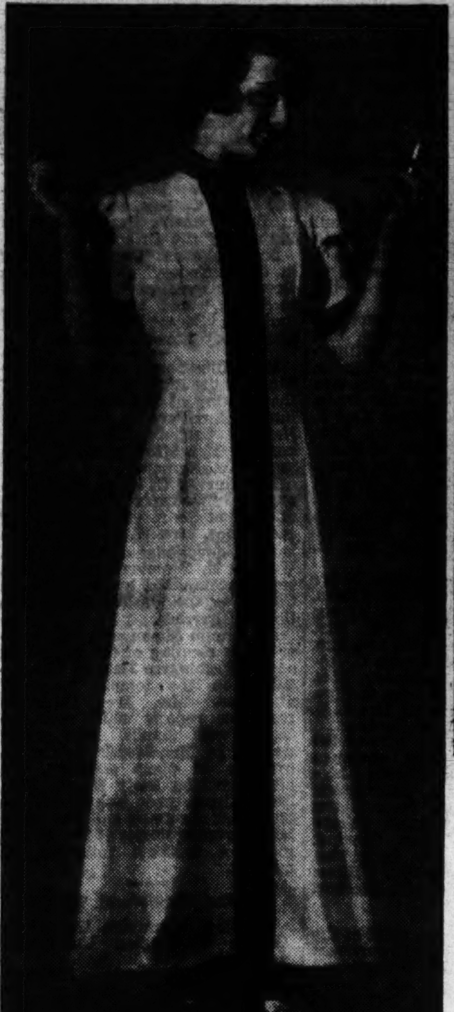
For Domestic Chic—The House Coat

White terry cloth house coat (below) in the new silhouette, with bright red and blue bands for trimming and full-length zipper fastening. At right is a chic house coat, fashioned of upholstery fabric, of Chinese influence, in an attractive green and white leaf design outlined in black.





As shown here, you can go either conservative or exotic in your house coat.

Current Wave of Femininity Now Engulfs House Apparel

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THE CURRENT WAVE of elegance and femininity has spread to attire for the house. No longer is it permissible to wear some ill-fitting, nondescript outfit in the kitchen; the modern housewife is as fastidious about her morning house attire as she is about her clothes for shopping, the matinee or the bridge club. The same is true of lounging costumes; gone are the masculine-like pajamas and ungainly robes, which might have been comfortable, but which definitely lacked style.

House coats, either the smartly tailored and trim variety, or those of laces and sheers, have taken over the spotlight. Regardless of the material used, they are all decidedly feminine, well-fitted and colorful. Some are patterned after the much-talked-about house coat of Albert, Queen Victoria's consort. Others have much the apparance of chic formal evening coats. They are usually full length, either clearing the ankles or floor.

Cottons are in the lead at the present time for the majority of house coats. These come in solid colors, plaids and dots, flower patterns, Persian and Hindu prints and those of Chinese influence. There are also some lovely silks, particularly the old-fashioned fabrics, such as bengaline, grosgrain and silk serges, which are much to the fore in both the daytime and evening style picture. Many of the newest house coats are untrimmed, depending upon line and the pattern of the fabric for fashion interest. Others make smart use of striking contrasts in color for dramatic effect.

The modern house coat not only serves for kitchen and lounging wear, but is considered smart and appropriate enough to be donned for informal dinner at home, afternoon tea or cocktails (at home), and for the beach and general resort wear. While tailored, these coats are made with numerous gores which give a graceful flare to the skirts, and they have feminine and flattering necklines, short sleeves and shoulder detail. A zipper extending the entire length of the garment, or a parade of buttons extending from chinline to hemline, is the usual methods of fastening and decoration. The zippers are usually of contrasting color, often matched in tone to bands or piping on the collar and sleeve cuff.

Gay chintz, glazed and dull of surface; upholstery materials, terry cloth, voile and dotted swiss, pique, cotton broadcloth, linen, sackcloth and numerous novelty cottons are the mediums for the new spring and summer house coats. Cotton braids, unique buttons of wood or plastic, and those covered with self-material, comprise the trimmings. Colors range from all-white and white with brilliant contrasts, through delicate pastels and flamboyant primary colors.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IN AMERICA, a lady with a house and no maid usually has an easier life than her sister abroad who has several servants, and this is because of all the mechanical helps we have to simplify the hard jobs.

But there are no machines for raising babies, and not likely to be any! So, it looks as though we'll keep on being tied at home pretty close during the years when the children need watching, because nursemaids are hard to get and expensively out of the question for most of us.

In certain progressive communities and especially in the larger cities there are nursery shools for preschool age children. These are actually neighborhood play places, with someone on the job watching to see that the children are safe and happy. These will no doubt be the eventual solution of the problem of the busy mothers who can't be two places at once—in the house doing the work and in the yard watching the children play outdoors.

The nursery school is fairly rare as yet, but we know one neighborhood of mothers who clubbed together and organized a playground for their own youngsters. The way it worked was like this—two mothers would be on duty at a time and all the children of the group were gathered together to play under these watchful eyes. They took it by half-day shifts and no one womman had to serve but once a week. This left each mother free the rest of the time for her work or for going out. Since the success of the scheme depended on dependable co-operation, each mother made a point to be on the job when her turn came so that she could feel free to park her own youngsters the rest of the time. Think how many hours of worry that saved—knowing that the children would be in good hands!

Sometimes they would play in a back yard, sometimes in a basement or attic game room, sometimes in a park. Sometimes they would be taken on an excursion, according to the season and the weather. But the main point is, the idea worked!

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Headaches.

A GREAT DEAL of interest has been evinced by my quotation some weeks ago from Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, of the Mayo Clinic, who said that he thought the most valuable drug that had come into use within the last two or three years is ergotamine tartrate, for the treatment of migraine or sick headache. So in the articles today and tomorrow I will devote a little lengthier consideration of it.

Migraine is one of the commonest forms of headache, although, of course, all headaches are not migraine. The chief characteristics of migraine are that the headache occurs in an individual periodically; that when a person begins to have migraine he, or she, is liable to have these attacks every so often through most of their adult life; that it is hereditary; that, while extremely uncomfortable, it has no deleterious effect upon health or length of life.

Individual Headache.

People who have it are likely to refer to it as "my headache." They may have other headaches, but this one is their own individual brand. They may know the cause of the other headaches—reading too much, staying up late at night, fatigue, excess of one kind or another. But the migraine comes on them without any cause at all—after having led the most exemplary life, with no extra strain, no extra exertion, all of a sudden some morning they wake up with their old enemy making faces at them from the foot of the bed.

Sometimes it is called "hemacrania" because it affects only one side of the head. A good name for it is "sick headache" because besides the headache there are digestive disturbances—nausea, constipation and a feeling as if everything below the equator had stopped. Sometimes these digestive disturbances overshadow the headache and are referred to by the owner as "bilious attacks," to which also a person may be subject. It has nothing to do with biliousness, however.

Warning Is Given.

In many cases, the headache gives warning of its impending onset. These warnings may be very peculiar. One friend of mine told me that on a certain day he would have a feeling as if he had lived here many times before. Every act and every object that he saw was invested with a peculiar significance.

He understood, or almost understood, the entire meaning of the universe. And all the time he was in this trance state he knew subconsciously that the next day he would have one of his migraine headaches.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

New York, April 5.

IF YOU'RE headed our way this spring to check on the current insanities and delights of the metropolis, you'll have a thin time in the theaters, except for those hits which have been cramming in the customers all winter.

Easter week brought a slight flurry in the form of five newcomers, some of which are promising. Among the ladies you may like to witness are Lois Wilson, making her party bow on the local platform after 22 years in pictures, and lovely Constance Cummings, who divides her time between the stage and the screen. Lois, one of Hollywood's nicer folks, is as pretty as ever, and shows herself an able trouper in the comedy-drama called "Farewell Summer."

Checking and double-checking the playhouses, I find that the present smash successes run in this order: 1. "You Can't Take It With You," the most insane and delightful laugh show in a long time. 2. "The Women," Claire Booth's hit, which displays a bigger aggregation of cats than Mr. Clyde Beatty ever dreamed after a welsh-rabbit supper. 3. "Yes, My Darling Daughter," with three aces, Lucille Watson, Violet Heming and Peggy Conklin in the leads. 4. "Having Wonderful Time," the romantic comedy of young New Yorkers on vacation, which brings us the wondrous Katherine Locke as "the new Helen Hayes." 5. "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," a thriller from England. 6. "The Show Is On," musical hit with Auntie Bea Lillie and blubbering Bert Lahr. 7. "Tovarich," with Marta Abba, from Italy, and John Halliday from Hollywood.

You'll not go wrong on any of those. But the season nears its end.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—"Who are those two stunning gals coming down the steps of the church now?" I asked last Sunday morning. "Donna Marina Torlonia and Tatania Conus," I was told. So stunned and delighted was I by these rippling names that I quite forgot to inspect the Sabbath sables of Mrs. John F. Smythe-Bijones, who was close on their high heels!" . . .

* * * *

Has Ina Claire a new boy friend? Prince Lichtenstein was the one and only for some time, but now I note the lovely Fagan here and there with Sir Michael Duff Ashton-Smith. Sir Mike this-and-that has an interesting story. His last name was Duff, but he added the other two at the request of a rich uncle—who soon passed to his reward and left the young sir a few paltry millions! . . .

* * * *

Our society scribblers certainly get palsy-walsy very fast! When Henry Fonda, the movie star from Omaha, up and married our pretty young Widow Brokaw, some of the reporters hadn't the vaguest notion of who he was or what he did, never having seen him on their party beats. It was very comical, indeed. And now the same ones are calling him "Hank!" Incidentally, one of the first shows the fine-looking pair took in on their current visit was "The Women," whose author, Claire Booth, preceded Frances as the wife of the late George T. Brokaw! . . . These divorced people are so chummy! Fonda attended the last performance of "Stage Door," in which his first wife, Margaret Sullavan, starred, and went to her dressing room between acts to congratulate and wish her well . . .

* * * *

The beauty queens of the town are still the hostesses at our red-and-chromium lounges—and are they elegant and refined! Some are college girls; many are models when not passing hot cheese canapes and smiling, in a genteel way, on the male customers at 5:30 p. m. And I am convinced that nearly all of them are studying to be duchesses of the better sort.

Hearty Morning Meal Is Based On Lamb Chops

Vogue for Breakfast Entertaining Grows; Best Chops Are Cut Thick.

By Rebekah Blake.

"The bigger the breakfast, the better the day," is an old adage but true, for nothing makes one so satisfied as does a good hearty breakfast, one which is sure to last the morning through, come what may. So pledge your efforts in the morning with bigger and better breakfasts.

Time is generally a premium in preparing breakfast, but it is perfectly possible to turn out tantalizing temptors in ten ticks of the clock, and with the alarm set a few minutes early, you can achieve wonders in preparing a hearty breakfast that will set the stage for the entire day.

Deliciously broiled lamb chops can be included in the hasty breakfast. While friend husband is putting the finishing touches on his dressing, slip quietly down the steps, turn the broiling oven on and let the chops start cooking. By the time the table is set, the chops should be ready to season and turn. Then, by the time the coffee "perks," the chops should be done.

Along with this vogue of hearty breakfasts has come the vogue for breakfast entertaining, and here lamb chops are a perfect choice because they are substantial enough to satisfy ravenous appetites.

The lamb chops are best when cut thick, at least one inch, so that the outside can be nicely browned while the inside is tender and juicy. If you want them to be especially appetizing, broil them just "short" of well done, so that they show the slightest tinge of pink on the inside. This, hotel chefs consider the mark of well-broiled chops.

With broiled lamb chops, broiled fruit is the natural accompaniment, and this, too, is rapidly becoming a breakfast favorite, since it offers a delightful change from the iced fruits usually found on every menu. Pineapple slices, placed on the broiler rack when the chops are turned, become heated and slightly browned and, served with piping hot lamb chops, make a breakfast your guests will rave about.

Dinner Given Bankheads By 74th Club

Stage Stars Present Program at Shoreham Affair.

Speakers Is Introduced by Mrs. Coffee, the President.

Members of the Seventy-fourth Club entertained at a dinner last evening at the Shoreham Hotel for the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead. The Speaker was named to his post while he was a member of the Seventy-fourth Congress, wives of members of which compose the Seventy-fourth Club.

Mrs. Harry Coffee, president of the club, introduced Representative Bankhead and he made a brief address fallowing the dinner. Then followed a program which included several stars now appearing at Washington theaters, and a performance of rope throwing by Jim Ferrier, of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Coffee, who was seated at the speakers' table, wore a gown of turquoise blue chiffon and a corsage of dark red carnations and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Bankhead chose white chiffon for the occasion, with which she wore a corsage of orchids. Others at this table were Representative Jack Nichols, president of the men's Seventy-fourth Club; Representative and Mrs. Phil Ferguson, Representative and Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Representative and Mrs. Paul Greever, Representative and Mrs. William Barry and Representative and Mrs. Elmer Ryan.

The other guests were seated at a long, U-shaped table decorated with spring flowers from the Botanical Garden. Among those present—some 90 in all—were Senator and Mrs. John Lee, Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church of Maine, who was accompanied by Mr. Clarence Stetson of Bangor; Representative and Mrs. Charles A. Halleck; Representative and Mrs. Herron Pearson, Representative and Mrs. Maury Maverick, Representative anr Mrs. Karl Stefan, Representative C. Jasper Bell, with his son, Mr. John Bell; Representative and Mrs. Aaron Ford, Representative and Mrs. Scott Lucas, and Representative and Mrs. Phil Ferguson, the latter wearing a flowered print gown.

Congress Club Elects Officers

Members of the Daughters of the House of Representatives Club, organized only two weeks ago, held their first meeting yesterday at the George Washington Club. Officers were elected and tentative plans were made for a dance about the first of May.

The officers are Miss Betty Lou Massingale, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Sam Massingale, president; Miss Elizabeth Mahon, daughter of Representative and Mrs. G. Heyward Mahon; Miss Dorothy Smith, niece of Representative and Mrs. Albert E. Carter; Miss Frances Boykin, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Frank Boykin and Miss Muriel Dempsey, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Miss Gladys Kitchens, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Wade H. Kitchens, secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting of the Daughters of the House is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, April 13, in the apartment of Mrs. Albert E. Carter, at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Virginians to Hear Senator Thomas

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, a member of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, will address the Jefferson Day banquet, to be given by the Virginia State Society Tuesday evening, April 13, at the Willard Hotel. Other addresses will be made by Representative John J. Boylan, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association, and Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillen, a member of the United States Civil Service Commission.

Special guests of honor will be Mr. Hollins Randolph, of Charlottesville, a great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson; Representative and Mrs. S. Otis Bland, Representative and Mrs. Patrick H. Drewry, Representative and Mrs. Clifton G. Woodrum, Representative and Mrs. A. Willis Robertson, Representative and Mrs. Howard W. Smith, Representative and Mrs. Norman R. Hamilton, Representative and Mrs. Thomas G. Burch, and Representative and Mrs. John W. Flannigan.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. R. Walton Moore, president of the society, will be toastmaster. The banquet will be followed by the spring ball.

Senator Norris To Be Honored At Reception

The International Relations Council to Entertain for Nebraskan.

Members of the Council on International Relations will entertain at a reception this evening at the Willard Hotel in honor of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska. The party will follow the dinner, at which Senator Norris will entertain those who were members of Congress and voted with him against the entry of America into the World War 20 years ago today, and the reception will also commemorate this anniversary.

Brig. Gen. H. C. Newcomer will preside at the reception, which is being given in the bamboo room of the Willard. Representative William Ashbrook and Representative Maury Maverick will make brief addresses, to which Senator Norris will reply. Then the company will listen to the broadcast which Mrs. Roosevelt and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will make from the White House.

The receiving line will be composed of the following: Dr. James Brown Scott, honorary chairman of the council; the Rev. Charles L. Carhart, chairman of the committee of the council; Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Miss Mabel Vernon, and Mrs. Florence Boeckel, prominent peace workers, and the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy.

Mr. Brent D. Allinson is secretary of the council. Some 600 invitations were issued.

German Envoy To Be Honored

The German Ambassador, Herr Hans Luther, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of American University.

The guests at the luncheon, which will be held at the Hamilton Hotel, will be Bishop William Fraser Mcdowell, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the college of liberal arts of American University, and Mrs. Woods; Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, dean of the graduate school, and Mrs. Griffith; Arthur S. Fleming, director of the school of public affairs, and Mrs. Fleming, and Miss Mary Louise Brown, dean of women.

Dr. and Mrs. Gray will entertain at a dinner this evening at their home on the campus in honor of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

Mr. Ladd Returns.

Mr. Fonnie Black Ladd has returned to his home on Connecticut avenue after having spent several weeks with his mother, Mrs. Henry Thomas Ladd, at Valley Farm, near Charleston, Miss., where he was called by the death of his father.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

George Bucheister has at last tired of life in the great city and is just about to take himself back to his lovely old country estate, Chelsea, in rolling Maryland. It seems funny to hear George, who loves a party better than anything else in this wide world, complain about having to gad about and lose his rest. So-o-o-oo, George is once again to lead the life of a country gentleman, arising early to get in a brisk canter before driving into town to his office on the Hill. Then when Congress packs up its troubles and scatters to its homes, he will have loads of time to himself.

Saw Margot Couzens Chewning in the Mayflower Lounge the other afternoon. She was spiffy in a black and white ensemble. The frock was of black and white polka dots and her hat was an off-the-face model, flaring into a halo and faced with polka dot materials.

Black seems to hold sway over the other color combinations. Mrs. Jouett Shouse, busily shopping in one of the larger stores downtown, wore a chic, simply designed all-black coat, and as contrast chose a brimmed hat of bright red felt.

Bear up, girls! Just when you have heard that all the handsome dashing White House aides are leaving their posts here, comes the welcome news a new one has been assigned to duty at the Executive Mansion. He is Lieut. Robert H. Williams, of the Marine Corps, that daring branch of Uncle Sam's service, famed for "having the situation well in hand"—and is tall, blond and blue-eyed.

In case you do not know, that friendly black Labrador retriever that follows close at the heels of Col. Jonathan Wainwright, commandant of Fort Myer, is named Seal. Her whole name is something like Miss Seal Featherstone, but due to her resemblance to a sleek, young seal it is shortened to that. Mrs. Wainwright, who has a way with animals, has been teaching her to balance a ball on her little pointed nose. Everyone had been hoping that perhaps the commandant's dog would take part in the pageant, but her tricks are being carefully kept in a bag until next year, then Kiko, George Millholland's canny canine, had best look to his laurels.

Davieses Arrive At New York

The United States Ambassador to the Soviet and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies arrived in New York yesterday on the Queen Mary and will come to Washington early this week.

Last evening, Mrs. Davies made an address at the Salvation Army's Centennial Memorial Auditorium in New York, recounting what the Salvation Army has contributed to the solution of New York's relief problems. Even during the worst of the depression, Mrs. Davies has maintained charity work in the New York slums, and acquired the name "Angel of Hell's Kitchen."

After a brief stay in this country, Mr. and Mrs. Davis expect to leave on their yacht, Sea Cloud, for the coronation of King George VI. They have leased the home of Mrs. Marshall Field in Regent Park, a magnificent house, which has a sizable park surrounding it.

Mrs. Field recently redecorated her house. The drawing room is decorated entirely in white, with rugs and walls to match.

75th Club Plans Meeting April 7

The April meeting of the Seventy-fifth Club will be held tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at the Congressional Club. Each member will bring as her guest a member of one of the older Congressional Clubs.

Mrs. John Coffee is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Her assistants include Mrs. Charles Leavy, Mrs. Frank Towey, Mrs. R. P. Hill and Mrs. Vincent Harrington.

Tour Arranged Saturday By Flowerless Society

Philadelphia Charitable Organization Pilgrimage to Be Led by Mrs. Ruth Strawbridge; Shrine Women Meet.

The "Flowers," of the Flowerless Society of Philadelphia, will conduct a tour of Washington Saturday. Mrs. Ruth G. K. Strawbridge, chairman, will lead the pilgrimage. The society, composed of prominent Philadelphia women, was organized in 1921 to supply flowers to shut-ins, hospitals and charitable institutions. It has the support of many of the women's clubs in and around Philadelphia. Mrs. William H. Marshall is executive secretary and Mrs. David E. Williams, president of the executive board.

An "800" party was held at the clubhouse of Almas Temple last night, under auspices of the Women of the Divan and the Nobility.

Mr. Ara M. Daniels, potentate of the Shrine, was in charge of the program.

Fries, Mrs. Edward D. Anderson, Mrs. Carl H. Claudy, Mrs. Vernon G. Owen, Mrs. John Q. Slye, Mrs. Dwight L. Bromwell, Mrs. L. E. Manoly and Mrs. Harry Gardner.

Mrs. Ara M. Daniels, wife of the potentate, was general chairman and had as sub-chairmen: Mrs. Leonard P. Steuart, patronesses; Mrs. Stanley Willis, reservations; Mrs. James A. Councilor, tickets; Mrs. Frank A. Varney, dancing; Mrs. Ludwig E. Manoly, darts; Mrs. Roscoe L. Oatley and Mrs. William C. Fitzgibbon, cards; Mrs. Herbert MacNamee, prizes.

Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor; Miss Marie Driscoll and Miss Alice Hill and Mr. Elwood Street, director of the District of Columbia Board of Public Welfare, will be the speakers at the dinner meeting of the Department of Government and Economic Welfare of the League of Women Voters tonight at Wesley Hall. Mr. Street will speak on "One Year of Social Security in District of Columbia."

The department of government and child welfare, of which Mrs. R. C. Waganet is chairman, met yesterday afternoon. Phases of the District child welfare program were discussed.

Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss has invited the members of the Georgetown Garden Club to view the forsythia in her gardens at Dumbarton Oaks, Georgetown. The gardens will be open several days to the members of the club.

The international outlook section of the Twentieth Century Club met yesterday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Harper Sibley, wife of the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was the speaker. Mrs. Sibley is a member of the board of trustees of Central China College, and a member of the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry of the Orient.

She spoke on "Currents Moving in China Today." Mrs. D. Agnes Greenlees spoke on "Recent Events in China," and Mrs. Herbert A. Smith on "Recent Events in Japan." Mrs. Ellery Stowell presided.

Mrs. Ellis Logan spoke on "The Study of the Bible as Literature" at the meeting of the District of Columbia Auxiliary of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance at the home of Mrs. Wintermute W. Sloan yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley made a report on "Woman's Work and Influence" at the recent Buneos Aires conference. Mrs. W. A. Winkelhaus led the devotional exercises. Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter reviewed the work accomplishd by the Women's Council of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Abram Simon was the speaker at the meeting of the Sisterhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation in the temple yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Pelzmann read her report, which was accepted with thanks. The prayer was led by Mrs. Morris Cafritz. A program of piano selection was given by Miss Betty Baum. Mrs. David Simon made a short address. Mrs. Cecil Kaufman and Mrs. Jesse Miller were hostesses at the tea and reception which followed the meeting.

Harold Graves, Jr., Miss Judy to Wed

The engagement of Miss Alta Frances Judy, of New York, to Mr. Harold N. Graves, jr., of Washington, was announced in St. Louis recently by Miss Judy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Judy, of that city. Miss Judy is on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest and Mr. Graves is an associate editor of Pathfinder magazine.

He is a son of Mr. Harold Graves, an assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, and Mrs. Graves.

Both Miss Judy and Mr. Graves were awarded master of science degrees in 1936 by the School of Journalism of Columbia University.

F. R. Weisgerber To Wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Burr Edwards announce the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Cortland Meader, to Mr. F. Rankin Weisgerber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weisberger, of Grosse Point, Mich. The wedding will take place Saturday and will be attended only by members of the two families.

Mr. Weisgerber and his bride will reside in Detroit. Mrs. Meader was graduated from Westover and Mr. Weisgerber is a graduate of the University of Michigan. She was presented to Washington society after completion of her studies at Westover.

Henrietta Beman, Dr. Woolley Wed

Ceremony Is Performed at St. Mark's Church Here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Edward Beman, of North Carolina, announce the marriage of Mr. Beman's sister, Henrietta Croft Beman, to Dr. Herbert Codey Woolley Saturday, April 3, in Washington at St. Mark's Episcopal Church. Dr. and Mrs. Watson W. Eldridge were the only attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Bernard College, Columbia University, and has been on the editorial staff of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Visits Representative Here.

Mrs. Norene A. Whitmore, of New York City, is at the Shoreham while in Washington to visit Representative and Mrs. George B. Kelly.

Col. Frank P. Stone, Miss Baldwin Wed

Ceremony Held at Bride's Home in Baltimore.

A wedding of interest to Washington is that of Miss Edna Elizabeth Baldwin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baldwin of Baltimore, to Col. Frank Powell Stone, U. S. A., which took place Wednesday at the residence of the bride, 3906 Clover Hill Road, Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Rudolph J. Gunkel, rector of the Church of Our Savior.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. John Boise LeCompte Hanes of Washington, formerly of Baltimore; Mrs. John A. Arringdale, of West Point, formerly of Cosey Point Farms, Easton, Md.; Mrs. William Henry Chambers, and Miss Suzanne Pierce Baldwin, of Baltimore.

After May 1, Col. and Mrs. Stone will be at home at Tilden Garden Apartments, 3900 Connecticut avenue.

Visiting in Chicago.

THAT NEEDN'T FEAR THE Sunshine

To some the brightness of Spring and Summer days comes as a very mixed blessing; for they are conscious that, in hard sunshine, they do not look their best—that the telltale marks of age become cruelly plain. Such diffidence in confronting the sunshine is quite unnecessary. A single Velva Mask Treatment will give back to your face the smoothness, freshness and clarity of early girlhood, toning the circulation, chasing away ugly wrinkles and lines, restoring the firm contours of cheeks and chin. No treatment could be pleasanter or more soothing; none produces the same immediate and lasting effect. Velva Cream Mask $5.00

Mr. John Roosevelt's Engagement Is Denied

First Lady Says Son and Miss Clark Are Friends of Long Standing, but That Marriage Is Not Planned.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The rumored romance between Mr. John Roosevelt, son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and Miss Anne Clark, who was here for the Hasty Pudding Club Show, is only a rumor. This was Mrs. Roosevelt's answer to questions regarding it yesterday at her press conference.

The families have been friends for years, she said, but the fact that the two young people have been seen together in Boston and that Miss Clark attended the Hasty Pudding Show here with Mr. Roosevelt, does not necessarily mean they are to be married. She also added, with a smile, that it is still customary for the announcement of an engagement to come from the young lady's family, when one is made.

Replying to a question as to the order of precedence observed at the luncheon given last week by the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, for her and Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the Governor General of Canada, Mrs. Roosevelt explained the seating difficulty had been very simply solved. Miss Perkins sat at one end of the table, Mrs. Roosevelt at the other and Lady Tweedsmuir at Miss Perkins' right.

The First Lady entertained a group of the Cabinet wives at luncheon yesterday at the White House and today will be the luncheon guest of the Ladies of the Senate at their regular meeting at the Senate Restaurant. Her program for the week includes other luncheons, dinners and teas.

This afternoon she will be the guest of the American Association of University Women at tea and this evening there will be a dinner at the White House. She will leave her guests at 10:30 to speak on the Emergency Peace radio program with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Tomorrow she will entertain at a large luncheon at the White House and at two teas, at 4 and 5 o'clock. Thursday she will receive delegates here for the Textile Conference at a tea from 4 to 5 and, in the evening, will attend the dinner being given at the Mayflower in observance of the anniversary of the Children's Bureau.

Friday, Mrs. Roosevelt will go to New York, where she will make an address which will be broadcast at a dinner of the Girl Scouts in the evening and will be entertained at a luncheon to be given in the afternoon by the alumnae of the Todhunter School.

Wife of Panama Minister Boyd Entertains at Legation Luncheon

Envoy, Mme. Fotitch Give Dinner For French Ambassador and Wife

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch.

The other guests were Mr. Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Haersma de With, Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mr. Jules Henry, Minister-Counselor of the French Embassy; Mrs. Albert Niblack and Mr. Roger Gaucheron, First Secretary of the French Embassy, with his sister, Mlle Simone Gaucheron.

The Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky have left for a two weeks' visit to Florida.

The Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. van Haersma de With will entertain at a luncheon today for delegates from their country to the Textile Conference.

Mrs. Henry Parkinson Keyes and Mrs. Frank Dillard, of Alexandria, have left by motor for Natchez, Miss.

Mrs. C. Cotesworth Pinckney, of New Rochelle, N. Y., with her daughter, Miss Barbara Pinckney, is spending several days in Washington at the Hay-Adams and visiting her younger daughter, Miss Marjorie Ann Pinckney, who is a student at Chevy Chase School for Girls.

They were accompanied on their motor trip to the Capital by Mrs. Rigdon Berry, of New Rochelle, who is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Dalton. Mrs. Pinckney's sister, Miss Grace Listoe, will return with them to New York on Thursday for a short visit there. Miss Listoe is now the guest of Mrs. William Milliken, who entertained a few friends at a small and informal tea at her home in Georgetown yesterday afternoon in honor of her and Mrs. Pinckney.

Miss Eleanor Fitts Host For Wife of Film Star

Miss Eleanor Fitts, daughter of the former Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. William C. Fitts, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at Pierre's for Mrs. Johnny Mack Brown, wife of the film star, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William J. Foster, of Washington.

Guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Sam Hobbs, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Grady Kaine, Miss Charlotte Clark, Mrs. Elizabeth Heinus, Mrs. LaNoue Matta, Mrs. T. N. Sandifer, Mrs. Lambert Jones, Mrs. Foster Holman and Mrs. William Foster.

Gratz Dunkum Gets Education Board Position

Prominent Mason, Business Man Succeeds Gilligan; Denies Seeking Seat.

Gratz E. Dunkum, prominent for 30 years in business, religious and fraternal activities here, yesterday was appointed by the District Court to the District Board of Education seat made vacant last week by the resignation of Henry Gilligan.

Dunkum said last night he had not been officially notified of the appointment.

"I did not seek the office," he said. I have received several telephone calls concerning it, but no official notification, and I will say that I was not a candidate for the position."

Dunkum declined to state his attitude on any matters of policy, saying it "would be foolish to do so in advance of a survey of the whole situation. My interest, however, would certainly be in behalf of the school system and not in any group or faction."

Gilligan, known as a liberal member of the board, retires from the position tomorrow. He had served for 11 years.

Dunkum retired from active business about 10 years ago. Coming to Washington in 1898 from Buckingham County, Va., he was to serve as local manager for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and as a vice president of the East Washington Savings Bank, and have a prominent part in Masonic affairs.

Anna Laughlin, Broadway Idol Of 1900's, Ends Her Life in N.Y.

Mother of Lucy Monroe, Radio Singer, Tells of Daughter's 'Desertion' in Note; Was Nation's Darling in 'Wizard of Oz.'

By the United Press.

New York, April 5.—Few people remember the "Wizard of Oz" and the songs she sang in that show, so when Mrs. Anna Laughlin Monroe decided to die today the note she wrote was all about her daughter, Lucy Monroe, the radio singer, and how their paths parted.

It's not the usual story about a middle-aged actress whose voice and beauty have faded to the point where she dies in poverty, because Mrs. Monroe lived in a richly-furnished apartment on West End avenue and the only thing she dind't like about it was that it was empty of human voices and forms.

Toast of Broadway.

She explained all about it—this woman who was the toast of Boradway when Fred Stone was doing his scarecrow dance in the "Wizard written with pencil in a wavering, uncertain hand. It was the story of how Lucy Monroe, who had been carried on the stage by her mother when she was a baby, had gone away to sing on the radio—a thing that nobody knew about when Mrs. Monroe came down to the footlights and sang "Rosalie" and "Carrie Barry."

"This is good-bye," the note began. "People are dreadful. I love my child. I have given all I have in the world to put her where she is now. She is gone. This is a sudden strange place. I want her. I ask my God from Heaven—let me in."

"Lucy is never coming back. Where did I fail? What is wrong? She does not know what she is doing.

"I had intended to sublet, but no one came.

"Oh, I hate to dim out the light and turn my back upon all the things so dear to my heart. Forgive me, dear God. We were so eager to see things together, but my darling daughter has forsaken me. Please, Heavenly Father, watch over my child and protect her."

Mrs. Monroe went into the kitchen, turned on four oven gas jets and put her head inside. She was dead, her nightgown clutched around her, when Albert Scott, the building superintendent, walked in.

Romance Recalled.

At first the name Anna Laughlin Monroe made no impression on anyone, but then somebody remembered the "Wizard of Oz" and told the story of Anna Laughlin's romance with Van Monroe, the diamond merchant. Every night for four weeks he bought a ticket—an aisle seat on the fourth row—to hear Anna Laughlin sing "Rosalie." Then he met and married her. After Monroe died, his wife centered her life on the girl who went into the "Ziegfeld Follies" for stage experience, and then got a radio contract.

Police said mother and daughter quarreled recently, but Lucy insisted she had seen her mother Easter Sunday. Lucy Monroe appears on a program known as the "American Album of Familiar Music," on which there are played and sung popular songs of the past—stretching back even as far as "Rosalie" and "Carrie Barry."

Briton Opposes International 40-Hour Week

Textile Industry Maximum Draws Fire of Labor Ministry Delegate.

By the Associated Press.

The British government delegate to the World Textile Conference sided yesterday with powerful employer groups in opposing an international 40-hour week for workers.

"We do not want a 40-hour week in Britain because that would mean reductions in the pay-roll income of our textile workers," said Col. Anthony J. Muirhead, parliamentary secretary for the ministry of labor.

He was the first representative of a foreign power to take a position on the maximum hours issue before the conference. His attitude was the reverse of that previously expressed by Arthur Shaw, British workers' delegate.

Muirhead contended the conference should devote itself to a "technical examination" of textile problems, but should not adopt resolutions.

Emil Rieve, president of the Workers' World Textile Conference, followed Muirhead with an assertion that employe delegates did not wish to "embark upon a competitive race in platitudes and commonplaces."

Opposes Technicalities.

"This is a technical conference," he added, "but we hope it is not to be a conference of technicalities. We must think in terms of action and accomplishment even while dealing with figures and accumulated data."

Rieve added that labor was "prepared to oppose those in this conference who expect to use the word 'technical' as the mantle for wide wanderings into related fields for the mere purpose of obstruction."

Victor Vanderputte, French workers' delegate, called upon the conference to state clearly that a 40-hour work week should be worked out by the next International Labor Conference in Geneva.

"Employers are trying to protect their interests," he said, "but production has outrun consumption and some action will have to be taken to reduce hours throughout the world."

Urging a limited week, Anton Roscher, speaking for the workers of Czechoslovakia, called for international action "making it impossible for manufacturers of one country to compete with those of another by exploiting labor."

Demands Limited Week.

He was joined by Alphonse Segier, Belgian workers' delegate, who insisted a limited work week was not only "possible but necessary."

James Bell, adviser to the British Workers' delegate, attacked Muirhead's stand as "ultra-cautious."

"I want to say how disappointed the representatives of the working classes in my country were when they listened to th addrss of the representative of the British Government," Bell exclaimed.

"If I summed up that speech in a very few words I would say, 'Oh, do be careful!' "

Referring to Muirhead's oppostion to the 40-hour week, Thomas Ashurst, British employer's delegate, warned against a limited work period interferring with employer-worker relations.

"I view with great concern," he said, "any international action which would involve the abandonment of our system of settling wage and hour conditions in the various countries otherwise than by collective bargaining."

Harriman Speaks.

"It has worked equitably (in the Britich industry) and any attempt to take from us our system of such bargaining will be resisted not only by employers, but I am quite sure by the workers' section as well."

Of minimum wages, he said it would be "no easy matter" to raise pay in low-rate countries to the level of high-rate countries.

Henry I, Harriman, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, told the conference certain rstrictions must b placed upon unlimited competition in the industry.

They would have to be imposed, he said, to the extent of establishing "fair maximum hours, fair minimum wages and the abolition of child labor."

Youth's Wife Sued By Mother-in-Law; Perjury Charged

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—Marital woes of a young mother against whom her husband's mother has filed perjury charges were aired today in justice of the peace court, with Mrs. Thelman L. Howser Naughton, this city, held for action of the April grand jury. Bond of $250 was furnished by her attorney, Edward J. Ryan, and her stepfather. The mother-in-law, Mrs. Beulah E. H. Naughton, asserted that her son, Alvin Lee Naughton, was only 16 years old when Miss Howser obtained the marriage license January 28, 1936, and gave his age as 21.

Woman Withdraws McGrath Charges

Charges against Policeman William T. McGrath of testifying falsely in a civil suit have been withdrawn by Mrs. Mary Catherine Richardson, Assistant Corporation Counsel Mathias Mahorner reported yesterday. Mrs. Richardson was involved in the suit.

McGrath, however, will be forced to face the Trial Board Wednesday on charges of performing services of a legal nature for a fee and accepting outside employment, Mahorner said.

McGrath was formerly detailed as a clerk in the corporation counsel's office at Police Court.

Millionaire Is Accused In $500,000 Love Suit

New York, April 5 (U.P.).—Charles Crocker, millionaire San Francisco playboy, tonight sought testimony of his one-time friend, Walter S. Hobart, jr., to prove he did not alienate Hobart's affections from pretty Mrs. Helen Thomas Hobart, who is suing Crocker for $500,000.

Mrs. Hobart's suit charged Crocker furnished an apartment for her husband, an interior decorator, and persuaded Hobart to throw her out. Crocker's petition for Hobart's testimony said the decorator, now in London, "never had any affection" for his wife, and hence it could not be alienated.

Mexican Election.

Mexico City, April 5 (AP).—The Natonal Revolutionary (government) Party tonight began studying reports from state committees to determine victors in Sunday's virtually nation-wide congressional primaries.

Yugoslav Students Riot Against Duce

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 5 (AP).—Police tonight broke up an anti-Italian demonstration of an estimated 600 students shouting within earshot of a reception attended by President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia.

President Benes arrived today for conferences designed to strengthen the Little Entente of Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

The students sought to impress upon him their conviction that the recently signed Italo-Yugoslav pact was unpopular and constituted a peril to the Little Entente. Numerous arrests were made and police guarded the highways after they received reports that peasants planned to march into Belgrade to take part in the demonstration.

Senate, House Get Bills To Heat D. C. Building

Identical bills to provide heat for the new District of Columbia building on Judiciary Square were introduced yesterday by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, and Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, in the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively.

The bills would authorize the furnishing of steam from the central heating plant of the Department of the Interior to the building situated on the plot bounded by Fourth and Fifth and D and G streets northwest.

Woman Doctor, 80, Dies.

Beverly, Mass., April 5 (AP).—Dr. Eleanor Bridges Kilham, 80, who was decorated by the French government for her World War service, died today.

On the Air Today

Edgar A. Guest, accompanied by Frankie Masters and his orchestra and the Master Voices, begins a new series of programs tonight, WMAL, at 8:30, to be konwn as "It Can Be Done." The new series replaces the veteran "Welcome Valley" which starred Guest for years.

"It Can Be Done" will bring to the microphone men and women who have succeeded in the face of great odds. Guest, of course, also will read his poems as usual. Anna Sheridan, a former Chicago policewoman who, after 40 years, began studying for the bar, will tell of her rise to prominence as an attorney in the first show tonight. She will explain (with dramatic interpolations by a cast of actors) how she attained her goal despite circumstances that suddenly placed her five grandchildren in her care.

A second visitor will be Dr. F. E. Austin, of Hanover, N. H., builder of ant palaces.

* * * *

Other features today:

Maj. Brown—And Mrs. George Thorpe in safety broadcast, WMAL, at 5:45, on "Causes of Fatalities in 1936."

"Stump-Us Club"—In debut at WRC, at 7:30, with Les Colvin, pianist, and a guitarist-violinist. Idea is to make requests for old popular songs with rewards to those who call for songs the musicians are unable to play. With Floyd Mack. Also Thursday nights.

"Husbands and Wives"—Changes to Tuesday ngihts at 8, WMAL. Also second anniversary of show on N. B. C. net.

"Twenty Years After"—Representative Ashbrook in WOL "Congress Today," at 9:45, in talk commemorating twentieth anniversary of entrance into World War.

Secretary Woodring—In Army Day address, from Mayflower, WMAL, at 10.

Northern Dramatic Company—Makes a Tuesday night appearance (usually Thursday nights), WOL, at 10:30. Fifth episode of "That Guy Smith."

"Workout"—In air premiere with Freddie Rich and symphonic orchestra, WJSV, at 10:30, in "Americana." "Workout" is in three movements, details of the routine of a modern dance chorus, entitled "Go," "Sweet" and "Fast Swing," Composed by Robert McBride. Other compositions: "Cripple Creek," by Stringfield, and "Four Minutes and 20 Seconds," by Roy Harris.

"No Foreign War Crusade"—With Admiral Byrd, Mrs. Roosevelt, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, WMAL, at 10:30.

Edgar Guest says he is convinced that coincidence in real life can outstrip the wildest imagination. He has writtetn verse a time or two about the death of children for consoling parents who had just lost them. One such verse was written only last month and was released to newspapers as a syndicate feature. The verse appeared on schedule in the Kilgore, Tex., paper on March 20, the day following the school explosion that killed so many children. School officials were so impressed with the verse and its timeliness that it was read at the memorial service Easter Sunday.

Here and there: NBC also introduces a new variety show, "Piccadilly Music Hall," on the blue net at 11 tonight. WMAL will not carry it, but you may want to shop around and see whether it appeals to you. It will employ the devices of the English music hall with John Goldsworthy as master of ceremonies . . . Walter Hirsch, an all-American football player under Yost at Michigan, is a member of Frankie Masters' band, backing the new Guest program . . . Tony Martin will take over the master-of-ceremonies job in "Hollywood Hotel," as predicted, effective May 7 . . . Carlton Kadell has given up his job as announcer for "Amos 'n' Andy" to become straight man in the Moore-Broderick show.

SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1936

THE 90th Annual Report of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company covering operations for 1936 will be presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting on April 13, 1937. The report shows that total operating revenues increased over 1935 by $73,613,003 or 20%, but continued subnormal, being 35% below the annual average for 1925-1929. Operating expenses increased $50,987,517 (due principally to increased business and larger expenditures for necessary current maintenance and to improve the general condition of the road and equipment). Net income was $38,742,091 as compared with $23,962,586 in 1935. Surplus for 1936 was equal to 4.8% upon the outstanding Capital Stock as compared with 2.8% in 1935. Surplus per share (par $50) was $2.38 as compared with $1.38 in 1935.

Dividends aggregating 4% ($2.00 per share) were paid during the year. The dividend of 2% paid on December 21, 1936, was charged against 1936 income. Expenses incurred on account of floods and for retirement of property during the year aggregating $24,794,575 were charged to Profit and Loss.

FINANCE

The net decrease in total funded debt was $35,436,910, due to the payment at maturity of $52,000,000 Fifteen-year 6½% Bonds; $10,251,000 Equipment Trust Obligations; $1,100,000 Thirty-year 4% Bonds and $500,000 Sunbury & Lewistown Railway Company First Mortgage 4% Bonds, and by the redemption on May 1, 1936, of $50,000,000 Forty-year 5% Bonds due in 1964.

An issue of $60,000,000 General Mortgage 3¼% Series "C" Bonds was sold, of which $40,000,000 were sold on a 3.95% basis and $20,000,000 on a 3.775% basis. The proceeds were used chiefly to redeem the Forty-year 5% Bonds. In addition, $18,420,000 Fifteen-year 2¼% Equipment Trust Certificates were issued and sold, on a 2.71% basis, to finance in part the cost of 10,000 new freight cars.

During 1935 and 1936, $167,000,000 of bonds of Companies in the Pennsylvania System have been refunded at reduced interest rates, effecting a reduction of $2,500,000 in annual interest payments.

To provide funds for the extension of electrification and other necessary additions and betterments, as well as for additional equipment and facilities and for the payment of maturing obligations and other proper corporate purposes, an allotment of $52,670,700 Fifteen-year 3¼% Convertible Debenture Bonds was made to stockholders of record February 6, 1937. After this issuance of Convertible Bonds the available margin of authorized funded indebtedness will be reduced to $3,234,000. Therefore, the stockholders will be asked at the annual meeting to approve an increase in the authorized indebtedness in the amount of $95,000,000.

ELECTRIFICATION

The Company's experience with electrification has been so satisfactory that it has decided to electrify its lines from Paoli to Harrisburg, Pa., from South Amboy to Monmouth Junction, N. J., from Morrisville to Harrisburg, Pa., and from Columbia, Pa. to Perryville, Md., and certain branches, which will enable it to obtain substantially increased advantages from the electrification previously completed. The completion of this program, which will require approximately 1½ years and the employment of over 10,000 men on the project itself and a similar number in the industries furnishing the materials, will increase materially the capacity of the Railroad by making possible the handling of a denser traffic with greater flexibility and speed over the same tracks than is possible with steam locomotives.

NEW AND IMPROVED EQUIPMENT

Built at a cost of approximately $25,000,000 and involving 11,000,000 man-hours of employment, 10,000 all-steel freight cars were completed and placed in service. 216 drop-bottom containers for handling powdered lime, cement and similar commodities, 240 hopper-bottom containers for handling fluxing lime and cement, 1 steel coal barge, and 250 gondola cars were also placed in service during the year. Air-conditioning was installed in 22 additional dining cars, 88 coaches and 23 passenger baggage cars. At the end of the year approximately 1,100 air-conditioned cars were operated on the system's lines, the largest fleet of such cars on any railroad.

BETTER SERVICE

Train schedules were quickened and rearranged to provide maximum of service and more convenient times of arrival and departure for the travelling public. The running time between New York and Philadelphia was reduced and the fastest train placed on a 1 hr.—34 min. schedule. The "Congressional" between New York and Washington runs daily on a 3 hr.—35 min. schedule, the fastest train ever provided between those points.

On November 16, 1936, complete door-to-door collection and delivery service for less-than-carload freight at no additional cost above the regular freight rates (subject to a minimum of 45 cents per hundred pounds), regardless of distance, was established, marking a distinct advance in the art of rail transport.

A supplementary service is a cash-on-delivery arrangement, under which the invoice price of merchandise is collected by the railroad upon delivery and remittance made to the shipper by the Company, an additional forward step in meeting the modern trends of business practice.

PASSENGER AND FREIGHT RATES

By order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a general reduction in the basic passenger fare structure of all railroads became effective June 2, 1936, establishing a maximum fare basis of 2 cents per mile in coaches and 3 cents per mile in Pullman cars and eliminating the Pullman car surcharge.

During the year the Interstate Commerce Commission denied the petition of the railroads for authority to continue indefinitely the moderate increase in freight rates which had been granted on certain classes of commodities effective April 18, 1935, to enable them to meet in part the increased cost of railway labor and the increased prices of fuel and other material and supplies, but authorized the increases to continue, with some exceptions and modifications, until December 31, 1936, when they expired. On October 23, the railroads petitioned the Commission for authority to make a comprehensive revision in the railroad freight rate structure to meet present-day conditions, in order to offset in part the large loss in revenues as a result of the expiration of the emergency charges. Hearings are now being held by the Commission in connection with this proposed revision of the freight rate structure.

STOCKHOLDERS

Capital Stock of the Company at the end of the year was owned by 218,720 holders, a decrease of 8,531 compared with December 31, 1935. The average number of shares owned was 60.2 shares.

The results recorded have been made possible by the splendid work of our employes. The Pennsylvania Railroad cordially invites the active interest of its stockholders and bondholders in getting people to travel and ship via The Pennsylvania Railroad. M. W. CLEMENT, President

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

By Bob Burns.

No matter how big a man becomes or how far away from home he happens to stray—sooner or later he'll have to obey the urge to go back.

I had one cousin down home who always seemed to be distant even to his own folks. They never thought he cared anything about 'em. When he was 13 years old, he ran away from home and when they didn't hear from him for 25 years, they thought he'd forgotten 'em altogether. Finally one night, the "Cannon Ball" pulled into the depot and off stepped my cousin. He didn't look around. He made a "beeline" for home and in about seven minutes he showed up at the depot agin and I says "Well, I sure am glad to see ya! Are you gonna stay with the folks long?" and he says "No, I went home and peeked through the back window and saw everybody was all right so I'm takin' the next train back to the coast."

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Penned-In Languor

A current concern of government being the creation of a more abundant and livable life, it seems proper indeed that the Government fixes attention on spring fever, of which there is a greater abundance now than of anything else.

Offices are full of it and park benches are full of people trying to escape from it. River banks, where people fish, are full of people trying to escape from it and all the while everybody else is talking about it with results no more effective than a yawn.

The Government has nothing startling to offer by way of a remedy, but at least diagnoses the condition and recognizes it officially. The Government's diagnosis—as set forth in an official release—describes a spring fever afflicted person as one "with a desire to let down a little and pursue his everyday tasks less strenuously."

Further, in matters of diet, the afflicted one—which is everyone—begins to prefer more fruits and vegetables with consequent withdrawal from the heavier foods. The out-of-doors becomes inviting and the patient would "gladly lay aside his daily round of school and business and yield to the lure of spring."

* * * *

The Government hastens to say that all of these symptoms do not constitute a disease, strictly speaking. Spring fever, the sufferers are told, is "but the name for a common experience." And it should not be construed as a signal for the giving of tonics, say the Government's health authorities, adding: "The boy who makes a wry face and objects to having these tonics has just ground for complaint and objection . . . the administering of spring tonics is one of the fallacies that bloom in the spring."

Now, say the experts, what "we all need in the spring is not spring tonic but fresh, clean foods and fruits, plenty of fresh air and sleep, more outdoor exercise." In other words, the Government holds that if you yield to the symptoms you probably will be cured.

In a world full of guile, a touch of open-hearted frankness is certainly something to ring the bells about . . . And so we ring the bell for "a teacher" in the Indian Service . . . Now the publication, "Indians at Work" carries in certain issues statements from various workers on why they joined the Indian Service . . . Some very high-falutin reasons are given, but, says "a teacher:" "I was born in the Indian Service. My father was a superintendent. But frankly, I went into the service myself because of the pay." Which is certainly a beautiful reason, because Truth was beauty a long time before the poet said it was.

'Magnificent Desolation'

One of those Interior press release writers must have gotten a big kick out of doing the "release" on the President's proclamation to extend the bounds of Death Valley . . . That was a sweet story to write and the press release man did a good job . . . He says, in part:

"Death Valley's magnificent desolation contains rocks of all the great divisions of geologic time, the positions of the complex mosaic of rock masses mutely witnessing to profound and recurrent breaking and dislocation of the earth's crust in remote times. The new boundaries add many of these colorful rock strata, of igneous, sedimentary, and metamorphosed formations, to the monument, including the upper reaches of Titus Canyon, precipitous and narrow."

Appointment

Chief Forester F. A. Silcox announces the appointment of Philip Woodhead to the position of assistant chief of the range management division of the Forest Service, a step-up from his former post as assistant to the assistant regional forester . . . Woodhead will have headquarters in Washington . . . During the past year, he has had charge of the range distribution survey, which involved a study of the economic factors related to grazing use in the National Forests. Woodhead, who entered the Forest Service in 1916, has served in various capacities in five National Forests.

Girl Whom 2 Seek to Marry Is Gravely Ill After Relapse

Bedfast Divorcee Indicates She Will Be Wed to Suitor No. 1, Although Suitor No. 2 Still Holds Marriage Permit.

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—Suffering a relapse, following a recent operation, Wanda Belle Metz, 23-year-old divorcee, who gained wide publicity because two suitors obtained licenses at the court house to wed her, today was reported to be in a serious condition at her apartment here.

She has been bedfast since she left Allegany Hospital two weeks ago after an appendix operation. Wesley Earl Hilleary, this city, obtained a marriage license Saturday, and Miss Metz indicated that she would become his bride "as soon as I'm able to stand up."

Suitor No. 2, Gilbert Harrison, of Ridgely W. Va., who obtained a license March 23, still has his permit.

Harrison is still on friendly terms with the young divorcee, and called at her apartment Saturday, after Hilleary obtained the second license.

Miss Metz explained the circumstances in the efforts of the two suitors to marry her as, "It looked like a coincidence." She said neither had intimated he planned to obtain a license.

The young divorcee asserted it seemed Harrison, hearing that Hilleary ilntended to get the license, decided to "beat him to it" and went to the court house on March 23.

C. I. O. Organizer Works in Danville

Danville, Va., April 5.—The task of organizing 10,000 men and women who are employed at the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills began today under the leadership of H. D. Lisk, a representative of the Committee on Industrial Organization, who arrived here last night prepared to remain here for two months.

Lisk who formerly was an organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, is from Concord, N. C., and attended the meeting of C. I. O. organizers held at Roanoke last Thursday.

Meetings are to be arranged here at which the objectives of the C. I. O. will be laid before the workers.

Two Bank Directors Absolved by Court

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Judge Robert F .Stanton, in an injunction handed down today, ruled that Howard Bruce and Edwin G. Baetjer were innocent of negligence in connection with their directorships in the old Baltimore Trust Co.

Instead, Judge Stanton said, they had given "of their time and business ability, which, in their respective spheres, is of the highest and best" in trying to help the bank and its depositors.

Legislator Is Hurt In Auto Mishap

Williamsburg, Va., April 5 (AP).—Ashton Dovell, speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates, suffered a fractured right collar bone today in an automobile accident near Yorktown.

Dovell was injured when an automobile in which he was a passenger, operated by George L. Waltrip, of Williamsburg, overturned when the brakes were applied on a soft shoulder of the road.

Besides the broken collarbone, Dovell was shaken up in the accident. He was brought to his home here after the mishap.

Waltrip also was injured and shaken up.

University Head Starts Long Tour

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—Dr. F. W. Boatwright, president of the University of Richmond, and Thomas W. Ozlin, president of the alumni council, began today a tour of 13 Richmond alumni chapters in Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Accompanied by Joseph E. Nettles, alumni secretary, the officials will visit Newport News and Norfolk today and then continue to Danville, Martinsville, Bristol, Bluefield, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Madison, Fredericksburg and Washington before returning for meetings in Richmond and Petersburg.

Relief Bill Md. Assembly Chief Worry

House Studies 6-Million Act; Oyster Dredging Measure Fails.

bill out of committee on to the floor.

Adjournment Proposed.

After a brief skirmish between delegates from the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland Counties, however, Kent Mullikin, of Prince Georges County, majority floor leader, moved for adjournment.

Whe nthe House convened, it was technically the last day of the session, and a 2-3 vote was required to get the bill out of committee.

The vote was 68-39, ailing of the necessary majority.

A bill authorizing a State bond issue of $1,000,000 for construction of a State office building in Annapolis was passed by the House and sent to the Governor or his signature.

Sponsored by Ridgley P. Melvin (Democrat), of Anne Arundel County, the measure prevoiusly had passed the Senate without a dissenting vote. It was approved in the House by vote of 68-39 over opposition of the Baltimore delegation.

Proponones Listed.

Proponents of the measure in the House were Kent Mullikin, Laurel, majority floor leader; John S. White (Democrat), Prince Georges; Philip Miller (Democrat), Anne Arundel, and Mrs. Mayne A. Collins (Democrat), Somerset.

Sale of alcoholic beverages other than light wines and beer in the town of Hyattsville was banned, subject to a referendum, in a bill which passed the Senate and went to the Governor for his signature. The bill had been introduced in the House by the Prince Georges County delegatoin at the insistence of the mayor and town council. It provides for the holding of the referendum within ix months after passage of the act.

A bill to provide compensation of $16 a month for the mayor of Hyattsville and $8 a month for each of the councilmen passed the Senate and went to the Governor for his signature. It is subject to a referendu mto be held by the town within six months after passage of the act. A tax levy would provide money for the expense accounts.

Four Prescott Bills.

The Montgomery County delegation succeeded in securing passage of four bills which had been introduced by Senator Stedman Prescott. They provided:

1. For incorporating the town of Washington Grove, located about 2 miles northwest of Gaithersburg, Md.

2. For enlarging the incorporated area of Rockville to include an area occupied bq 12 rooms. These residents had petitioned for annexation.

3. For modernizing the system of indexing equity, judgment and miscellaneous petitions in the circuit court.

4. For renewing the contract between the Chevy Chase citizens committee for the special taxing area, Section 2, with the Chevy Chase Club. The contract calls for the payment by the Chevy Chase Club of $2,000 annually for use of streets, railways and public services of Chevy Chase.

Moyer Park Referendum.

The Senate passed and sent to the Governor for his signature a bill providing for a referendum in the community of Moyer Park to decide whether it shall be included in the corporate limits of Cottage City. The referendum will be held May 24.

Another Prince Georges County bill, regulating the keeping of records by justices of the peace, also passed the Senate and went to the Goveror for his signature. The measure requires that the magistrates make four separate copies of all arrest records. The justice would retain one. One would be given to the arresting officer, one to the sheriff and one to the superintendent of police.

The relief bill and its legalization and taxation of bookmaking provided the chief chance for a fight as the House dug in for its all-night stand.

Hit From Two Sides.

The proposal to legalize bookmaking drew fire from two sources—legislators actually opposed to legalization of gambling, and lobbyists who seized upon that as the last chance to slip through a bill legalizing greyhound racing in Maryland.

The legislators actually opposed to legalization of gambling in the form of bookmaking probably made their last stand in the Senate Saturday night. The Senate legalized the bookmaking then.

Student Musicians of Four States and D. C. To Compete Friday at Petersburg Meeting

Dr. Williamson, Noted N. J. Musician, to Be Present.

DR. JOHN F. WILLIAMSON.

Contest Will Be Conducted at Annual Convention of Groups.

Petersburg, Va., April 5 (AP).—Leading young musicians from four States and the District of Columbia will appear in the district contest for young artists and student musicians here Friday afternoon at the annual convention of the Virginia Federation of Music Clubs and the Virginia Music Teachers Association.

Winners will be eligible to appear in the national contests to be held the last week in April in Indianapolis, Ind.

The contestants will come from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and the City of Washington for the event.

These distinguished musicians will be among the convention's invited guests for the four-day meeting: Dr. John Finley Williamson, president of Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J.; John Powell, distinguished Virginia pianist and composer, and Luther Richman, Virginia's first State supervisor of music, will hear the college choral contest Wednesday afternoon and offer constructive criticism to the director of each group.

The "critical" method will replace this year the former system of awarding first and second places in the choral competition.

"Critical" Method Used.

Colleges which already have announced their entries for the contest are Hollins and Harrisonburg and Radford State Teachers College.

Two required numbers will be sung by each chorus with an additional number of its own choice.

Joseph Knitzer, national young artist winner in violin in 1936, and regarded as one of the outstanding violinists on the concert stage, will be presented in recital Friday night. Knitzer also won the Walter Naumberg award in 1934 and the Schubert Memorial award in 1935, along with the prize of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Dr. Williamson will direct massed choirs in a Wednesday evening concert following the formal opening of the convention at Trinity Methodist Church.

Among the features of the Thursday sessions will be a lecture by Elizabeth Gest, editor of Junior Etude, and a two-piano recital by Miss Gest and Mary Miller Mount, her radio associate.

A luncheon meeting the same day will bring numbers by the Anati Concert Trio, of Danville, and by Miss Agnes Bothne, Blackstone College vocalist.

Club presidents will attend a breakfast meeting Friday morning and later Mrs. J. P. Saul, of Salem, and Mrs. Ernest Baldwin, of Roanoke, will give a two-piano recital.

Norfolk Represented.

Miss Mary Nixon, vice president of the Music Teachers Association, will present the Feller Trio, of Norfolk, and the Richmond WPA ensemble at an "American Music Luncheon" Friday, at which Henry Whitehead, conductor of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, will speak on "Music Development in America."

Mrs. Malcolm Perkins will make the presentation of the prize offered through the federation for the best setting to an original poem.

"Junior Day" will be observed Saturday with a choir festival under the direction of Mrs. Sydney Swann, of Richmond, chairman of music in religious education in the junior division. State winners in the junior contests will be heard in recital before the closing luncheon.

Representatives of 175 music clubs with a membership of approximately 2,500 and many of the 135 members of the Virginia Music Teachers Association will attend the convention.

Warrenton Group Presented Trophy

Warrenton, Va., April 5 (AP).—William R. Cummings, jr., of Pawtucket, R. I., a former Stuyvesant school student, has presented a trophy to the Stuyvesant Horse Show Association in memory of Luther L. Tucker, a student who was killed in an automobile accident near Warrenton in 1936.

Tucker was president of the horse show association for several years.

The annual show will be held April 30, when the new trophy will be offered in the touch-and-out class. The cup must be won three times before becoming a competitor's permanent possession.

Life Terms Given 2 Youths for Theft

Charleston, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—War Joseph Kirby and Lawrence Gingell, who received 18-year sentences in a murder case, drew life terms today for armed robbery.

Kirby, 21, of Baltimore, Md., and Gingell, 20, of Kensington, Md., pleaded guilty to second degree murder at Sutton last week after their companion, William B. Read, 25, of Four Corners, Md., was sentenced to be hanged for slaying W. Earle Dollman, Charleston salesman, last November.

Police Search Woods For Missing Woman

Glenburnie, Md., April 5 (AP).—Police and volunteers resumed their search for Mrs. Ella Stone, 76, today by starting a systematic hunt through a wooded section of Doblers Wood on the New Cut road 5 miles south of here.

Members of her family said the aged woman disappeared last Thursday while walking along county roads and trails near there.

Trailer Trend Shown In Shenandoah Fete

Winchester, Va., April 5 (AP).—The trend to trailers will be reflected in the Shenandoah apple blossom festival, F. A. Reed, jr., director general, said today.

Bedecked in springtime colors of green, pink and white, the trailers will carry the floaats in place of trucks used in previous festivals.

'Best Boy' Contest Begins.

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—Gordon Green leads in the contest to determine "the best all-around boy" in Cumberland, a contest sponsored and held by the Central Young Men's Christian Association.

Lynchburg Boy Saved From Perilous Perch

Lynchburg, Va., April 4 (AP).—The Lynchburg life saving crew rescued George Crawford, 15, resident of the State Colony, from a ledge on the James River.

Crawford tripped and fell over a stump and rolled down the cliff 200 feet. He halted on a ledge overlooking another drop of 250 feet to sharp rocks below.

A 200-foot rope was fastened to Lewis Station of the crew and he was lowered to the boy, who was so nervous he was in danger of falling the rest of the distance to the river bank.

John H. Miller.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—John H. Miller, 53, prominent orchardist, was buried in Camp Hill Cemetery at Paw Paw, W. Va., today, after services at his home. Besides his wife, Mrs. Ida Ruckman Miller, he is survived by a son, Carl R. Miller, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Arnica, He was a brother of Robert, Calvin, Clarence and Garey Miller, Cumberland; Mrs. J. T. Lewis, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Mrs. John Bowers, Paw Paw, and Mrs. J. W. Kidwell and Mrs. Irvin Rudy, Cumberland.

Mrs. Carrie Edmonds.

Front Royal, Va., April 5—Mrs. Carrie Edmonds, 70, of Browntown, Warren County, died this morning in Winchester Hospital. She was a native of Frederick, Md. She is survived by three sons and three daughters, Mrs. Charles Reeves, Frank, Austin and Earle Edmonds, of Front Royal; Mrs. Ewell Updyke, of Wilmington, Del., and Miss Carrie Edmonds, of Browntown.

Funeral services will be held at Browntown Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Susie B. Dowdy.

Lynchburg, Va., April 5.—Mrs. Susie Bell Dowdy, 47, widow of John S. Dowdy, died Saturday night at Lynchburg Hospital. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Ophelia Short; a son, William S. Dowdy, of Lynchburg; a brother, Andrew H. Hughes, of Lynchburg, and a sister, Mrs. Florence Crouch, of Staunton.

Rev. Samuel J. Battin.

Salisbury, Md., April 5 (AP).—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for the Rev. Samuel J. Battin, presiding elder of the Eastern Shore District of the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Burial will be at Portsmouth, Va. His wife, Mrs. Sallie Reed Battin, and two children, Margaret Battin and Reed Battin, of Portsmouth, survive.

Bishop Hughes Shifts Pastors In 43 Districts

69th Annual M. E. Session Ends; Liquor Business Called Corrupt.

Salisbury, April 5 (AP).—Pastoral changes in 43 charges in the Wilmington conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church were announced today by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, resident bishop, at the close of the sixty-ninth annual session here today.

The transfers represented a large decrease over last year, when 65 changes were made.

The Rev. John J. Bunting was returned as district superintendent of the Salisbury district.

Prior to the reading of the list of pastoral assignments, the Rev. Leonard White presented the report of the temperance committee, which charged that the liquor business "is getting worse and worse, more despicable, more corrupt, and more destructive of character, property and life."

The list of pastoral changes includes:

Light Cut Off, Strikers Get Private Line

Commercial Firm Allows 'Sit-in' Workers to Use Power.

Rayon Plant Manager Warns Equipment May Be Damaged.

By the Associated Press.

Covington, Va., April 5.—The power plant remained closed today at the Covington plant of the Industrial Rayon Corporation but "sit-in" strikers had light after connection was made with lines of the Commercial Power Co., furnishing service in Covington.

The power plant was closed last night and the fires in the boiler room banked. Robert Gaffney, United Textile Worker organizer, said that the cafeteria had not been closed.

Lloyd Mays, president of Local 2214, Synthetic Yarn Workers, said that plant officials had insisted that engineers on duty in the power house be required to fire the boilers as well as performing their other duties. Mays said the union held that it was the firemen's job to fire the boilers, and that the fires were banked as a result of this difference of opinion.

Gaffney, director of the strike, which affects 1,300 workers, said that the 20 union workmen loaned to the plant management to clean machinery completed the work Sunday. In return the workmen were given the privilege of the plant cafeteria kitchen.

Manager Issues Statement.

Covington, Va., April 5 (AP).—Charles H. Dasher, vice president of Industrial Rayon Corporation of Virginia and manager of the Covington plant, today issued an official statement giving the management's version of the strike situation at Covington. The statement in part reads:

"We have been informed by several high officials of the textile workers organizing committee that the present strike was called without their knowledge, consent or approval.

"The management has made every effort to close the plant in an orderly manner, involving the cleaning, protecting and preserving of elaborate equipment which otherwise would be ruined and might seriously interfere with the reopening of the plant at a later date.

"A great deal of necessary work remains to be done and unless it is done at this time much of the unprotected equipment will be ruined."

Va. Liquor Board Tightens Ad Rules

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—The State Liquor Control Board announced today new stringent regulations designed to curtail the "blatancy" of the advertising of distilled spirits in newspapers.

The new rules limit still further the size of type that may be used and ban all methods of adding "emphasis" to the liquor advertisement copy. They are to become effective July 1.

5,000 Visit Camps.

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—State Forester F. W. Besley announced today that more than 5,000 persons visited the 17 Civilian Conservation Corps camps under the State department of forestry on the fourth anniversary Sunday of the CCC.

Romantic Pair To Honeymoon By Time Table

Rigid Schedule for Hawaii Trip Is Laid Down for Popular Blondes.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, April 5.—Plans for the clockwork romance of Jeannette MacDonald and Gene Raymond—which read as if they might have been arranged by the War Department—now include a scheduled honeymoon in Hawaii.

The methodical couple, who months ago set June 17 as their wedding day, have already booked passage to the islands aboard the steamship Lurline, and are now getting down to the details.

As a result of a wangling campaign which began early last fall, each has obtained a six weeks' leave of absence beginning June 16.

Must Make Pictures.

Each must do a picture between now and that time, but schedules have been arranged so they will have ample time to complete all plans.

In the meantime they are homesite hunting in the San Fernando Valley, beyond the Hollywood Hills, and will decide on a spot within a day or two.

Building of their new home will begin immediately, and furnishings will be preordered and installed, together with a staff of servants, while they are running through the honeymoon schedule, so they can move in on return without loss of a moment.

Wouldn't it be tough if the preacher failed to show up on time?

Una Merkle is ready to give up trying to shake her synthetic Southern accent.

Although born in Covington, Ky she never had a drawl of her own, having been educated in New York and Philadelphia, but acquired the cornbread lingo for business reasons during the two years she played "Coquette" with Helen Hayes.

That was eight or nine years ago, but Hollywood has kept her sweet-mouthing in "down South" parts ever since.

Taylor for Blue Book.

With at least as much eclat as Ringling Brothers' circus entering Pine Bluff, Ark., Robert Taylor, curly-haired sex-appeal expert from Beatrice, Nebr., will enter this year's fat red volume of "Who's Who in America." Taylor has just received a form letter from the publishers asking details of his life to be immortalized for posterity.

Director Norman McLeod did the gallant thing when former stars Hedda Hooper, Claire Windsor and Betty Blythe appeared on the Hal Roach lot to play bits in "Topper." He greeted each with a huge bouquet of roses.

2 D. C. Residents On Promotion List

Names of two District of Columbia residents were on the list of Presidential nominations sent to the Senate yesterday. Ralph A. Boernstein, of 2923 Ordway street northwest, a foreign service of Class 7, was among the 18 persons promoted from Class 7 to Class 6, and Kenneth J. Yearns was on the list of 28 men on the list promoted from unclassified to Class 8, and from vice consul of career to the position of consul.

A member of the Foreign Service since 1916, Boernstein has served in the passport division of the State Department for the past seven years. Previous to that he was in the United States foreign office in Naples. Yearns, who is United States vice consul in Tientsin, China, is now in Washington on a four months' leave of absence. He is visiting his mother, Mrs. Dora M. Yearns, of 1714 Kenyon street northwest.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Roundup of Screen Story Material Insures the High Quality of Output for 1937-38, as Forecast by Will H. Hays; Fairbanks, Pere, Sells Out to Goldwyn for 'Marco Polo;' Roadside Theater Makes Known Plans for Coming Summer; 'Of Human Bondage' Added Rialto Bill Today; Theater Notes.

PURSUANT to Will H. Hays' suggestion—briefly outlined here yesterday—that a "universal audience" is being acquired by the films through the persistent determination of the producers of motion pictures to present upon the screens of the world the best works of fiction, biography, history and the drama, it is interesting to note that what the Motion Picture Herald designates "a mass round-up of story material for 1937-38 production" was consummated in March, when 16 Hollywood producing organizations purchased 53 vehicles for the screen.

BELL.

This would seem to indicate that the West Coast producers will continue to follow the course during the next few months that has been so successful during the year just past.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was the heaviest purchaser of story material in March, with six originals, three books and two plays articled for. Paramount was next with five original stories and one play, and Twentieth Century-Fox bought three originals, one book and one play. Warner Brothers, Universal and Republic Pictures each took four properties, Columbia bought two originals; Selznick Intrenational, two novels; Condor Pictures, two originals, and Reliable Pictures the same.

General Pictures, Grand National, Walter Wanger, Monogram and Samuel Goldwyn each acquired one.

A cursory examination of the list of works taken over for picturization—which, needless to say, is much too voluminous for reproduction here—indicates a perpetuation of the film-makers' purpose to bring to the silver sheet many of the most impressive of modern as well as standard works of fiction and the living theater, dealing with a broad range of subject matter and offering opportunity for the visualization of many stories and plays of enduring worth.

This is a distinctly salutary sign and the announcement of the motion picture industry's buying activity during last month comes opportunely upon the heels of "General" Hays' annual report as tangible corroboration of the optimism which it reflected.

* * * *

Speaking of Samuel Goldwyn, as we were somewhere back there, the postman whistles at the front gate and hands us this bulletin from Douglas Fairbanks, sr., momentarily in his native land: "Because of my desire to withdraw from the coproducership of 'The Adventures of Marco Polo' in order to devote my time to individual production of my own, Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, my close friend and associate, today has purchased all of my rights to this forthcoming production."

So that is that, for what it may be worth in your life and mine.

* * * *

First word that the Roadside Theater will be in operation again this summer comes in the form of an announcement yesterday that Anton Hardt will direct all of the barn productions for 1937. This marks a distinct departure from the policy followed in previous years, when Roadside productions were alternately under the charge of two directors.

With the production of "The Octoroon," Roadside's first attraction, Mr. Hardt established himself as an ace reviver of old, blood-and-thunder melodramas. His subsequent hits include "Murder in the Red Barn," presented in the old red barn so many times that its flamboyant lines still cling to the moldering rafters, and the manuscript play done last summer, "Windmills in Manhattan."

This year he will direct seven plays in a period of 14 weeks, one of the most pretentious schedules ever attempted by a director not employing full-time actors. Mr. Hardt at present is serving on the faculty of the Hilda Spong School of Drama in New York.

Miss Spong, by the way, will be recalled by old-timers among Washington theatergoers as a member of the old Columbia Theater Players when Wilton Lackaye, Charlotte Walker, later of the wife of Eugene Walter, playwright, and the late Sir Guy Standing—then merely Guy Standing, an upstanding English actor, if you can overlook the unintentional pun—were the leading members of the cast. That was a mere 30 years ago!

* * * *

The list of nearby suburban theaters was increased by one last night with the opening of the Reed Theater in Alexandria, Va. The house has a seating capacity of 1,300 and was designed and erected by John Zink, theater architect of Baltimore, Md., who also built the Rialto, Uptown and other Washington picture houses. The Reed is conveniently located near the George Washington Memorial, with parking space for approximately 1,000 cars.

* * * *

"Of Human Bondage," instead of short-reel subjects, as suggested in yesterday's review, will be added to the bill at the Rialto Theater today as companion feature with "The Robber Symphony," to pick up the vacant time made available by the elimination of the symphony orchestra, conducted by Fredercik Feher through last night.

"Of Human Bondage" costars Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, with a splendid supporting cast in the secondary roles. This is the picture for which this column always has felt that Miss Davis should have received the Academy award.

Magda Sonja, who in private life is Mrs. Feher; Hans Feher, who plays the boy lead in the picture, and his black dog, Sultan, will continue to make personal appearances throughout the current week at the Rialto.

* * * *

Under the co-chairmanship of Sam Galanty and Harry Brown, the Variety Club, embracing practically all of the showmen in the Washington territory in its membership, will hold its annual golf tournament at the Congressional Country Club on Friday, May 7. The families and friends of the members will be included in the outing and prizes will be awarded in profusion. This event may be relied upon to turn in some of the weirdest cards in the history of the ancient Scottish game!

Contract Bridge

From the First-Aid Kit.

The method of playing any combination of cards should vary according to the trick objective. If declarer can afford to lose a trump trick and still make his contract, he should not attempt the same line of play that would be necessary if he could afford to lose no trump tricks. This is one of those super-obvious factors that should require no restatement, but unfortunately even the super-obvious is not always observed at the bridge table. Consider the trump situation in the hand shown below.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North:
♠ A J 10
♡ 10 4
◇ K J 7 5
♣ K 10 4 2

West:
♡ K J 9 7
◇ 9 8 6 4 8
♣ A 9 3

East:
♠ 8 7 6 4 3 2
♣ 8 6 5

South:
♠ K Q 9
♡ A Q 8 6 5 3 2
♣ Q J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 N T	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, with the hope of making three heart tricks, opened the Ace of clubs and, when East, played low, shifted to the nine of diamonds. Dummy played the Jack, East the Queen and South ruffed.

With no tricks to lose outside the trump suit itself, declarer made the "normal" play of laying down his Ace. After that West's three heart tricks became a certainity, and the contract went down to defeat.

It should have been an easy matter for declarer to see that the one chance of losing the contract depended on finding all four of the missing cards banked against him. But since it would not be fatal to find all four in East's hand, where they would be under the Ace-Queen, declarer's only precaution should have been against four in West's hand. Thus, instead of the Ace, a low trump should have been led toward dummy's ten.

If West should follow to this trick (as, of course, he would have done in this hand), the ten-spot would perform the vital function of winning a trick instead of dropping fruitlessly underenath an honor. No matter how the missing K J 9 7 of hearts had been distributed, this play to the ten would be an insurance policy. If they were split 3-1, no more than two heart tricks could be lost regardless of declarer's play.

If West failed to follow on the lead to the ten, East would be trapped on a subsequent heart lead from dummy.

The entire crux of the hand was that declarer could afford to lose two heart tricks but not three.

Bet when Clark Gable sees pictures of telephone poles swept down in floods, he is glad he changed his racket. Contrast in sisters: Demure Olivia de Havilland, and emotional, Jeanne Eagles-type Joan Fontaine.

Errol Flynn ought to indorse a toothpaste, because he looks it. Funny that Edna Mae Oliver, whose screen sniff is famous, never gets head colds. Candidate for Gallery-of-Gorgeous-Figures: Virginia Field. Harold Lloyd is a devotee of telepathy. No scene more realistic than the coming of the locust plague in "The Good Earth." Gene Raymond seems to get a kick out of hearing Robert Taylor called "Pretty Boy."

Loretta Young falls head-over-heels in love at least once a year. After "Craig's Wife," two masculine fans wrote letters to Rosalind Russell (who played the mean Mrs.) and withdrew previous marriage proposals. Mack Gordon, who jolts the scales to 350, composed the song, "Floating Like a Feather in the Breeze." Actors on sets smoke cigarets like amateurs, holding them gingerly to keep from spoiling makeup. Shirley Temple's mother spends a weekly hour opening gifts sent to her daughter.

I have commented more than once on the simple happiness that prevails in the Joel McCrea-Frances Dee household. I probably will comment many more times, because such idealistic bliss is worthy of notice. I was standing near Frances the other morning when a friend said to her, "I never see you and Joel at night clubs. What do you do for entertainment?"

Miss Dee hesitated an instant, then responded, "Why, nothing much, I guess. We never seem to think of it, what with our ranch and home and children."

Dick Powell tells me of this amusing experience when he and Joan Blondell were seeking a new maid. A colored lass applied and seemed satisfactory, so Joan was ready to hire her. Knowing some of the picture jargon (but understanding little of it), the Negro girl said she would take the job if they would give her a six-month contract. Powell, somewhat surprised, asked, "With options?" "Nevah mind 'bout them," the would-be maid replied, "but ah does insist on a private bath."

During the icy spell and flu epidemic that discomforted the colony a few weeks ago, stars were receiving thousands of letters from the East, asking if sunny California was really cold. George Brent answered many such letters by sending photographs showing his house almost buried under snow drifts.

As a gag, he obtained a ton of "prop" snow and piled it Swiss Alps effect. He had such fun with the still photographs, he decided that motion pictures should be taken. But they never were, because one day George's "snow" disappeared. Manufactured of bleached corn flakes, it had attracted neighbors' chickens, and they practically cleaned up the stuff.

H. C. Feller Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Henry C. Feller, 79, who died Sunday in the Portner Apartments, will be held tomorrow in Hines funeral parlors, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native of Woodstock, Va., Mr. Feller was in the hotel business for a number of years before coming to Washington. He held executive positions in hotels at Cumberland, Md., Deer Park, Md., and Baltimore. He engaged in the building business here from 1910 to 1928.

Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Emma Lyon, in whose apartment he died, and Mrs. James H. Jarman, also of this city; a son, Henry C. Feller, jr., and four sisters, Mrs. Parker H. Sweet, this city; Mrs. Mary Wicks, New Market, Va.; Mrs. Jennie Kingree, Woodstock, and another sister who lives in California.

Jurist Reaches 80; Retains U. S. Post

Denver, April 5 (AP).—One of the oldest members of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in the United States attained his eightieth birthday today and avowed his intention to "keep on working."

Robert E. Lewis, senior judge of the Tenth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in Denver, mused over his 31 years in the judiciary.

Asked if he had any intention of retiring Judge Lewis said he "may get off any day. You can't tell, and I may stay for years. There is alway nature's act of removal to be considered: "I can't be put off. Of course, if I get so I can't do my work they can appoint another judge to the court. But I feel like I can hold up my end for a while longer."

Maj. L. L. Simms Funeral Today In Arlington

Funeral services for Maj. Lyman L. Simms, 58, retired, of 1210 Geranium street northwest, who died at Walter Reed Hospital Sunday, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in Arlington Cemetery, section six, where he will be buried. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, will officiate.

A native of New Brunswick, Canada, Maj. Simms first served as a field clerk in the Quartermaster Corps from 1916 to 1917. Commissioned a captain in the Quartermaster Section of the Officers Reserve Corps the same year, he was immediately called to active duty and was promoted to major the following year. In September, 1920, he vacated his rank to accept a commission as captain, finance department, in the Regular Army. Retired in 1929 for disability received in line of duty, he was promoted the following year to the rank of major, retired.

He had two details of service in Washington, from June to October, 1917, as assistant to the Depot Quartermaster, and from 1924 to 1927 in the office of Chief of Finance. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva W. Simms, of Geranium street.

Spain Intervenes On Factory Crises

The Spanish Embassy said last night that where industrial plants deserted by managers are being operated by employes the government now stationed at Valencia has "decreed immediate intervention."

"This measure is enforced by responsible and duly authorized government agencies," an embassy spokesman said. "It has been taken only in order to meet the emergency at hand."

The embassy stated the Spanish government emphasized "that all financial obligations are being met under due financial process; loans are being amortized and interest coupons are being paid, all as part of normal banking operations."

Chinese Leader Sweeps Emperor-Kin's Tomb

Nanking, April 5 (AP).—The Nationalist leader Wang Ching-wei wielded a broom today to clean the tomb of Emperor Hung We, founder of the Ming Dynasty which ended an alien Mongol reign in the fourteenth century. It was part of ceremonies honoring ancient patriots and great Emperors.

Wang said the tomb "symbolized the glorification of the national spirit" as he carried out the Chinese custom, centuries old, of journeying at this season to ancestors' tombs, cleansing them and offering sacrifices.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, April 5.

TO HARRY L. HOPKINS, the WPA administrator, is assigned the job of spending more money than any man ever spent in the history of the world . . . Mr. Hopkins was one of those who attended the Bowie race track opening Thursday afternoon. For ten minutes he studied the entries on the racing chart and, after great deliberation, made his selection. He summoned a messenger to place his bet on Real Jam, the favorite . . . This biggest official spender of the ages bet $2!

THE CHIMNEY PLEASURE CLUB, composed of a number of New York notables, was incorporated here in 1919. Their meeting room was the bar upstairs at Mori's—the bar Raymond Hood duplicated from the barroom in the palace of Gabriel d'Annunzio . . . Enrico Caruso was one of the charter members. Caruso, who was proud of his art work, was bored at one of the meetings, drew some crayon from his pocket and sketched a Greenwich Village landscape upon the wall . . . For 18 years that drawing remained untouched—treasured by Mori, who considered it his prized possession. The walls were painted recently, and eight coats of paint were applied . . . "In one spot," the contractor reported to Mori at the end of the day, "we had to apply ten coats of paint—because somebody had messed it up with some fool crayon sketches."

The plaintiffs will point out that such permission was granted to publicize a motion picture last week.

LUCIUS CRAM COOK, director of WPA's "The Sun and I," showed some visitors around the Adelphi Theater on Wednesday. He asked them to pay particular heed to Tom Adrian Cracraft's gorgeous paint job. Cook, after this enthusing, stepped out into the backstage alley—where a bucket of Cracraft's gorgeous paint fell over him.

IN RONNIE GEDEON'S apartment was found a copy of the April issue of World Astrology magazine. The slain model had been reading "Daughters of Pleasure," which interpreted the horoscopes of four women of the world. Ronnie's horoscope was identical with those of the Daughters of Pleasure. And, for that day, it showed "serious aspects from unexpected sources."

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING CO. has planned an elaborate exploitation stunt in connection with the coronation. N. B. C. has imported the very robes in which Queen Alexandra, grandmother of the present monarch, was crowned. This is the first time in the history of Great Britain that the coronation gowns of a former Queen have been permitted to leave the country. The publicity photos will show Hildegarde, the coronation singer, attired in this regal raiment.

Linke's Triple in Ninth Beats Cards, 4-3, to End Slump

Newsom's Good Work Aids Cause

Pitcher's Triple in 9th With Millies on Base Wins Contest.

Newsom Yields Six Hits, But Gives Up Only 1 Run in 6 Frames.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—The Nats today found somebody they could lick and brought their four-game losing streak to a gratifying stop. But it was no upset, because they were rematched with the St. Louis Cardinals, who had a winning percentage of exactly .000 in three previous battles with the Nats this spring.

But there was nevertheless some doubt as to how it was all going to end, even as late as the ninth inning when the ball game finally blew up in the faces of the Gas House Gang. The score, 4-3, wasn't much to brag about, but Ed Linke was.

Big red-faced Linke had been having a very unhappy time of it after relieving Buck Newsom in the seventh, with the Nats in possession of a 3-1 lead. He got by the seventh, but he pitched two runs to the Gas Hause Gang in the eighth when they tied the score.

Linke was perilously close to the Nats' penal colony at Chattanooga as a result of his wastrel pitching in that eighth, but in the ninth he saw the thing to a happy finish.

Walter Millies whacked a single to center against Rookie Chambers to launch the Nats' ninth and then the cherubic Linke strode to the plate. Manager Bucky Harris, with Linke's ninth-inning home run against Chattanooga the other day still fresh in his memory, disdained the use of a pinch hitter for the pitcher.

The Cardinals detected the bunt sign and Third Baseman Gutteridge was playing within expectorating distance of the plate, when Manager Harris abruptly changed his signals to Linke. He told Linke to hit, and the fat pitcher didn't tarry.

Linke's bat slammed against Chambers' second pitch, a screaming line drive rocketed into deep centerfield, and two Cardinal outfielders were still chasing it when Millies galloped across the plate on a sprint from first base. It was no bunt, and was scored as a triple for Linke.

Louie Norman Newsom had an important hand in the Nats' triumph—his right hand, which was releasing a deadly fire of fast balls toward the Cardinals during those first six innings while the Nats were compiling their 3-1 lead.

The recapitulation of Cardinal hit is not so impressive for Buck—they made six off him—but they couldn't dent the plate after the first inning, when Newsom's only walk of the game was translated into a run after Frisch singled to left.

Buck delighted the 1,500 natives in the stands when he held the Cardinals scoreless in the third after Bordagaray and Stu Martin, the first two men to face him, rapped out singles. He disposed of Frisch on a ground ball and then, with evident satisfaction, struck out the next two guys—Padgett and Mize, who were supposed to be the Cards' clean-up hitters.

The Nats' wiped out the Cards' 1-0 lead in the second when Travis belted a triple to right and beat Frisch's throw to the plate on Mihalic's grounder. Mihalic, who was safe on first, galloped home by easy stages on Hogan's single to right and Mr. Newsom's single to center.

The left-handed Bob Weiland, a reformed American leaguer, was the victim of this assault and the Nats greeted Mike Ryba, his successor, with a run in the fifth. It all started when Buddy Lewis laid down a perfect bunt toward third, and Ryba threw the ball into Orlando's main drag in an attempt to get him at

McGinnis Dies, Was Leading Jockey in '36

Steeplechase Rider Was 25; Complained of an Earache Earlier.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., July 5.—Paul McGinnis, the leading steeplechase rider in this country last year, died tonight at his Baltimore home. McGinnis complained of an earache and died a few hours after being admitted to a hospital. A native of Detroit, 25 years old, he had been associated with racing half his life. Although he was best known for his steeplechase riding. McGinnis also was a flat race pilot and did the unusula last fall at Pimlico by riding a jumper and a flat racer to victory on the same program.

McGinnis was under contract to John Bosley, trainer for the steeplechase horses of H. R. Bain, Canadian sportsman. He had been helping condition steeplechasers at the Pimlico track.

Last year McGinnis won with 9 of 28 mounts and was astride Rockland when the gelding won the International Steeplechase Handicap at Belmont Park. He also rode for the Seagram stable.

He is survived by his widow, his mother and a brother and a sister.

Camarata Outfought By Ingram

Victor Gets Unanimous Verdict in First Rate Boxing Match.

Stewart Knocks Out Marshall in a Semi-Windup Battle.

Ray Ingram, eighth ranking featherweight, won a unanimous decision from Nick Camarata, ranked No. 10, in as pretty a boxing exhibition as you would care to see at Turner's Arena last night.

The eight-round fight was just as close as the ranking of the two featherweights.

Camarata was penalized the first two rounds for low blows, but might have lost the bout without that handicap.

A capacity crowd watched the proceedings.

Ossie Stewart, colored Pittsburgh middleweight, scored a sensational third-round knockout over Rudy Marshall, of Philadelphia, in a semi-final booked for six rounds.

After a fairly even first round, Stewart jumped into a commanding second-round lead by flooring Rudy for nine.

Late in the third Ossie knocked Marshall clear through the ropes into the laps of ringside spectators with a terrific right to the chin. Rudy dangled on his head for a second or two, found his feet and scrambled back at the count of nine.

Referee Denny Hughes refused to allow him to continue and declared Stewart the winner on a technical knockout after 2 minutes and 30 seconds.

Clarence Sloat, Baltimore welterweight, scored a fifth-round technical knockout over Paul Scaffaro, of New York, in a preliminary scheduled for six rounds. Badly beaten anyway, Scaffaro was unable to answer the bell for the final round because of a broken right thumb.

In a brace of four-rounders, Hunter Crostic shaded Sam Bracala and Ole Anderosn won a unanimous decision from Mike O'Leary.

State Links Group Plans New Tourney

Maryland Golf Association Introduces Novel Handicap Event.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 5.—A novel individual handicap tournament for club members of the Maryland State Golf Association was announced by the State body here today. Popularization of the State handicap cards is behind the idea, after holders dropped 109 last year over 1935's total of 513.

From April 17 through April 26 there will be conducted at each member club a handicap tourney along the lines of the one-day affairs that appear during the season's schedule. Winners of low gross and low net in the A, B and C classes at each club will meet May 5, one group here and another in Washington, for prize awards.

Other benefits of the cards will entitle the bearer to play in the various one-day tournaments, sponsored by the association on Baltimore and Washington courses, throughout the year, including qualifications for the various junior, senior and other events under the aegis of the M. S. G. A. The fees go toward the running of the State body. Merchandise prizes are awarded winners of each event.

Other innovations of the schedule will be a State junior open, open to boys under 21, regardless of affilitiation with member clubs. A senior-junior event is also being added to the card.

PETE SARRON will box at Harringay, England, April 15, against HARRY MIZLER, former British lightweight champion . . . the featherweight champion was to have defended his title against JOHNNY McCRORY, but the Scotsman had his jaw broken . . . Pete's bout will be in support of the mess between MAX BAER and TOMMY FARR . . . And goodness knows that one will need some first-class support! . . . Speaking of Baer, he once had a yen to take a poke at JACK MILEY, the New York newspaper man who was in the brawl with the GASMOUTH GANG . . . Indian Spring Course Is Selected As National PGA Qualifying Site

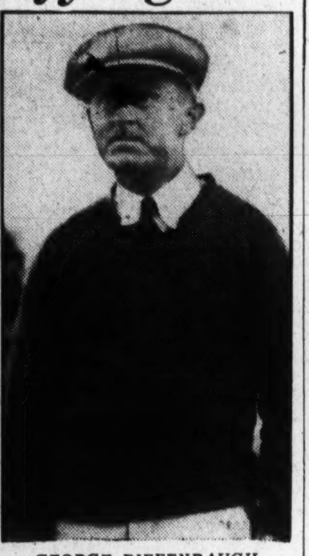
RALPH BEACH.

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK.



GEORGE DIFFENBAUGH.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Officially installing George Diffenbaugh as president, electing three officers under him, and approving the Indian Spring course as the qualifying trials for the National P. G. A., occupied a four-hour session of the Middle Atlantic pros at Indian Spring yesterday.

Ralph Beach, Suburban Club of Baltimore, was elected first vice president; Bobby Cruickshank, Country Club of Virginia in Richmond, second vice president, and Bill Schrieber, of the Mount Pleasant course in Baltimore, was retained as secretary-treasurer.

Three members of the local body will qualify for the P. G. A. tourney in Pittsburgh in the 36-hole qualifying rounds over the Indian Spring course on Thursday, April 29.

A rumored break in the Baltimore and Washington factions, expected to flare up in the meeting, was smoothed over with a stronger and closer bound body resulting. More than 40 pros attended the meeting, one of the most highly satisfactory in the history of the group.

Rain prevented a scheduled pro-amateur tournament, carded after the meeting. Erine Caldwell, Spencer Overton and Nathan Kaufman, with Bannockburn and Kenwood Clubs, announced a new tourney added to the usual schedule, at Old Point Comfort, Va., on May 10. The Chamberlain Hotel, Houghton's backer, will add a $100 purse to the entrance fees. It will be a regulation, pro-sweepstakes open. All local amateurs will be invited.

Congressional, Beaver Dam and Manor were the other Washington clubs drawing tourneys, the remainder going to Baltimore and Virginia courses. Congressional will draw a lady pro event with the other two clubs sponsoring pro-amateurs.

Several other weekly tourneys will be sandwiched in the regular schedule. They will be announced later. Congressional's lady pro event is an added feature of the card. Three women golfers with Baltimore simon-pure aces, were on hand, but were not able to play, as were Volney Burnett, Eddie Bean and other local aces.

A pro-amateur event at Indian Spring on Monday, April 19, was posted as the first event on the tournament schedule, also released at the meeting. The event will also serve as a practice test for the pros for the PGA trials there the following week.

Al Houghton, formerly connected handicaps will play with each professional.

The complete tournament schedule.

April 29—Qualifying rounds, Indian Spring, for National P. G. A. tournament at Pittsburgh Field Club, Aspinwall, Pa.; three Middle Atlantic pros to qualify; 36 holes, medal play.

May 24—Pro-pro Scotch foursome, Mt. Pleasant Club, Baltimore.

August 30—Pro sweepstakes, course to be selected in Richmond, Va.

Mid-South Golf Lead Is Taken By Mrs. Page

Dunlap Shoots 70, Then Rain Halts North and South Qualifying.

By the Associated Press.

Southern Pines, N. C., April 5.—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, who won the North and South title at Pinehurst last week, gained a four-stroke margin over her nearest competitors in today's 18-hole round of the annual 63-hole Midsouth match play tourney for women. The second 18 holes will be played tomorrow.

The sturdy Chapel Hill golfer clipped five strokes off women's par with a 39-39—78.

In second place were Virginia Guilfoil, blonde Syracuse, N. Y., collegian, who gave Mrs. Page a battle in the North and South final, and Mrs. Karl Scheidt, of Philadelphia, each of whom had 41-41—82. Both bettered par of 43-40—83.

Missing when the field of 40 linkswomen teed off were Deborah Verry, winner in 1936, and two South Carolina stars of the winter season, Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, and Jane Cothran, of Greenville.

Although the event is one of the few "open tourneys" for women, the two outstanding business women golfers of the country, Helen Hicks, of Long Island, and Mildred Babe Didrikson, of Texas, failed to participate.

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5.—George T. Dunlap, jr., shot a sparkling 70 in the qualifying round of the North and South Amateur golf tourney today to begin defense of his title against 171 competitiors, but his brilliant effort went for naught because a soaking thunderstorm caused postponement of play after about 50 of the simon-pures had toured the 18 holes.

Dunlap, former national champion and five times winner of the North and South, had a four-stroke lead over his nearest contender, Charles Whitehead, of Plainfield, N. J., when the squall forced cancellation of play. Some of the favored entries, however, had not completed their rounds, including Jack Munger, of Dallas, Tex., and Art Strafaci, of Brooklyn.

The qualifying round will be started over tomorrow. Members of the tournament committee said they would likely arrange two 18-hole rounds on Wednesday or Thursday in order to reach the 36-hole final by Saturday as originally planned.

Rep. Cannon's Qniz Plea Held Sabotage

Charge That Contract Clause Violates Anti-Trust Act Answered With Assertion That 'Life of Trade Depends on It.'

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—Clark Griffith, 67-year-old owner of the Washington Club, today took violent issue with Representative Raymond J. Cannon, who has demanded a Federal investigation of organized baseball on charges that club owners are violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

The reserve caluse in the player's contract which Cannon has cited as a restraint of trade in that players are compelled to sign at the clubowner's terms or face a virtual boycott in baseball, is vitally necessary to the maintenance of organized baseball, Mr. Griffith declared.

Mr. Griffith defended the reserve clause as a protection of the player in that otherwise organized baseball with its high salaries could not continue if players were permitted to change teams without permission of the owners.

The Nats' owner made the following prepared statement:

"Tampering with the reserve clause would not only stop the progress and growth of our great national pastime, but would kill altogether the big salaries and great benefits accruing each year to the boys and men who play the game.

"Very Life of Sport."

"Every ball player knows that the life of his trade depends on the reserve clause and that competition between teams of equal strength is the very life of his business and without which his salary would be naught.

"The Supreme Court has already decided that the reserve clause in a player's contract is necessary to maintain the high wages that players receive, and necessary also to the life of organized baseball.

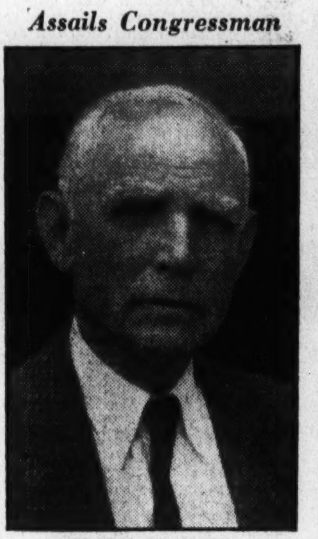
"The present policy of our Government, as I understand it, is to arrange matters so business might live and that the employes may have an equitable scale of wages. The reserve clause makes all this possible.

"Unions Unlikely."

"Further, there can be no unionization in the players' line for reason that there can be no one scale of wages. Imagine for instance, a player who signed his contract for $10,000, going on a sit-down strike waiting for Lou Gehrig or Dizzy Dean to get a $50,000 salary.

"Baseball today is an inviting field for young men and offers opportunity for rapid advancement and high earnings. Any move tending to disrupt its conduct would be a ruinous blow to the game and thousands of young Americans' prospects of a livelihood."

Assails Congressman



CLARK GRIFFITH, 67-year-old owner of the Washington Nats, who flung a vigorous reply yesterday to the charge of Representative Raymond J. Cannon, of Wisconsin.

Bright and Early Captures Bowie Feature on Heavy Track

3 Winners Are Ridden By LeBlanc

Acautaw, Frisco Kid, Victorian Star, Khay, Count Me Win.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 5.—Bright and Early, owned by Robert Robertson, splashed six furlongs to win the Sagamore Handicap, featured event of a dismal afternoon at this race track. With the veteran jockey Johnny Gilbert in the saddle Bright and Early led Mrs. B. F. Christmas' Sunned to the wire by a half length, with T. F. Swords' Vote Boy third in the vest-pocket field of five.

Bright and Early was installed the favorite with the 6,000 customers, but had to be kept to a drive in the stretch to stave off the closing bid of Sunned. The winner paid a $4.80 mutuel and ran the route in 1:16 2-5.

Threatening morning skies finally wept with the start of the program and the track became heavier as the program progressed.

After a short scuffle that marked the getaway, Vote Boy became a definite leader. He was accompanied by Bright and Early and Sunned. Gilbert had a nice grip on the favorite to the far turn and then asked his mount for real speed. Bright and Early responded with a rush that established him as the leader and Gilbert did not let up on him thereafter. It was well that he didn't, for Sunned saved much ground at the final bend and was wearing down his rivel at the finish. Vote Boy managed to hang on for the third money.

LeBlanc Rides Winner.

Hubert Le Blanc, popular apprentice jockey who rode the winner of the eighth race in Tropical Park's finale Saturday, began his Maryland campaign in top style by bringing Acautaw, a veteran sprinter, to the wire ahead of six others over the six-furlong course. Le Blanc sent Acautaw to the front early in the running but had to work on the gelding in the late stretch as Golden Vein, the favorite, moved up. The latter was a length and a half behind at the finish, with Ironbound third. Acautaw was clocked in 1:15 4-5 and paid a $5.70 mutuel. The race was run in a light rain but the track was fast.

Frisco Kid, a Bomar Stable representative making his first start of the 1937 season, scored an easy victory in the second race. The gelded son of Jean Valjean defeated Conservative by two and a half lengths, with Ipso Facto, the favorite, another length away. He paid a $12.20 mutuel and recorded time of 1:16 for the six furlongs.

Vanderbilt Entry Wins.

A. G. Vanderbilt's cerise and white diamonds were borne to victory for the first time here this season by Victorian Star in the third race. Ridden by Sammy Renick, the colt bounded by the leaders in the stretch to win by four lengths. The photo was consulted before Francesco, the public choice, was awarded second money over Black Boo. The winner paid an $8.20 mutuel, and his time for the six furlongs was 1:16 2-5. The track was muddy by this time.

Le Blanc rode his second winner of the day aboard the favored Khay in the fourth race. He sent him to the front when ready and came through with some good kicking and elbowing to get him home. Brush Handle, one that had much trouble in the running, was second, with Harry's Dream third. Khay, a $5.40 betting proposition, ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:49 3-5. More Poise, one that contested Harry's Dream for the pace-setting honors, stopped to a walk and was pulled up.

Le Blanc piloted his third winner of the afternoon in the sixth race. The boy, who broke his arm at Laurel last fall, had the mount on Count Me, a $3.30 for $2 favorite and he made no mistakes, winning by eight lengths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACAUTAW, $5.70, $2.90, $2.20; GOLDEN VEIN, $2.60, $2.10; IRONBOUND, $2.30.

ACAUTAW, rushed to the front in the opening sixteenth, drew out to a good lead swinging for the stretch, but had to be kept to a stout drive to stave off GOLDEN VEIN. The latter was away well and finished gamely. IRONBOUND lacked early speed after breaking on top, and was going fastest of all at the end. WATERMAN showed an even effort. TAUNTON closed some ground in the late stages after being outrun. SAKUNTALA stopped after pressing the pace for a quarter.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds claiming. Went to post at 2:59. Off at 3:01. Start good from stall. Won easily; place driving. Winner, Bomar Stable's b. or b. g. (3), by Jean Valjean—Tesque. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRISCO KID, $12.20, $6.40, $3.40; CONSERVATIVE, $4.30, $3.20; IPSO FACTO, $2.80.

FRISCO KID, slow to settle into his best stride, was steered to the outside for racing room while bettering his position approaching the stretch turn, wore down CONSERVATIVE midway of the stretch and was being eased up at the end. CONSERVATIVE, first away, was steadied along in front, but could not cope with the winner when placed to a drive. IPSO FACTO saved much ground entering the stretch, but hung nearing the end. PLAYNOT tired after pressing the pace of CONSERVATIVE. The others were always outrun.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:30. Start good from stall. Won easily; place driving. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's blk. or br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VICTORIAN STAR, $8.20, $3.80, $3.10; FRANCESCO, $3.20, $2.60; BLACK BOO, $6.90.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE—FIRST AND THIRD RACES—PAID $25.00.

VICTORIAN STAR, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, rallied sharply when placed to a drive and drew far out in the closing stages. FRANCESCO, off very poorly, was hard ridden throughout and closed willingly. BLACK BOO saved ground and was going gamely at the end. CRIUS went evenly. ISADORE tired after chasing HIGH HEDGE. The latter had high early speed, but stopped midway of the stretch. SIR WINDSOR had early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 3:59. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, J. H. Logan's b. c. †Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHAY, $5.40, $3.90, $2.40; BRUSH HANDLE, $11.40, $5.60; HARRYS DREAM, $2.50.

KHAY kept out of trouble on the outside to the far turn, took command when called up nearing the far turn, shook off HARRYS DREAM, but was hard ridden to hold BRUSH HANDLE safe. The latter, probably best, was squeezed back going to the first turn, was pulled up when in tight quarters swinging into the backstretch and closed full of run. HARRYS DREAM was hard used running with MORE POISE and was faltering at the end. LANDSCAPE had speed in spots. MORE POISE dropped out of it after a half and was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Sagamore Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 4:28. Off at 4:30½. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, R. LEMONT	(Barba)	100	3	5	5	5	4^{2}	4^{3}	8.35
SUN POWER	(Porter)	115	4	4	4^{h}	4^{1}	5	5	13.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT AND EARLY, $4.80, $3.10, $2.20; SUNNED, $4.20, $2.40; VOTE BOY, $2.20.

BRIGHT AND EARLY, closest to the pace of VOTE BOY from the start, took the lead nearing the stretch and withstood a long drive to hold SUNNED safe. The latter was in tight quarters leaving the backstretch, saved much ground at the final turn and was wearing down the winner at the end. VOTE BOY was rushed to the front at once and was tiring gradually at the finish. LEMONT could not reach contention. SUN POWER showed good speed for a half.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:55½. Start good from stall. Won handily; place driving. Winner, P. M. Ryan's br. g. (4), by Reigh Count—Watch Me. Trained by P. Reuter. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25 3-5, 0:51 2-5, 1:18, 1:45, 1:52 1-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
COUNT ME	(LeBlanc)	108	7	5	1½	1^{1}	1^{4}	1^{4}	1^{8}	$0.65

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNT ME, $3.30, $2.90, $2.20; MAKEIT, $11.00, $5.40; JAMES BOY, $3.00.

COUNT ME went between horses at the first turn to take a brief lead over ENGLES BOY, shook off that one to open a wide lead leaving the backstretch and was being taken in hand at the finish. MAKEIT worked his way up to the leaders on the outside and closed with good courage. JOBAKHETA showed a good effort. ENGLES BOY pressed the pace to the stretch and then tired. The others could not reach contention.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, R. C. Hanna's ch. m. (5), by The Satrap—Felside. Trained by L. L. Lycan. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:26, 0:52 2-5, 1:19 1-5, 1:45 4-5, 1:52 4-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
FELWYN	(O'Malley)	109	7	4	2½	2½	1½	2½	1^{1}	$4.85

COUNTERPASS	(I.Hanford)	106	6	7	7^{4}	8	8	8	8	81.55

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FELWYN, $11.70, $5.30, $5.50; HAPPY FLAG, $5.30, $5.50; POST BRIGADE, $9.10.

FELWYN ran WAR CHASE and TIEMPO into defeat while hard ridden and came again after being displaced by HAPPY FLAG in the early stretch run. The latter was allowed to settle into stride while trailing and saving ground, went to the front with a sharp move approaching the stretch turn, but faltered slightly in the closing eighth. POST BRIGADE loomed menacingly in the early stretch, but faltered suddenly. CHIEF MOURNER moved up to contest FELWYN along the backstretch, but tired badly. WAR CHASE had good early speed. TIEMPO faltered after reaching the top under hustling tactics. CONTINUITY showed a dull effort.

It's Comeback Time for Some of American League's Better Players; So Keep an Eye on These and Buddy Myer, the Nats' Hope.

There is no doubt that the absence of two great sluggers from the Detroit Tiger roster for most of last season changed the pattern of the American League race which the New York Yankees won going away.

And there is little doubt that the return of Manager Mickey Cochrane and Hank Greenberg to the firing line will give the world champion New York Yankees considerable trouble in the upcoming campaign.

The second-place Tigers of a year ago are now bolstered by the return of these two pace-makers who aided materially in the winning of the pennants in 1934 and 1935.

Series Sorrow.

Greenberg's troubles began in the 1935 World Series—the first ever won by Detroit. He suffered torn ligaments in his left wrist and forearm in the second game of the postseason play and was benched thereafter.

Apparently fully recovered from this misfortune, he suffered a split fracture of the same wrist last April 29 in a baseline collision with Jake Powell, then with Washington, now with the Yankees.

This was the first of a series of troubles that afflicted Mickey Cochrane's then world champion troupe. It sent the big first sacker back to the Bronx for the remainder of the season after he had opened up by bludgeoning for a batting average of .348 in the dozen games in which he appeared.

Now Greenberg shows no evidence of the two wrist injuries that gave him the tentative stamp of "glass athlete," an affliction that seems to strike otherwise hardy and durable athletes built in the larger molds.

Double Trouble.

As though the loss of Greenberg were not enough, the jinx pursued the Tigers and struck down Mickey Cochrane himself. On doctors' orders he had to turn over the managerial reins to other hands and seek rest and quiet out West for a time while his Tigers wallowed through the race. All told, Cochrane appeared in only 44 games last year and batted a mere .270, as compared with his lifetime major league average of .320, which was considerably depressed by his light hitting while he was ill last season.

"As Cochrane goes, so goes the Tigers," is no idle statement, and the proof lies in the somewhat sorry showing of Detroit last year when they finished 19½ games behind those Yankees. Of course, Greenberg was missing, too, but the Tiger attack centers in Cochrane. This year he expects to catch 90 or 100 games, and he pronounces both Greenberg and himself fit for regular duty.

Another comebacker likely to cause some concern to rivals is Charles Solomon (Buddy) Myer, Washington's 1935 American League batting champion, who was stricken by illness last season and had to give up after one-third of the campaign, in which his hitting fell off to .269 as compared with his .349 mark in 1935.

The world champion Yankees have a comebacker, too, and don't know what to do with him despite the fact that he is showing all the signs in spring training. Myril Hoag returned fully recovered from his fly-chasing collision with Joe DiMaggio to find the world champion outfield fully populated. Joe McCarthy plans to keep him in reserve—for duty in case that old injury jinx catches up with the Yanks.

Arlington Hall To Hold Horse Show, May 15

The second annual Arlington Hall Horse Show, only sanctioned show in Arlington County, will be held at the Arlington Hall School for Girls, May 15. To permit more time for classes open only to girls' schools, eliminations in this type of event will be held the preceding day.

Particular stress will be laid on open events because of the general interest shown in jumper and open classes.

Besides the usual jumper, hunter, Corinthian and hunt team classes, there will be classes for hunters under saddle, not to jump and hunter hacks. A special feature will be horsemanship classes for children up to 12 years and a class for children over that age.

The hunter course, which is over typical rolling hunter country, has been greatly improved since last year's show. Turns have been widened and a few of the jumps, which offered too severe tests, have been modified.

If weather conditions are unfavorable, the show will be moved inside to the C. C. Lamond Arena, on the school grounds.

Center Softball Play Opens With 8 Teams

The Community Center Department, which successfully revived indoor softball after a 25-year lapse, is looking forward to carrying its winter success outdoors when it opens play in the newly organized Community Center Softball League.

Eight teams comprise the league, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Pearson & Crain, Diamond Cab, Federal WPA, Bureau of Standards, Sogimas, Triple "A" and Ehrlich Poultry, the favored team.

Managers of all teams listed are requested to be present at a meeting to be held at Tech High School Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Merrick's Seek.

The Merrick Boys Club intermediate and junior baseball teams are seeking games for this week on their field. Call the Boys Club.

Men Past 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St. N. Y.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al:

I have heard owners and trainers give a variety of answers to the question. "Do you like your horse today?" However, here's a fair one. A press-box boy went to the paddock to ask a certain trainer about the chances of his horse. The horseman said, "He ain't no sprinter, won't go a distance of ground, can't run in the mud, a fast track hurts his feet, can't carry weight and a light boy can't ride him. Do you know anybody what's got a sledge hammer?" The horse ran last. If you've been having hard luck at the track, just think of the story the horsemen brought back from California. A jockey agent accompanied two riders to Santa Anita last winter. One day he obtained mounts for them on pretty good horses. He took what remained of his bankroll and parlayed the two horses. Both won but both were disqualified and, furthermore, both of the jockeys were suspended. That's what I call tough going. I received a complaint in the mail about the finish camera here. However, I have agreed with every decision to date and if there has been any booing I did not hear it. One of the writers from Florida says he passed Clocker Mike outside of Jacksonville. Mike was riding on the back of a pie wagon.

Linke Is Hero As Nats Score Over Cards, 4-3

Pitcher's Triple in Ninth Wins, Newsom Yields 6 Hits, One Run.

There was some shoddy play by the Nats in that eighth when the Cards' tied the score at 3-3. Bordagray whammed a Linke pitch for a single and raced to second base after Millies caught Martin's pop foul and, satisfied with his catch, failed to keep his eye on Bordagaray. Gutteridge blasted a single to center and Bordagaray scored when Jess Hill's throw to the plate was, conservatively, 20 feet wide, and got away from Millies. Gutteridge raced to third on the error and Padgett's single scored him.

But, eventually, Linke came to bat.

Simmons' first appearance in a Washington uniform today was an impressive affair and highly gratifying to owner Clark Griffith, who separated himself from $15,000 yesterday in purchasing Simmons from the Tigers.

Installed in left field by Manager Bucky Harris, Simmons cracked out two hits in his four times at bat—a stinging single through shortstop and a smart single to right which he deliberately pushed in that direction after faking a heavy swing.

But his defensive play was even more impressive. He galloped back against the fence for Terry Moore's well-spanked fly in the second inning, and in the fourth he was positively sensational. Chasing a long drive off Catcher Owen's bat with great haste, Simmons rifled a magnificent throw to Travis, who relayed the ball to Lewis at third and Owen was out trying to stretch the hit to a triple.

It was a downcast Freddie Sington who learned last night of the Nats' purchase of Simmons, which will be tantamount to an announcement that Sington had failed in his bid for a regular job in the Nats' outfield.

"I hope you're not giving up on me," he told Manager Bucky Harris before today's game.

"Not a bit, Fred," Harris told the big outfielder. "There's still plenty of room for you on this team. Just don't give up on yourself."

Sington said he wouldn't.

The Nats' rapidly dwindling exhibition schedule tomorrow will find them opposing the Detroit Tigers here with Simmons due to make his first appearence against his 1936 team mates.

POVICH.

Simmons' presence in a Washington uniform is utterly incongruous with American League history because it was at Griffith Stadium the black-haired Pole always encountered the most hostile fans.

They always reserved for him the richest, ripest razzberries, the loudest boos. Capital fandom didn't like the big slugger of the A's who later performed with the White Sox and Tigers. They didn't like his swagger and his obvious attempt to mimic Ty Cobb with those long-sleeved shirts which only Cobb used to affect.

And they never liked either the way Simmons handled his bat at Griffith Stadium. That is, they didn't like those home runs and other extra base hits that used to rocket off his shillelah with such destruction to the Nats' hopes of winning a ball game.

What a Feud!

"Sorehead!" they yelled when Simmons squawked at an umpire's decision or shook his fist at the pitcher he thought was using a bean ball, and then Simmons would laugh at 'em. They didn't like that either.

* * *

His feud with Fred Marberry will go down in history as one of the most cordial hates in baseball and Washington fans chortled on the day when Big Marberry dared Simmons to come out to the pitcher's mound and start something.

Marberry had just thrown a pitch perilously close to Simmons' head and the slugger got up off the ground in a mood to throw his bat at the pitcher, but umpires stepped in to prevent trouble.

Takes His Chances

Oh, yes, he was a sorehead and a Simmons strikeout at Griffith Stadium was something to be cheered with that little extra something that distinguished an extreme burst of joy from just the run-of-the-mine cheer.

Reminded of the hostility that always greeted him in Washington, Simmons smiled and waxed philosophic tonight.

"I don't figure it was a personal hate, do you?" he said inquiringly, and then he grinned broadly. "After all, I used to give 'em plenty to dislike me for up there. Always went good in Griffith Stadium. "But whatthaell, I'll take my chances with the fans anywhere. I like to see a crowd get excited. If they cheer against you, that means they're pretty apt to be with you strong if you're on their side. Maybe they'll even come around to liking me, huh? That would be funny, though."

* * *

Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris were still congratulating themselves vigorously on the Simmons deal after dinner at the Nats' hotel tonight.

How Can He Miss?

"If he plays as well as he did last season when he batted .327 and drove in those 112 runs, he'll be a big help to us and I'll be satisfied," said Griffith. Then the Nats' owner continued; "But I'm betting that he's going to have a better year this season. I looked him over carefully before we made the deal. He's 15 pounds lighter than he was last year at this time. You remember he didn't really get started last season until the last three months and then he burned up the league. He must have hit .425 in those last three months."

Harris was less jubilant. "Here's a guy with a lifetime batting average of .325; how can he miss helping us? Al's a natural for the clean-up hitting post. I'll move Johnny Stone down to fifth, Cecil Travis to sixth and have Buddy Myer batting seventh.

* * *

"Simmons will play leftfield for us because he's always played leftfield and Stone will be moved to right because he's equally at home there. I've been in this league 17 years and I've never seen anyone get more than a single down the leftfield line when Simmons was playing out there. He gets the ball quick and he gets it awey quick and his throws are death on base runners."

6 Baseball Clubs Form New Tri-County Loop

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 5.—Six teams have formed the Tri-County Baseball League, headed by B. W. "Wood" Dyche formerly of the Sunday School League. Teams from Allegany County, Md., Morgan County, W. Va. and Somerset County, Pa., are represented.

Member clubs are Knights of Pythias of Cumberland, Old Exports of Cumberland, Flintstone Athletics Cumberland Robins, Wellersburg, Pa., and Paw Paw, (W. Va.) Boosters. All games will be played on Sundays, starting on May 2.

Md. Tourneys Revived.

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—The Baltimore County Club announced today it will revive the Maryland amateur tennis championships and hold the tournaments for both men and women during the week of June 7.

National City Leagues.

The National City "A" League will hold a meeting tonight at the Atlas Sports Store, and the "B" circuit will meet tomorrow night. Both meetings will be at 8 p. m.

G. W. Is Foe Of Harvard In Other Tilt

Western Maryland to Provide Georgetown Opposition.

Today's motto for collegiate sports is "let George do it," for George Washington engages Harvrad on the East Ellipse, and Georgetown meets up with Western Maryland at the Hilltop in the lone items on the program, moth baseball games.

The Hoyas may even carry the George motif a little farther by nominating George Nick) Nicketakis for mound duty in their initial appearance of the season. "Big Mike" Petroskey and Hank Bertrand are other eligibles for the task.

It will be Georgetown's debut under the directoin of Joe Judge, former Washington star, and it should be a successful coming-out party with a team of veterans at his command. Joe Keegin, catcher, and Tony Barabas, outfielder, are the only newcomers to the regular line-up, and Barabas had some experience last year.

Others scheduled to play are Harry Bassin, first base; Ed Bodine, second base; Tom Keating, shortstop; Ed Cavadine, third base; Carl Nau, leftfield; Tommy Nolan, centerfield; Barabas and Keegin. It is probable that Judge wlil work his pitchers in three-inning shifts. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The Colonials are trying for the second victory of the season after a series of southpaw breaks that have kept them off-balance since the start of their season. Coach Ed Morris feels that his men are much better than their record indicates, and hopes that today's game will give them a fresh start in the right direction. Action is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

Waynesboro Club Without Diamond

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 5.—Another complication in the Valley Baseball League setup developed today when the Waynesboro Club was notified by the Dupont Rayon Co. that the Dupont field will not be available for play this season.

The Waynesboro Club has hopes of obtaining the Wilson High athletic field, but this would have to be graded and enclosed. The Dupont field, considered the best in the circuit, was to have been lighted this season. It will be used by the Dupont Co. for recreation.

This announcement came as a bombshell to local baseball fans and officials, and may mean that only Staunton and Harrisonburg are assured of being in the circuit. Charlottesville, the fourth club, has given no definite answer. There is a possibility that Clifton Forge would enter the circuit, but this would increase the travel of the clubs.

Opekuh Succeeds Lawler As Mt. St. Mary Coach

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—Wally Opekun, assistant coach at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, will be in charge of the baseball team this season. Jo-Jo Lawler, who has resigned as head coach, effective June 1, has secured a position in the Pennsylvania attorney general's office at Harrisburg.

Opekun needs pitchers, Carson Walsky, experienced righthander, having a sore arm. John Havko is certain of the catcher's job, while Jim McGurl is slated for first base; Tony Apichella, second base; Frank Apichella, third base, and Joe Harpinski, shortstop. Mike Scesney, Tom Johnson and John McGlone are leading candidates for the outfield.

The season opens Saturday with Johns Hopkins in Baltimore.

Md. Youth to Teach Baseball to the English

Hagerstown, Md., April 5.—Edwin W. Mumma, of Sharpsburg, was notified today by the National Amateur Baseball Association that he was one of six American youths to sail for England April 15 to teach English youths the diamond sport.

Mumma recently returned from attending the National Baseball School in Florida this winter. He said he was told that the English teams will be organized into a league for a five-month season.

Walsh, Middie Rowing Suffers Ankle Sprain

Annapolis, Md., April 5.—Head Coach Charles Walsh of the Navy crew is a rowing casualty and has to have the support of crutches.

A member of the Navy Plebe crew turned his knee as he disembarked from the shell and Walsh made a sudden jump to catch him. The result was that the coach turned his ankle, tearing the cartilage from the bone and causing severe lameness.

Falls Church to Practice.

The Falls Church A. C. will practice this coming Saturday, April 9, in back of the Madison School at 2 p. m. All players are requested by Coach VonHerbulis to be on hand as this practice is very important.

Macroome Wins Race.

Richmond, Va., April 3.—Macroome, from the Montpelier Stables of Mrs. Marion De Pont Scott, won the Malvern Hill Steeplechase, opening event today of the tenth annual spring race meeting of the Deep Run Hunt Club.

Frederick Gets Quail.

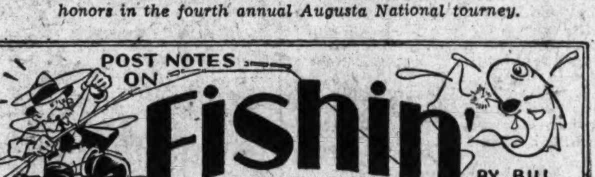
Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—Sixty bob-white quail furnished by the game department of the State Conservation Commission were distributed by members of the Frederick County Fish and Game Protective Association and interested sportsmen today in various sections of the county. Seventy-five more will be liberated later.

The Master's Winner and His No. 1 Fan

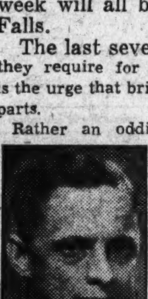
BRYON NELSON,

Master's Open winner, receives the $1,500 check, first prize money, and the smiles of his pretty wife after his sub-par 32 clinched top honors in the fourth annual Augusta National tourney.



For the past week small white perch have been biting in the upper Potomac—forerunners of the schools that this week will all but take possession of the river up to Little Falls.

The last several days has warmed the water to the extent they require for spawning, which is the urge that brings them to these parts.



ACKERMAN

Rather an oddity is the white perch, because they seem to be neither salt water nor fresh water fish. Preferring brackish water, they will live equally well in either and often become landlocked in fresh-water lakes.

By Sunday, due to a rise in the water, which has been low, some of the larger fish had arrived and in all but several of the strings observed, about every fourth one weighed from a half to three-quarters of a pound. Enough evidence that this week-end will see the run going in good shape. The rain will in no way hurt conditions, rather it will help them along.

* * * *

Perch about this size are average, although an occasional one at the heighth of the run will go up to maybe 2 pounds. The probable maximum weight that they reach is about 4 pounds, although there is no authentic record of this weight. Might be something to shoot for if you happen to bring in a big one.

* * * *

Capt. Joe Fletcher at New Cut and Canal road has all of his 34 boats in good shape and overboard, ready for use. Always well informed as to the best places to fish in his section, his advice is always well worth following.

* * * *

Not overly particular in their choice of foods as long as it is clean and alive, for bait, it is best to use one that they get naturally in this section—tiny crabs, shrimp, angle worms, minnows, insects and flies. From this choice it is easy to see that they will give you battle on a fly and flyrod as well as the more prosaic still fishing on the bottom. So they will too, but not this early in the season. Neither will they break water to take the fly, so if you try it this way, use a wet fly of the general color of the insects and flys that are present at the time.

For this early season fishing up the river, the blood worm, although not a natural food, is the best bait to use. Many of the sport stores are already stocking them. Second best bait is the common garden worm. At this time of the year most easily obtained by the good old method of digging.

At present, fish on the rocky shelves close to the edge of the deep water. With a few more warm days they can be caught most anywhere.

The run of herring is not far off, so those who like their fun in this fashion had best be getting their snagging hooks and lines in shape.

Trout fishing over the week-end was not up to opening days of other years. On the easily reached streams, anglers rubbed elbows from one end of the stream to the other.

Creels were small and even those that spent several days on the stream had less than one day's limit to show.

The thought is, and on good authority, that the great majority of the stocking is being held back until later. From that the fly-fisherman seems due to have his inning, and it is no more than right, because the liver and worm fisherman has had his for many years.

The National Capitol Field Trial Club gave a testimonial dinner to Frank Kidwell on Saturday night to show their appreciation of the many pleasant evenings he has arranged for them during the past year.

They hold their spring field trials next Monday on the 123-acre farm of Walter Johnson, at Germantown, Md. More than the usual amount of interest is being shown this year and it is fully expected that it will be far and away the best trial in their 20 years of existence.

Allegany and Garrett Counties in Hunt Club

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., April 5.—The Big Savage Fox Hunters' Association was formed here by 20 sportsmen from Allegany and Garrett Counties, at the city hall here. Officers elected were:

President, Walter Hedrick, Cresaptown; vice president, James Green, Avilton; secretary, John Armstrong, Rawlings, and treasurer, Marshall Lewis, Frostburg. The group will be affiliated with the Maryland State Foxhunters Association.

16 in Central Y. M. C. A. Annual Ring Tourney

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—The 147-pound class was the favorite division for the majority of the beginners entered in the second annual Central Young Men5s Christian Association boxing tournament, to be held here April 14.

Of the nine registered in the novice section, six were in the 147-pound group, the others in the open divisions. Sixteen boxers have filed their entries for the tournament. The entry list will close April 12.

100 Quail Released In Washington County

Hagerstown, April 5.—The Hagerstown Chapter, Izaak Walton League, today released 100 Bob White quail in Washington County.

The quail were brought from the State game farm by Deputy Game Warden Albert Crampton and were liberated in some of the rural sections where many covies were frozen to death during the severe winter last year.

Two Phillies Are League's Top Hurlers

Walters and La Master Boast Best Records; Reds Bow, 6 to 3.

By the Associated Press.

Winter Haven, Fla., April 5.—The Phillies won their third straight exhibition game today beating the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 3, behind the five-hit pitching of Claude Passeau, Hugh Mulcahy and Syl Johnson, and Fred Tauby's timely single in the seventh.

The Reds bunched four of their five hits, including a triple by Myers, in the second to take a brief lead.

Philly Hurlers Good.

Two members of the Phillies' pitching staff, Bucky Walters and Wayne La aMsters, have turned in the best performances of major league hurlers in Florida this spring.

Altogether, Walters and La Master have twirled 34 innings, allowing only 25 hits and one unearned run for an average of less than six hits every nine innings.

Confidence.

Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Phillies, today bet Charlie Dressen, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, one new hat against eight that the Phillies would finish higher than the Reds in the National League this year.

G. W. High's Runners Seek League Title

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., April 5.—George Washington High School's varsity trackmen will raise the curtain on their 1937 campaign Saturday when they journey to Richmond to compete in the first annual Central Conference track and field meet.

The Central meet will take in all teams that competed in the Virginia League's Central district during the past basketball season.

Meanwhile, the Presidents, under the direction of Jeff Williams, former University of Richmond athlete, swung into the final stages of their training grind today. They are banking largely on newcomers; inasmuch as only four veterans are available. They are: Bernard Cook, middle-distance runner; Alvin Stearman, dash entrant; Louis Robinson and Griffith Schelhorn, field events.

Among the newcomers who have shown up well are Eddie Dove, 100 and 200 entry, and Jim Worden, first-year miler.

Lee-Jackson High School's baseball team will seek its initial victory tomorrow afternoon, opposing Washington and Lee High on the latter's diamond. Johnny Briar, speedball artist, will probably be given the starting mound assignment.

The Little Generals made their season's debut last Friday, but lost a 5-to-4 decision to Jefferson High, of Falls Church.

Washington and Lee High, northern Virginia's lone entry in the Class A championship race, has carded 23 baseball games. They are:

Apirl 6, Lee-Jackson, at home; 8, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, at home; 9, Western, at home; 13, Mount Rainier, at home; 14, Eastern, there; 16, Roosevelt, there; 19, National Training School, at home; 21, Montgomery-Blair, at home; 22, Woodrow Wilson, at home; 23, Fredericksburg, there; 27, Mount Rainier, there; 28, Devitt, at home.

May 4, Eastern, at home; 5, Manassas, there; 7, Georgetown University Freshmen, there; 10, Tech, at home; 12, Montgomery-Blair, there; 14, Episcopal, there; 17, Maryland Freshmen, there; 21, Fredericksburg, at home; 25, Lee-Jackson, at home; 29, Roosevelt, at home.

Corriganville Wins.

Corriganville, Md., April 5.—The Corriganville Rifle Club defeated Frostburg marksmen in a 50-foot match here, 1074 to 845.

Clubs Sign Rookies.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—Eight rookie ball players of the tryout camp of the Wilkes-Barre Barons, of the New York-Pennsylvania League here, have been signed.

Taylor Hints He May Retire As Steel Head

Paints Bright Future for Industry at Session of Board.

Hoboken, N. J., April 5 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of United States Steel Corporation, at the annual stockholders meeting today, threw out a veiled hint his retirement might be drawing near.

At the same time he held out to common stockholders the hope their patience would be rewarded "in some way in the not very distant future." Arrears on the preferred are $9.25. Common payments have not been made since March, 1932, when 50 cents was disbursed.

Arousing in the minds of stockholders the question of possible retirement, Taylor said, "if through any chance the vicissitudes of time or circumstance should make it impossible for any of us to gather here together in this way next year, I want to express openly my appreciation and my own very great pleasure in this association."

"Love-Feast" Session.

Unlike meetings of recent years, when stockholders asked critical questions from the floor, today's gathering was a virtual love-feast which all officers and stockholders left in an apparently contented mood. There were about 260 present, a record attendance, a spokesman said.

In an extemporaneous address, the head of the Nation's largest steel company, looked back at the years which culminated in the great crack of 1929. He then reviewed the subsequent years, during which the company's operations rose from a depression low of 18.3 per cent to the present rate of 87 per cent of capacity.

In his review, he touched on three major policies pursued: Reduction of funded debt, the infusion of new blood into the management and efforts to gear the corporation's operations to highest efficiency.

Stockholders, by liberal applause, showed keen interest in Taylor's recognition of the corporation's executive personnel and seemed particularly interested in his allusion to "these young men."

Lauds Younger Element.

Referring to the younger element, he termed it "an omen of the future." This, together with the comment "they are the ones who will be here year after year reporting on the company's activities," excited interest among stockholders. Taylor is 63.

He cited Edward R. Stettinius, jr., young chairman of the finance committee, and said in Wall Street to be in line to succeed him; Irving S. Olds, lawyer recently elected to the board; Enders M. Voorhees, vice chairman of the finance committee, and Junius Morgan, elder son of J. P. Morgan and grandson of the financial founder of the corporation.

Discussing wage and profit problems, Taylor said:

"The best single formula I could evolve in the several relationships between workers, owners and the public is that which will induce the largest production at prices within the range of the purchasing power of the community and at the same time provide adequate real wages to workers, management and owners of the property."

Further along in his discussion of the wage problem, he said "each should be paid according to his contribution. But probably as long as men and women are men and women, no one is going to be wholly satisfied with the value put on his services by someone else."

Worthington Pump To Reopen Plant

New York, April 5 (AP).—Worthington Pump & Machinery Corporation plans early reopening of its Holyoke, Mass., plant, which has been closed since 1932, it was announced today.

H. V. Beaver, president, said it was expected the resumption would eventually provide for re-employment of 400 to 500 workers. Reopening of the plant had been made necessary, he said, by a substantial increase in company's unfilled orders, now at the highest level in ten years.

Von Tresckow Joins Niagara Share Corp.

New York, April 5.—Walter von Tresckow has been elected vice president and director of Niagara Share Corporation of Maryland, according to an announcement made by J. F. Schoellkopf, jr., president of the investment company.

For the past two years Mr. von Tresckow has been associated with Young & Ottley, investment counselors, and will continue to serve the firm on a consulting basis.

Retail Advertising 7.9% Above Year Ago

Chicago, April 5.—Aided somewhat by advance Easter buying, newspapers carried 7.9 per cent more retail display advertising in the week ended March 27 than in the corresponding week of last year, according to a tabulation released today by Advertising Age.

Steel and Oil Shares Advance With Rise in Federal Bonds

U. S. Steel Corporation Shares Jump 2¼ Points Just Before Close; Corn Prices Soar in Chicago.

By Frederick Gardner,

Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, April 5.—Buying forces favored selected steels, oils and specialties in today's stock market but were indifferent to most other groups. The decision of the Federal Reserve Board to support recently lagging U. S. Government securities, together with lessening of tension over labor disputes, apparently were moderately helpful market influences.

Dealings were exceptionally quiet throughout, transfers amounting to only 976,480 shares, compared with 1,637,930 last Friday. The Associated Press average edged forward .2 of a point to 71.3.

U. S. Steel was given a last-minute run-up of 2¼ points at 119⅜ when Chairman Taylor at the corporation's annual meeting hinted that dividends on the common might be resumed in the near future.

At the same time the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated current mill operations at 89.9 per cent of a capacity, a drop of .8 of a point from last week.

The magazine Steel, though, found that steel makers have sold practically all their output for second quarter, with third-quarter orders being booked only at prices which may prevail at the time shipments are made. Slackened demand in the automotive field due to strikes, it was said, was more than offset by heavy requirements in other lines.

Chrysler Stronger.

With Wall Street confident a compromise agreement is near in the Chrysler negotiations with the union, this stock pushed up 1¾, to 123¼. General Motors failed to make the grade and was off ⅛, at 61⅝.

Copper shares lacked vigor as the export rate of the red metal was lowered, Fractionally under water were Anaconda, at 61⅜, Kennecott 60⅞ and Phelps Dodge 51⅝. Cerro de Pasco yielded 1, at 77.

Aiding the oils were forecasts of another lift in crude prices and the belief increasing consumption of gasoline and other petroleum products was more than taking care of advancing output. Gains up to a point or so were shown by Standard Oil of New Jersey, 72½; Standard of Indiana, 47½; Standard of California, 47½; Pure Oil, 21⅜, and Texas Corporation, 61⅝.

A few of the utilities picked up a bit on indications earnings for the power companies are continuing to tilt upward. Among the best of these were Consolidated Edison, at 39⅞, and Public Service of New Jersey, at 45.

While commodities, on the whole, were somewhat mixed, cash corn at Chicago jumped to a 17-year top at $1.40 a bushel. Corn futures were at new 12-year highs, up 1¾ to 3⅝ cents a bushel. Wheat was ½ off to up ¾. Cotton improved 10 to 55 cents a bale. Imported bar silver at New York was hoisted 1⅜ cents an ounce, to 46⅝ cents, a new peak since last November, following an upturn of this commodity in London.

U. S. Bonds Higher.

The recently hard pressed U. S. Government bond list assumed the the appearance of a seller's market today on announcement of the Federal Reserve Board open market committee that it would support the Federals to maintain "orderly conditions."

Before the close some of the buoyancy disappeared as a result of thinning of bids on the advance. At the top of the sweeping rise gains ranged from ⅛ to more than a full point, and traders did not overlook the fact that this improvement was on the heels of a sharp rebound on Saturday. At the close the list showed a long list of advances ranging from 2-32ds to 19-32ds of a point. A few Treasuries finished 1-32d to 12-32ds lower.

The investment market manifested keen interest in Secretary Morgenthau's announcement in Washington after the close that the Treasury will borrow new cash before this fiscal year ends on July 1. Immediate comment was withheld by Government bond dealers pending a more thorough study of the Secretary's statement.

Corporate bonds were also heartened by the reserve board's announcement of proposed support. For the last few weeks the whole market had been subject to unsettlement from the insistent selling in Federals. Top grade corporate bonds were responsive not alone to the promise of more stable conditions in the Federal market but also to the reserve board's notice of intention to adhere to its broad policy of low rates for long terms funds.

Thus a number of low yield industrial issues came up major fractions to more than a point, attaining levels well above recent lows. Convertible issues and the general run of junior liens moved divergently, but the close showed numerous gains.

Up fractions to around 2 points were Santa Fe 4s at 109½; Bethelehem Steel 3¾s at 94¾; Erie 5s at 82⅛; Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3½s at 148½; Studebaker 6s at 138; Pacific Telephone & Telegraph 3¼s at 100⅛; New York Central 5s at 97½; Hudson Coal first 5s at 50.

Measured by the Associated Press averages industrials declined .1 of a point. Rails and industrials were unchanged. Transactions amounted to $13,763,000 par value against $18,775,000 last Friday.

Important movements in the foreign divisions were mostly on the upside, with Italian and Cuban loans and Abitibi Power & Paper 5s in the lead.

Bar Silver at 46⅝, Up 1⅜c an Ounce

New York, April 5 (AP).—The price of foreign-mined bar silver in New York jumped today 1⅜ cents an ounce to 46⅝ cents, the highest level since November 10, 1936. The new price, set by Handy & Harman, brokers, followed a similar sharp advance in London. Trade reports ascribed it to buying in the Indian bazaars and speculative purchasing in the London market. There was no immediate explanation of the Indian demand, as brokers here said no shortage had been reported. In the Montreal silver futures market prices were from .62 of a cent to 1.30 cents higher.

Irving Trust Plans Int. Match Dividend

New York, April 5 (AP).—Payment of a dividend of from 2 to 4 per cent from funds held by the Irving Trust Co. as trustee for the bankrupt estate of International Match Corporation was proposed by the bank today in its sixth intermediate report on the defunct concern.

The bank held at the close of last year $6,907,355 in funds of International Match, while cash held for the account of Continental Investment, A. G., a wholly owned subsidiary, totaled $2,355,635. A separate fund of $175,000 was held as the remainder of proceeds from the sale of 350,000 shares of Diamond Match Co.

Steel Operations Dip to 89.9%

New York, April 5 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined .8 of a point to 89.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 90.7 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operation averaged 87.3 per cent of capacity while a year ago the rate was 64.5 per cent.

Mutual Agent Is Honored for Long Service

Associates of Adolph Krechel Tender a Luncheon.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

ADOLPH KRECHEL.

Completing 20 years service with the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., Adolph Krechel was the guest of honor recently at a luncheon at the Hamilton Hotel. John R. Hardin, of Newark, N. J., president of the company, wrote a special letter of commendation for Mr. Krechel's steady production of high quality business, sending a gift of a gold and pearl pin marking his admission into the Veterans Club of the company. On behalf of Mr. Krechel's office associates, Frank D. Roach presented him with a humidor pipe set. The luncheon was given by H. Lawrence Choate, general agent of the company who presented the pin on behalf of Mr. Hardin and commended Mr. Krechel for his unusually conscientious programming of life insurance for his clients.

Enterprise Building.

Enterprise Building Association in its forty-fifth annual report, discloses its assets are now $1,529,673.89, an increase of $162,905.32 over the past year, the largest gain ever recorded by the association.

Directors on March 31, declared a 5 per cent dividend for the past year on all shares. The association also reports a substantial gain in new accounts and that no foreclosures were necessary during the past fiscal year. Number of borrowers in arrears is less than was the case a year ago.

The association has 1,565 members and is a member of the United States and District of Columbia Building and Loan Leagues. Its officers are Michael A. Keane, president; Fred Kraus, vice president; Martin A. Cook, secretary; James E. Connelly, treasurer, and Francis J. Hayes, assistant secretary. Directors: George I. Borger, Bernard R. Edwards, Maurice Fitzgerald, C. F. Gibson, P. F. Hannan, Ralph A. Judd, Edward T. Kehoe, sr., and Frank J. Torrens.

Wellington Foundation.

With the public today more social security-minded than ever, and with realization that much existing investment machinery is geared to large-scale operations, there has developed a special adaptation to serve the thrifty in the lower income brackets. The operation for making available to the small investor the same facilities open to the person with large sums has been found in the so-called living trusts based on the actuarial principle of saving and investment.

According to William M. Canby, manager, Washington office, Wellington Foundation, Inc., representing this form of investment, as little as $10 per month and upward can be deposited with one of the largest and oldest trust companies in the country, while single deposits in amount of $300 and up are also accepted. From that time the bank acts as trustee of all property accumulated in the account, and the depositor receives a certificate of trust. As deposits are made the trustee invests them in a mutual

Budget Balance Seen as Check On Labor War

2,110 Strikes Last Year but 4,438 Disputes in 1917.

New York, April 5.—After six years of relatively peaceful labor conditions, there was a sudden flare-up of trouble in 1933 with the beginning of the economic recovery movement. Since then, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute, there has been an increasing amount of labor trouble. The number of strikes showed a steady rise from 841 in 1932 to 2,110 in 1936. While figures are lacking for the current year, there is plenty of evidence that labor disputes have continued to increase.

The growth of labor trouble during the past four years has not yet resulted in such a serious situation as existed during the war and immediately afterward. There were less than half as many strikes in 1936 as in 1917, when 4,438 disputes occurred. The number of strikes in 1936 was also considerably smaller than in any year of the 1916-1920 period.

Effect of Inflation.

If the current inflationary movement continues to be extended, however, it is evident that labor troubles will continue to increase, because inflation is the begetter of the conditions causing labor unrest. It is conceivable that the situation might eventually become more serious than at any previous time. The Federal Government could help materially to check the spread of labor troubles by balancing its budget, and thus ending its contribution to inflation. Without a balanced budget little help can be expected from the Government.

Ultimately, however, labor peace will be restored, because sooner or later the inflation bubble will burst, the cost of living will decline, the demand for labor will be curtailed and the supply of unemployed workers will burden the market. Then no labor leader's voice will be effective and the disturbance of strikes will be displaced by the greater disturbance of another economic depression.

N. Y. Telephones Gain 13,961 in March

New York, April 5 (AP).—New York Telephone Co. reported today a net gain of 13,961 telephones in service during March compared with a gain of 9,406 in March, 1936. For the first quarter there was an increase of 38,172 telephones compared with an increase of 22,054 last year.

The company is the largest operating unit in the Bell system.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, April 5 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agri.).—The wool market in Boston was rather quiet today. A slackening demand was apparent during the latter part of last week and thus far there has been no sign of a pick-up. An occasional inquiry was received for fine territory wools in original bags, but buying interest did ont appear urgent. Average French combing length wools of fine and half-blood grades of spot territory wools were offered at prices in the range of 1.02@1.05, scoured basis.

fund, in this case the Wellington Fund.

That such a method of investment has merit, Mr. Canby states, is proven by the record made by Wellington Fund of the payment of 40 dividends in the last seven years, some of these payments being made through years of the depression. The average yield in these years has been close to 6 per cent, he states.

The I. A. B. Forum.

James C. Dulin, jr., chairman of the forum committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, is expecting a large attendance at the forum meeting tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock, in the board room of the American Security & Trust Co. The subject of "Reserve Requirements" will be discussed by E. A. Goldenweiser, director of research and statistics, Federal Reserve Board.

Curb Rise Halted By Late Selling

New York, April 5 (AP).—Late selling checked an upward movement in the curb market today, though a fair number of issues closed with their gains intact. Some leaders were unable to go the route, as, for example, American Cyanamid "B," which canceled an early gain and closed 1¼ points lower at 30¾.

Buying interest was broad in early trading in response to gains on the big board and some bullish interpretations placed upon the Federal Reserve Board's declaration it was prepared to buy U. S. Government bonds in the open market.

McWilliams Dredging closed at 35½, up 1⅝; Apex Electric, 34¾, up 2¾; Aluminum Co. of America, 169½, up ¾; Montgomery Ward A, 143½, up 1; Gulf Oil, 58¾, up ½; Creole Petroleum, 31¾, up ⅞. Brown Co. preferred, an inactive, soared up 9, to 79. Transactions totaled 300,000 shares, against 431,000 on Friday.

Gold and Silver Imports.

The Commerce Department reported yesterday gold imports totaled $31,883,638 during the week ended March 26, compared with $33,831,284 in the previous week. Silver imports aggregated $940,589 and $1,090,017 in the respective weeks.

Grains Reach New Highs With Lower Supplies

Corn Up 4 Cents a Bushel to 17-Year High; Wheat Is Irregular.

By the Associated Press.

Notwithstanding more than 21 cents rise in the past two weeks, May corn contracts today vaulted 4 cents a bushel, the maximum allowed in any 24-hour period. Rapidly decreasing supplies at a time when accumulation is the normal experience was generally regarded by traders as the chief basis for the sensational upturn of values.

At the close today, corn futures were 1¾@3⅝ cents above Saturday's finish; May, 1.32⅛@1.32¼; July, 1.23⅞@1.24¼; September, 1.14¾@1.15; wheat ½ cent off to ¾ up; May, 1.43¼@1.43½; July, 1.29⅜@1.29½; September, 1.25½@1.25⅝; oats, ¾@1⅜ advanced; May, 51½@51¾, and rye showing ⅝@⅞ gain; May, 1.16⅞. Provisions results were unchanged to 17 cents.

Pulp Mills in South to Cost $66 00,000

Indices of Major Industries Are 30 to 50% Above Year Ago.

New York, April 5.—Ten wood pulp plants involving an investment of $66,000,000 are under construction from Virginia to Texas, Dr. E. E. Randolph, of the University of North Carolina, says in a report of industrial trends in the South made public by the American Chemical Society, which will hold its ninety-third meeting at Chapel Hill April 12 to 15.

The plants, it is said, will employ at least 30,000 workers. Two will be located in Florida, and the others at Franklin, Va.; Plymouth, N. C.; Georgetown, S. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Brunswick, Ga.; Savannah, Ga.; Crossett, Ark.; Houston, Tex.

In addition, Southern newspapers are planning the erection of two plants in which they will manufacture their own newsprint. One will be built in Texas. The location of the other has not been determined.

Rapidity of tree growth is the chief influence in the migration southward of the pulp industry, according to Dr. Randolph. Forty years are required in the North for trees to reach a size which is attained in the South in half that time. Science, working with an abundance of raw materials, has made the Nation's supply of pulp practically limitless, Dr. Randolph points out. This is true also, he said, of cellulose products, including rayon, varnish, lacquers, plastics and explosives, now all synthetically produced.

The Chemical Engineering Department of the State College is now studying the trees of North Carolina to determine their availability for pulp.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 5.—There was a marked increase in trading over recent sessions of the stock market and although prices were somewhat mixed at the close, the tone was generally firm. Oils, rubbers and mining shares moved higher and European and Brazilian bonds were strong. The gilt-edged division held steady while transatlantics remained quiet.

Paris.—Securities were generally firm in the bourse with Royal Dutch advancing for a net gain of 163 francs. Rentes finished 15 to 75 centimes up and Suez Canal rose 90 francs. International issues were mixed while Bank of France issues closed 90 francs lower.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures jumped ⅞d to 3⅛d higher with May and July options touching new highs for the year. The market advanced on small North American shipments to the United Kingdom and strength at Buenos Aires and Chicago. Cotton futures closed 1 to 2 points higher. There was light Bombay and scattered selling due to the easier Egyptian market and contracts were scarce.

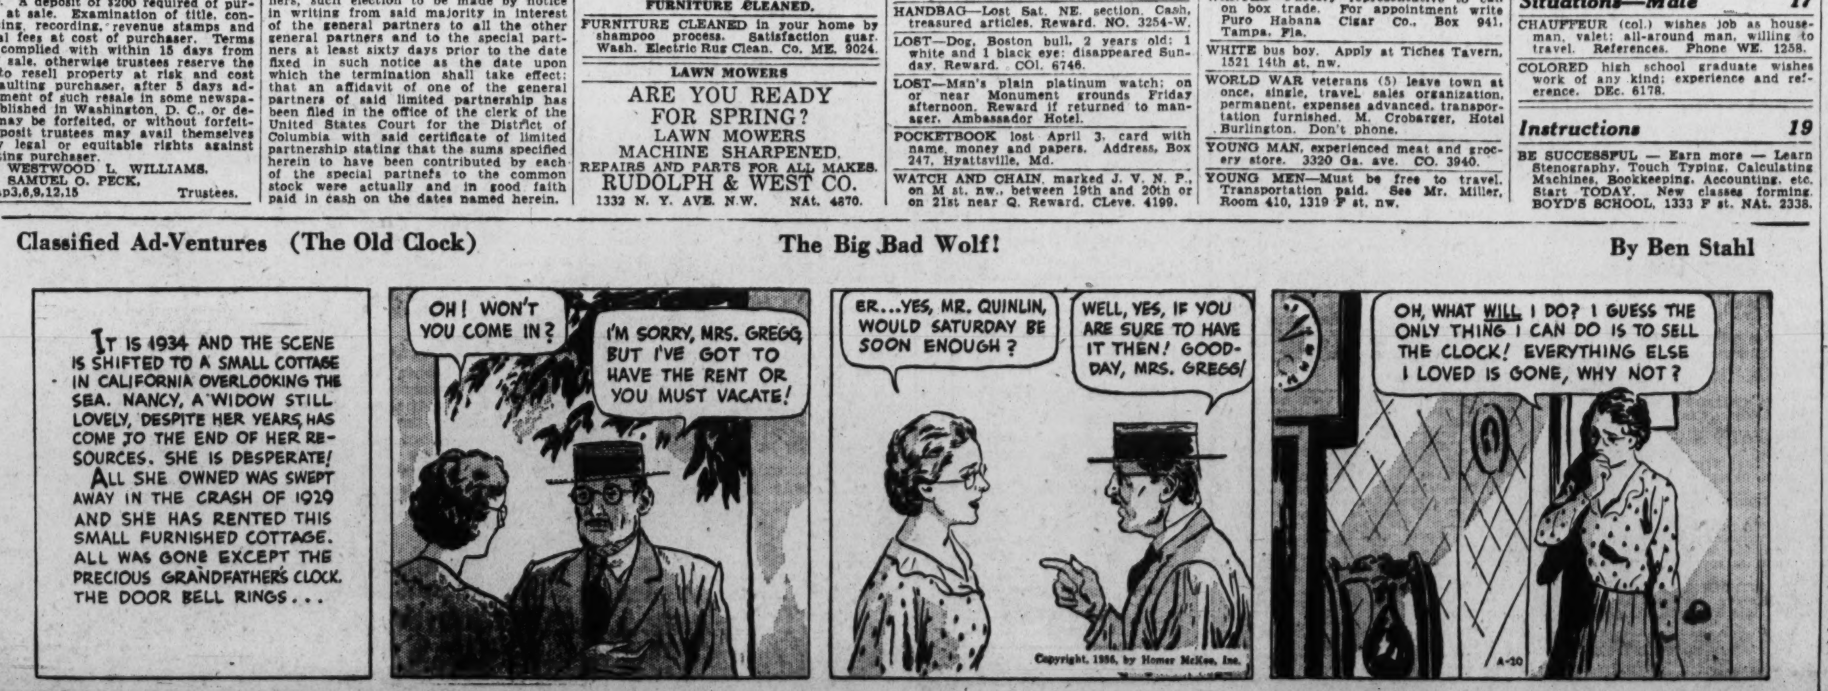
The Big Bad Wolf!

By Ben Stahl



IT IS 1934 AND THE SCENE IS SHIFTED TO A SMALL COTTAGE IN CALIFORNIA OVERLOOKING THE SEA. NANCY, A WIDOW STILL LOVELY, DESPITE HER YEARS, HAS COME TO THE END OF HER RESOURCES. SHE IS DESPERATE! ALL SHE OWNED WAS SWEPT AWAY IN THE CRASH OF 1929 AND SHE HAS RENTED THIS SMALL FURNISHED COTTAGE. ALL WAS GONE EXCEPT THE PRECIOUS GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK. THE DOOR BELL RINGS . . .
OH! WON'T YOU COME IN?
I'M SORRY, MRS. GREGG, BUT I'VE GOT TO HAVE THE RENT OR YOU MUST VACATE!
ER...YES, MR. QUINLIN, WOULD SATURDAY BE SOON ENOUGH?
WELL, YES, IF YOU ARE SURE TO HAVE IT THEN! GOOD-DAY, MRS. GREGG!
Copyright, 1936, by Homer McKee, Inc.
OH, WHAT WILL I DO? I GUESS THE ONLY THING I CAN DO IS TO SELL THE CLOCK! EVERYTHING ELSE I LOVED IS GONE, WHY NOT?

215 GALLATIN ST. N.W.
Here's how to enjoy home ownership at less than you are now paying for rent! These attractive homes are arranged to give two families complete privacy—and you won't have any trouble sub-leasing the other half. The income from your tenant will pay for more than half the monthly payments. Homes have large living rooms with wood-burning fireplaces, dining room, complete tub bath with shower on first floor; concrete front porch with iron rails; the latest multiple unit kitchen cabinets with natural wood finish; recreation room with stippled walls. Second floor has three lovely rooms, tiled bath and shower, completely furnished kitchen. Ample closet space throughout.
"CAREFREE COMFORT WITH MODERN GAS APPLIANCES."
Automatic heat; homes weather stripped, screened and insulated.

Reed Theater Holds Opening At Alexandria

Show Is Among Largest in State; Accommodates 1,400 Persons.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523
Delivery Service' Phone Alex. 1400.

The Reed Theater, on upper King street in Alexandria, one of the largest moving picture houses in the State, was opened last night with a capacity house. It is owned and operated by the Alexandria Amusement Corporation, and will seat 1,400 persons. A parking lot adajacent accommodates 1,000 automobiles.

The building was designed by John J. Zink, of Baltimore, a theater builder. David E. Bayliss was the general contractor.

The building is of brick and ornamental stone, and offers many innovations in theater construction. The 1,400 oversize, upholstered seats are set in a concave semicircle, so occupants of any one may have a clear view of the screen. All seats are on the orchestra elevation, there being no balcony.

Six large murals, depicting famous events in the history of Virginia, are on each side of the proscenium. The walls are decorated with alternate blocks of fawn and ivory celotex, with large ornamental panels in old rose and silver.

The building is kept at a comfortable temperature by air-conditioning.

The opening of the Reed gives the Alexandria Amusement Corporation three theaters in Alexandria—the other two being the Richmond and the Ingomar.

Indications are that a heavy vote will be cast today in the Democratic primary for the nomination of three members at large of the city council, subject to the general election, June 8.

There are seven candidates, two of whom are incumbents—Mayor Emmett C. Davison and Councilman A. Slater Lamond, vice president of the council. Dr. John T. Ashton, the third member at large, is not a candidate for re-election. Other candidates are Richard L. Ruffner, William T. Wilkins, David E. Bayliss, jr., William J. Greenan and Leroy S. Bendheim, the last named a member of the city school board.

The candidate receiving the highest number of votes in the general election will become mayor ex officio, and the vice president of the council will be elected by the council September 1.

The Army Day dinner of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, in the George Mason Hotel tonight at 7 o'clock, will be the largest ever held by the local post, according to Elliott F. Hoffman, general chairman of the dinner committee.

The reception committee held its final meeting last night in Gadsby's Tavern. J. Herbert Taylor, chairman, met with the entertainment committee headed by O. Ashby Reardon, and Charles W. King, Col. Jarvis Butler and J. Herbert Taylor, of the invistations committee, made their final report of honor guests.

Russell Mitchell Post, No. 609, Veterans of Foreign Wars, met last night in Eagles Hall, in observance of Army Day, with Comdr. John A. Duncan presiding.

Capt. Thomas Marion Hamilton, 70, U. S. Army Auxiliary Reserve, died Sunday night in Mount Alto Hospital. He had been a patient there since his return from a trip to Florida March.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith M. Hamilton; a son, John Wesley Hamilton, by a former marriage, of Appleton, Wis., and a sister, Mrs. Ida McPhee, of Brownsville, Oreg. He was born October 19, 1866, at Spring Green, Wis., son of the late Dr. John Wesley Hamilton. He was a veteran of the World War and Spanish-American War, serving on the battleship Oregon. In hsi early manhood he was a scout under Gen. Custer, and also saw service in Mexico and Central America, as well as scout work in the West. In the World War he served with the Thirty-third Engineers.

He was the author several years ago of a book, "The Young Pioneer," which related his experiences in the wars.

He had been a resident of Alexandria since 1923, coming from Fairfax County. He was active in civic affairs, and took an interest in politics, although he never aspired to office. He was identified with many organizations, including Philadelphia Lodge of Masons, No. 73, of Glennville, Ga.; Military Order of the World War, National Sojourners, and was a past commander of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence, 521 Duke street, at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and burial wil be in Arlington National Cemetery, with military honors.

The City-wide Council of Junior Red Cross will meet inth e auditorium of the Jefferson School at 3:30 p. m. today.

Miss Marguerite Moncure, chairman of the Junior Red Cross in Alexandria, will introduce Mrs. Ethel B. Mattson, assistant to the National Director of Red Cross, of Washington, who will tell the Juniors of the work being carried on by other Juniors in her territory. Frank Larkin, jr., president of the council, will preside at the meeting.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eugene C. Giamittorio, of 307 Raymond avenue, who died Saturday morning, will be held at 8:30 a. m. today from St. Rita's Catholic Church, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. The Rev. Leonard J. Koster, pastor of St. Rita's, wil lofficiate.

Arlington Bar Elects Douglas As New Leader

Group Names Ann Hedrick, John C. McCarthy Other Officers.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon, Va., Tel. Clar. 509

Lawrence W. Douglas was elected president of the Arlington County Bar Association at its annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the courthouse. Other officers elected were Miss Ann F. Hedrick, vice president, and John C. McCarthy, secretary-treasurer.

The association voted to enter a decorated float in the parade for the corner stone laying at the new central postoffice May 5. Edgar W. Pumphrey, one of the assistant marshals, urged all organizations to enter floats in the parade.

Committee appointments announced by the president are:

Grievance committee—George P. Grove, chairman; Emery N. Hosmer and James H. Simonds; legislation, William D. Medley, chairman; Elmer Van Deusen and Robert Ryland. The executive committee comprises officers and Frank L. Ball.

Washington and Virginia police have been asked to search for Ellen Rosilee Simons, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Simons, of 2030 North Cleveland street, Aurora Heights, Arlington, who has been missing since last Friday.

According to her mother, Ellen left the house about 8:30 p. m. in her father's automobile.

She was dressed in blue snow suit, white shirt, brown suede jacket and brown shoes. Mrs. Simons said Ellen often said she would like to go to Florida or Texas.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Pearl Brown, 50, who died at her home, 2405 North Madison street, Arlington, Sunday morning, will be conducted from Mount Olivet Methodist Church this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services will be conducted by the Rev. J. L. Green. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery at Falls Church.

Mrs. Brown is survived by two sons, Vinton Palmer Brown and Vernon Brown, and one daughter, Maude Brown.

John Paul Jones, chairman on arrangements for the postoffice cornerstone laying, announces the following committees:

Executive—Members of the county board and County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan; finance—Ernest M. Baldwin, chairman, and Thomas J. Crack, vice chairman; seating—H. W. Beattie; program—F. S. Loos; parade—Howard B. Fields, Edgar W. Pumphrey and Joseph Arnold; invitations — I. Chance Buchanan; luncheon—Karl Kerr; tickets—Leo Lloyd.

Dr. Robert H. Detwiler is announced as the guest speaker for the monthly meeting of the auxiliary to the Arlington Hospital Association today. The meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse.

Fairfax Seeks $39,000 to Aid School System

Literary Loan Sought for Classrooms, Building, Vocational Shops.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Alexandria 876-J2.

The school board of Fairfax County yesterday voted to apply for State library loans totaling $39,000. The loans will include $36,000 for the erection of four classrooms, a home economics building and vocational and agricultural shops at the Fairfax High School and $3,000 for a heating plant at the Herndon High School. The county board of supervisors will be asked to concur in the application.

A resolution was adopted changing the status of the McLean High School from a four to a two-year course. The pupils of the junior and senior years will be transported to the high school at Fairfax. The change was made because of the decrease in the enrollment of the high school, making it impossible to offer varied courses. The change will become effective in September.

A committee composed of school trustees, W. T. Carrico, of Falls Church District; Mrs. Mildred Finks, of Mount Vernon District, and County Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson was appointed to select a stie for a colored school at Falls Church. The committee was given power to act in the acquisition of such a site.

Miss Jeannette Luther was reappointed assistant supervisor of elementary education for next year.

A letter was received from the Herndon Improvement Association asking the board to require all teachers to take a health examination before contracts were signed for next year. No action was taken on the request.

Walter Tansill Oliver, jr., young attorney of Fairfax, yesterday announced his candidacy for the House of Delegates of the State Legislature, subject to the Democratic primary August 3.

He has been a lifelong resident of Fairfax County, the son of the late Walter Tansill Oliver, who for many years was a member of the House from Fairfax County and later represented the Sixteenth Senatorial District in the State Senate.

He is a graduate of Georgetown College and Georgetown Law School and a member of the Fairfax Bar Association. He is chairman of the legislative committee of the Fairfax County Young Democratic Club, a member of Henry Masonic Lodge, Fairfax Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, and the Fairfax Rotary Club.

Oliver is the second candidate to announce for the office held by John C. Mackall, of Langley. Mackall has announced he will not seek re-election. The other candidate is Francis Pickens Miller, of Fairfax.

Judge William S. Snow, of Alexandria, member of the State Game Commission from northern Virginia, was the principal speaker yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Fairfax Rotary Club. He described the conditoin of wild life in Fairfax County and urged citizens to protect wild life.

There is twice as much hunting in Fairfax County, he declared, as in any other two counties of the State. The rapid development of the eastern section of the county has done much towar destroying the habitat of small game. He deplored the destruction of forest land by fires, such as raged in the county last week. Each farmer will be asked to allow land not fit for farming to grow up in underbrush game.

Announces Candidacy

J. M. McCoy, 81, Pension Office Veteran, Dies

Joseph Melville McCoy, 81, retired Government worker, of 3020 Tilden street northwest, died yesterday at his home after a short illness.

Mr. McCoy, who retired from active duty in 1926, had completed more than 48 years of service, practically all of which had been spent in the Pension Office. He had at one time been chief clerk and later deputy disbursing officer for the payment of pensions.

Mr. McCoy was born in Middleburne, Va., March 3, 1856. He married Miss Ella Peterson, of this city, in 1885. Their golden anniversary was celebrated here in 1935.

Surviving are his wife, Ella Peterson McCoy; two daughters, Mrs. W. R. McFarland, of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Louise W. McCoy, of Washington; three sons, Jackson McCoy, of Waterloo, Iowa; Whitley P. McCoy, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and David E. McCoy, of Washington; two sisters, the Misses Minnie and Sally McCoy, of Fairmont, W. Va., and a brother, Paul McCoy, of Bronxville, N. Y.

Mr. McCoy was a past master of Myron M. Parker Masonic Lodge, and a former member of the local chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Fire Training School Group To Hear Byrd

Montgomery County Class Exercises to Be Held Tonight for 75.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
9212 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone Shepherd 2363

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will address the graduation exercises of the fire training school of the Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Firemen tonight at 8 o'clock in Leland Junior High School. A class of 75 will receive certificates of completion of the course.

Other speakers will be Miss Lavinia Engle, of Forest Glen, former member of the House of Delegates; Washington Irving Cleveland, president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation and the Kensington Chamber of Commerce; E. J. Murphy, past president of the Washington Board of Trade and J. Millard Tawes, of Crisfield, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.

The fire training school was held at Kensington National Guard Armory under the tutelage of Lieut. A. J. Bargagni, of the Washington Fire Department. More than 100 firemen took the course. Of the 87 who took the final examinations, 75 passed. Each of those who receive a certificate will be entitled to wear a gold chevron on his sleeve.

The committee in charge of the school includes former Mayor Eugene J. C. Raney, of Kensington, chairman; John Lewis Imirie, of Bethesda, secretary; Chief Spencer J. H. Brown, of Sandy Spring, assistant secretary; Chief Hiram D. Musgrove, of Bethesda, in charge of equipment; Chief Ralph Burdette, of Kensington, in charge of transportation; Capt. Bernard J. Cassell, of Chevy Chase, in charge of exhibits; Chief J. Thomas Kennedy, of Silver Spring, in charge of program, and Capt. Irving W. Johnson, of Takoma Park, in charge of publicity.

Is Critcally Wounded.

With only a scant chance of survival, Robert H. Vierling, 37, Forest Glen, Md., automobile mechanic, clung to life last night at Washington Sanitarium Takoma Park, Md., shot through his left temple. Sanitarium physicians said he had a slim chance of recovering.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Vierling, told Sergt. D. L. Snyder and Policeman Charles T. Barnes that Vierling and she had been playing with the three children and that he seemed in a happy mood before they went to bed.

While they were in bed, he reached under the pillow and pulled out a .22 automatic and shot himself in the head, declaring that he "couldn't stand it any longer." The bullet entered his left temple and came out through the forehead, missing any vital portion of the brain, doctors believed last night.

Mrs. Vierling called her brother, H. M. Morgan, who lives nearby on Owl lane, and he called the police. The wounded man was taken to the hospital by the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department after he was given first aid by Dr. H. H. Howlett.

Gov. Harry W. Nice has received a bill providing for postponement of reassessment of real estate in Montgomery County until the general reassessment for the State in 1939. The measure passed both branches of the General Assembly under suspension of rules.

It had been learned that an old law made it mandatory to have a general assessment by election districts this year in Montgomery County which would have voided inclusion of the county in the general postponement of reassessment.

A meeting of the auixiliary to the Takoma Park American Legion Post will be held tonight at 8 p. m. at the Takoma fire hall, Carroll and Denwood avenues. Mrs. C. F. Shields, president, will preside.

The Rockville Public Library is to be moved from its present quarters to the old Rockville Academy Building, Mrs. Frank D. Leizear, president of the library association, announced. Approximately 2,000 books are to be reconditioned before moving.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jackson C. Lusby, 79, who died Sunday at her home at 8901 First avenue, Woodside, Md., after a long illness, will be held today at 2 p. m. at her late residence. Dr. Ralph D. Smith, pastor of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Sit-Down Ban In Coal Bill Is Defeated By Senators

Measure Already Voted by House

A. F. L. Fights C. I. O. Move to Organize Million Oil Workers.

On the Labor Front.

The Senate passed the Guffey-Vinson bill to regulate interstate commerce in bituminous coal after refusing to write public condemnation of sit-down strikes into the measure.

The American Federation of Labor, striving to offset John L. Lewis' inroads into the Nation's labor ranks, launched a counter-offensive to the C. I. O. drive to organize a million oil workers.

Sit-Down Ban Loses.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Senate yesterday by a 48 to 36 vote refused to write public condemnation of sit-down strikes into the Guffey-Vinson bill to regulate interstate commerce in bituminous coal.

A few minutes later the Senate passed the coal bill by a 58 to 15 vote. The bill previously had passed the House. The measure reenacts a modified version of the coal law invalidated last year by the Supreme Court.

Defeat of the sit-down amendment followed three days of vigorous opposition by Administration leaders, who insisted it be separated from the coal measure. One of three separate denunciatory resolutions will be called up for consideration tomorrow, confronting the Senate with a new vote on the strike issue.

Sponsored by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, the sit-down amendment declared it "the sense of Congress that the so-called sit-down strike is illegal and contrary to sound public policy."

Robinson Objects.

Although the language was general and not limited to the coal industry, Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson and others objected to its inclusion in a bill dealing exclusively with coal mining. Robinson said "if possible" a separate resolution will be considered tomorrow.

The three measures now pending are both concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions. As such, they would not require signature by the President. The Byrnes amendment, had it been adopted, would have gone to the White House with the Vinson-Guffey bill, forcing the President either to agree with the condemnation, or veto the bill.

Thus, yesterday's vote may mean that the President, who never has expressed an opinion on sit-down developments, is not to be placed in a position by Congress that will force out his views.

Rejection of the Byrnes amendment came after the South Carolina Senator early yesterday withdrew his original proposal, directed at sit-downs only in the coal industry.

Substitute Offered.

He substituted instead the broader language of a resolution offered last week by Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada. It would have added the sit-down denunciation to other declarations of labor policies in the coal bill, with one restriction—that "Congress only assumes to speak as to strikes in industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

Opponents objected that alleged "illegal" practices by industry were not mentioned, that both should be embodied in a resolution, independent of the coal bill. Byrnes joined in condemning the so-alled industrial spy system, but insisted that his sit-down amendment be included in the coal bill.

His defeat came after a half-dozen Senators took the floor to insist that their negative votes did not mean approval of sit-down strikes. Twelve Republicans joined 24 Democrats to

Juan Lecuna Is Wed in Caracas While Playing Piano in Capital

Venezuela Bride Walks to Altar There to Marry by Proxy.

Senor Juan Lecuna, civil attache to the Venezuelan Legation, is married.

No white-gowned bride leaned happily on his arm at the ceremony, he heard no surpliced preacher solemnly intone the words.

He was alone in his rooms here in Washington when it happened. A straying sunbeam fell slantingly across the piano which he played. His fingers rippled the keys, then raced faster and faster. It was a song without words, composed by him and dedicated to his absent bride. And in her honor he named it "Calina."

And at that hour in Venezuela crowds thronged a church in Caracas to see Calina trip down the isle to meet her betrothed's proxy, Dr. Juan J. Mendoza, former minister to the United States.

Crowds, organ music and gay laughter in Caracas; a lone man in Washington meditatively fingering the sunlit keys.

Senor Lecuna closed the piano which he had been playing for half an hour. He looked at himself in the mirror. Yes, it was the same face. He laughed, a quick laugh of self-appraisal. When is a benedict not a benedict, he mused.

Five minutes later he was in his barber's chair, all lathered and waiting for a shave.

"I just got married as I played the piano," he ventured.

SENOR JUAN LECUNA.

The barber started, stared, then waggled his head.

Society editors please note: Senor Juan Lecuna was married by proxy to Senorita Caliss Torres, daughter of the former Venezuelan minister to Holland. The bride, beautiful and accomplished, according to her husband, will sail shortly to join him. He explained that proxy marriages are not unusual in his country.

D. C. Case Basis Of McReynolds Reply to Critics

Uses Police Decision to Deny Economic Views Sway Justices.

A justice of the United States Supreme Court yesterday used a District of Columbia Police Court case as an occasion for replying to the charge that conservatives of the highest bench in the land have been influenced in their decisions by personal economic leanings.

The justice was James Clark McReynolds, one of those who have stood against the constitutionality of New Deal measures.

The case concerned the constitutionality of the conviction in District Police Court without a jury of Ethel Clawans, of Washington and Newark, N. J., of selling unused parts of railway tickets without a license. She was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 or 60 days in jail.

A majority of seven members of the court upheld the constitutionality of the District law under which Miss Clawans was convicted without the jury trial guaranteed her by the Constitution. They concluded the offense was "petty" and that the punishment decreed was not an unusual one for similar offenses tried without a jury in the days when the Constitution was being drafted.

Justice Pierce Butler and Justice McReynolds dissented, and McReynolds, who was the first of the justices to break the silence of the Court Change Foes Combine In Amendment

Wheeler Backs O'Mahoney Plan; Burke Also Is Favorable.

By Sidney Olson.

In an effort to prove Senators opposing the President's court program can agree among themselves on a constitutional amendment, Senators Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, both Democrats, yesterday joined forces behind the O'Mahoney amendment.

This amendment would require a two-thirds majority of any court, high or low, before any law could be declared unconstitutional.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, who challenged the two to prove Wheeler's assertion that individual Senators opposing the President's plan would "willingly submerge their views" behind any reasonable amendment, was notified formally by the two that such an agreement had been reached.

Pittman told reporters he would not favor the suggested amendment as an alternative to, or compromise with, the President's plan, but that he was "inclined to believe it will be favorably reported out by the Judiciary Committee."

He confessed, however, to certain doubts about the measure, pointing out that under it a minority of the Supreme Court could exercise a

Little Egypt, Anna Laughlin, Stars of Yesteryear, Are Dead

(Picture on Page 3)

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 5.—"Little Egypt," the dark-eyed dancer who shook her torso and the Nation during the gay nineties, died today.

Mrs. Andrew Spyropolous succumbed to a heart attack at the age of 65—44 years after she reigned as the terpsichorean toast of the 1893 World's Fair.

Her death conjured memories of her sensational role as the first exponent of the muscle dance at the Columbian Exposition.

Then trim and 21, this daughter of far-off Damascus came to Chicago with a troupe of Syrian entertainers. She put on her number in the dim recesses of the "Streets of Cairo" concession.

While drums throbbed and flutes skirled a harem rhythm, she gathered her veils, placed a lighted candelabra on her head and swayed and swirled to the mystic music. The gentry of grandpa's day looked on, goggle-eyed, while she capped the climax by pretending to plunge a pair of gleaming knives into her full bosom. Her fame spread.

With the turn of the century, "Little Egypt"—her right name was Frieda Mahzar—gradually faded into obscurity. In 1912, she married Andrew Spyropolous. He conducts a restaurant here.

During the 1933 World's Fair, she essayed a comeback. But the competition of Sally Rand and others of the undressed era proved too much. She frankly and fervently detested such "modern dances."

Still pending in the Supreme Court of New York is her $25,000 damage suit against the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation. She complained she had been misinterpreted in the film "The Great Ziegfeld," a story of the life of Florenz Ziegfeld based in part upon his experiences as an entrepreneur who pitted Strong Man Sandow's muscles against "Little Egypt's" muscle dance in a bid for World's Fair trade.

Toast of Broadway in 1900's Ends Life by Turning on Gas.

By the United Press.

New York, April 5.—Few people remember the "Wizard of Oz" and the songs she sang in that show, so when Mrs. Anna Laughlin Monroe decided to die today the note she wrote was all about her daughter, Lucy Monroe, the radio singer, and how their paths parted.

She explained all about it—this woman who was the toast of Boradway when Fred Stone was doing his scarecrow dance in the "Wizard of Oz"—explained it in a note, written with pencil in a wavering, uncertain hand. It was the story of how Lucy Monroe, who had been carried on the stage by her mother when she was a baby, had gone away to sing on the radio.

"This is good-by," the note began. "People are dreadful. I love my child. I have given all I have in the world to put her where she is now. She is gone. This is a sudden strange place. I want her. I ask my God from Heaven—let me in."

"Lucy is never coming back. Where did I fail? What is wrong? She does not know what she is doing.

"Oh, I hate to dim out the light and turn my back upon all the things so dear to my heart. Forgive me, dear God. We were so eager to see things together, but my darling daughter has forsaken me. Please, Heavenly Father, watch over my child and protect her."

Mrs. Monroe went into the kitchen, turned on four oven gas jets and put her head inside. She was dead, her nightgown clutched around her.

At first the name Anna Laughlin Monroe made no impression on anyone, but then somebody remembered the "Wizard of Oz" and told the story of Anna Laughlin's romance with Van Monroe, the diamond merchant. Every night for four weeks he bought a ticket—an aisle seat on the fourth row—to hear Anna Laughlin sing "Rosalie." Then he met and married her.

Police said mother and daughter quarreled recently, but Lucy insisted she had seen her mother Easter.

Board's Bond Buying Plan Aids Market

Commodity Prices Rise; Corn at New Peak for 17 Years.

U. S. Securities Climb; Cotton Makes Gain; Stocks Higher.

By William V. Nessly.

An upward move in commodity prices, with corn for immediate delivery touching a 17-year price peak, and a firm Government bond market yesterday marked reaction to Sunday's announcement that the Federal Reserve Open Market Committee would buy United States bonds to maintain "orderly" conditions.

Other movements, with related interest, included:

Federal Reserve System reports revealed member banks in 101 ing cities had sold $300,000,000 of direct Government obligations in the week ended last Wednesday, when United States securities were declining steadily.

Secretary Morgenthau said the Treasury would borrow new money before the fiscal year ends on June 30. He said the need for it will be shown when President Roosevelt's recasting of Government receipts and expenditures goes to Congress about April 14.

Possible resumption of common stock dividends by United States Steel Corporation in the "not very distant future" was indicated by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the corporation.

Stocks on the New York Exchange generally moved higher as United States bonds gained broadly, though profit taking in the latter issues curbed their gains.

May Corn Soars Limit.

At Chicago, May corn jumped upward the full 4 cents a bushel permitted by trading rules in one day. The May future contract rose to $1.33⅛ a bushel, a gain of almost 15 cents in eight days. Cash corn went to above $1.40 a bushel, attributed largely to reports of a possible shortage in the immediate future and indications, unofficial, of a short crop this year.

The selling of United States securities by member banks in the week ending March 31 was the heaviest such liquidation this year. The banks' holdings have declined $528,000,000 in the past three weeks, though the total on March 31, which was $8,396,000,000, was only $247,000,000 below the total for April 1 a year ago.

The heaviest selling in the week was recorded in the Chicago district, where holdings were cut $201,000,000 of the total $300,000,000 decline. The New York district's banks sold $55,000,000, the Minneapolis district $14,000,000, and the Cleveland district $11,000,000.

The banks also disposed of $6,000,000 of obligations fully guaranteed by the Government, leaving the total holdings at $1,199,000,000, a decline of $66,000,000 from a year ago.

Loans Show Increase.

Loans to commerce, agriculture and industry gained $39,000,000 to a total of $4,362,000,000. Loans on real estate went up $6,000,000 to $1,157,000,000, but loans to banks were down to $1,000,000, a drop of $11,000,000. Demand deposits decreased $210,000,000 to a total of $15,126,000,000, which was a gain of $1,548,000,000 over a year ago.

Bulls in the corn market were far ahead in paper profits last night as a result of the sensational price climb for the last week.

May corn, reaching $1.33⅛ yesterday, was 59½ cents a year ago. Yesterday's price was the highest

Democratic Flint Picks Republicans In Michigan Vote

Detroit, April 5 (AP).—Incumbents, eight Republicans and one Democrat, were maintaining modest margins for re-election as additional but still scattering returns from today's biennial election were tabulated.

Included in the tabulation were partial returns from some industrial areas, including Flint, scene of recent sit-down strikes. These gave the Democratic Murray D. Van Wagoner a slight lead for re-election as State highway commissioner, but favored Republicans for the remainder of the offices voted upon.

The Flint figures were regarded as significant by those party leaders who asserted that Gov. Murphy's handling of the sit-down strikes and the Roosevelt court reorganization proposal were issues in the election. Flint voted wholly Democratic last November.

Returns from 2,010 out of 3,480 precincts in the State for Supreme Court justices gave Louis H. Fead (Republican), 215,697; Walter H. North (Republican), 216,739; Walter I. McKenzie (Democrat), 192,962; Thomas F. McAllister (Democrat), 196,561. For State highway commissioner 2,028 precincts gave Charles M. Ziegler (Republican), 203,018; Van Wagoner (Democrat), 223,101.

Air, Land Search Widens for Plane, Eight Passengers

Alpine, Ariz., April 5 (AP).—Search for a skyliner missing with eight passengers spread north from here tonight on reports an apparently distressed plane took that direction after being seen here Saturday.

A report an 11-year-old boy had seen the ship "crash into the trees" near here was discounted after it had sent searchers by air and afoot hurrying over the snow-choked mountains near the New Mexico border in this vicinity.

Police Name N. Y. Sculptor Triple Slayer

Former Mental Patient Hunted for 'Revenge' Murder of Model.

Search Is Spread as Easter Crimes Are Declared Solved.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Police closed off the city in a tremendous manhunt tonight as they flatly announced they had solved at last the bizarre triple slaying Easter Sunday morning on Beekman Hill.

The man they sought—blocking with policemen railroad terminals, bus stations, ferries, highways—is blond, chunky Robert Irwin, 29 years old, sculptor and former divinity student at St. Lawrence University, released only last summer after three years of mental treatment at the Rockland County Hospital, a State institution.

Like a bombshell in the midst of one of the greatest murder mysteries the metropolis ever has known, exploded the statement today of Chief Deputy Police Inspector John A. Lyons:

"We are definitely hurting Robert Irwin for the triple murders of Veronica Gedeon, her mother and Frank Byrnes, their boarder. There has been no doubt in our minds since last Wednesday that he committed the crime."

Revenge Called Motive.

Revenge, police officials said, was the motive; revenge against "Ronnie" and her mother Mary for opposing his love for the elder daughter of the family, Ethel, now married to George Kudner and living in Long Island City.

The police have traced Irwin's course to the city on Good Friday from Canton, N. Y., where he was asked to leave school March 18 because of "instability."

The trail led here to a $2.50-a-week room he had taken in a house on Fifty-second street, just around the corner from the police station that has been the center of investigation.

"I wish I could tell you all the evidence that we found against Irwin in the apartment where the murders were committeed," confided a high police official today. "But it would ruin our case against him.

"We never would have sent out an eight-State alarm if we had not amassed sufficient evidence to convict Irwin of first-degree murder."

Father Cleared.

With this statement went the last question of suspicion against 54-year-old Joseph Gedeon, the estranged father who was questioned two successive days by police as sensation piled on sensation through a week of feverish investigation. Gedeon was bound over in felony court until May 5 on a charge of illegally possessing a firearm.

Gone, too, was the importance of the mysterious "millionaire from Boston," of the phantom "man in the hall," of the former husband of the model, of her many friends and admirers among illustrators and artists.

Piece by piece detectives put together the story of Irwin, a roomer in the Gedeon home, like the little English waiter, Byrnes, who was stabbed to death, until he walked voluntarily into Bellevue Hospital in July of 1933 and asked for mental treatment.

Released as cured of "mental conflictions" and "great agitation," he went off to St. Lawrence University last fall to study theology and earn his way by teaching sculpture and art, aided in his ambition by Dr. Russell E. Blaisdell, superintendent of the Rockland Hospital, who became deeply interested in his case.

Evangelist Parents.

He visited the hospital only a month ago, Dr. Blaisdell said today, and was "in fine spirits."

Only ten days ago, in an interview in Canton, N. Y., Irwin told of his ambition to study for the ministry rather than "waste my life making pretty statues."

He told of his job as a wax worker in Hollywood, how he "got so much religion as a boy that it sickened me." He was born of evangelist parents in a tent on an old-fashioned camp meeting ground in Portland, Oreg.

His first love was sculpture, and he hopped freights, slept wherever he could to get to Chicago to meet his idol, Lorado Taft, the artist. He said he lived with the Taft family 15 months, finally got a $50-a-week commercial job, made busts of Max Schmeling, Gov. Lehman, President Roosevelt, Marlene Dietrich and Prof. Einstein, all from photographs.

He wouldn't model the co-eds at St. Lawrence.

"No, thanks," he said. "I have work to do."

So close were detectives to him

Kirby and Gingell Given Life Terms In Banker Holdup

Charleston, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—War Joseph Kirby and Lawrence Gingell, who received 16-year sentences in a murder case, drew life terms today for armed robbery.

Kirby, 21, of Baltimore, Md., and Gingell, 20, of Kensington, Md., pleaded guilty to second degree murder at Sutton last week after their companion, William B. Read, 25, of Four Corners, Md., was sentenced to be hanged for slaying W. Earle Dollman, Charleston salesman, last November.

Kirby and Gingell had previously pleaded guilty to charges of robbing and abducting Paul P. Wilson, Charleston banker, last December and to robbing Harold Casto, filling station operator.

Europe Seeks U. S. Aid To Avert War as Hull Warns of Arms Race

Britain, France, Belgium Plan World Disarmament Conference.

Davis Believed On Peace Mission

London Entertains Hope American Isolation Will Be Ended.

War and Peace.

Great Britain, France and Belgium launched an ambitious scheme to bring about a world economic disarmament conference with the aid of the United States.

Warning against the "suicidal" world armament race, Secretary of State Cordell Hull urged reestablishment of friendly trade and political relations among all nations.

Premier Mussolini, charging flagrant violations of the Spanish nonintervention pact by France and other powers, threatened to plunge openly into the Spanish war.

Col. Francois de la Rocque, indicted on charges of reviving his banned Fascist Croix de Feu under a different name, defied the French government of Leon Blum to try dissolution of the party.

U. S. Aid Sought.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, April 5.—Great Britain, France and Belgium—harassed democracies of Western Europe—launched an ambitious scheme tonight to bring about a world economic disarmament conference with the aid of the United States.

Many diplomats regarded the tri-power move as the approach to a program of military as well as economic disarmament inasmuch as Europe's bickering statesmen are agreed that the two problems are inseparable in the threatening state of Old World affairs.

It was announced in London and Paris that their foreign offices have communicated with Belgium "with a view to exploring the direction in which it may prove possible to promote a reduction of trade barriers, including quotas."

Would Include U. S.

The real objectives of the scheme, it was said, will be to find a basis which ultimately can be extended not only to all Europe but to non-European countries, including the United States.

The exploratory talks on economic disarmament are intended, it was explained, to "lend substance to the hope expressed in the tri-power monetary agreement among the United States, Britain and France of last September 26."

The British and French foreign offices were quick to point out that no general economic conference is contemplated at present but the presence in London of several important foreign statesmen attending the international sugar conference—including President Roosevelt's roving Ambassador, Norman H. Davis—may provide a basis for "informal exchanges" on economic co-operation.

France and Britain asked Paul Van Zeeland, Belgian premier, to compile documents of the world's economic situation with a view to bringing them before a world economic conference.

It was pointed out in Paris that the "soundings" of the project would require almost a year and that, meanwhile, no plans could be fixed for a conference of any kind.

France Makes Bid.

It was admitted, however, that France and England hope that the move will lead to a revival of the ill-fated London economic conference of 1931 at which Davis was the American delegate.

Around Davis centered the hopes of European statesmen that a way can be found to enlist American aid for the economic rehabilitation scheme, and perhaps the broader suggestion of armaments limitation to prevent another general war in Europe.

France has made a direct bid for United States co-operation in efforts for lasting peace. It came in a radio speech last night by Francois de Tessan, Undersecretary of State.

Despite repeated denials from Washington, belief persisted here tonight that, despite his attendance at the sugar conferences, Davis actually is on an informal peace mission and may—before he returns to the United States—disclose a relaxation of the firm American policy of isolation.

Threat to Quit Neutrality Bloc In Spain Made by Mussolini

'Flagrant Violations' of Arms Embargo by France Are Charged in Il Duce's Newspaper; U. S. Planes Mentioned.

By the United Press.

Rome, April 5.—Premier Benito Mussolini, charging France and other European powers with violation of the Spanish neutrality accord, threatened tonight to plunge whole-heartedly into the civil war on the side of Gen. Franco's rebels.

The Gornale d'Italia, mouthpiece of Il Duce's foreign policies and often used to lay down a 'barrage' for his surprise announcements, published a list of alleged "flagrant" neutrality violations by France.

"Either we must have control of this neutrality or abandon the whole idea," the newspaper said

Drastic Action Hinted.

Government spokesmen admitted that the newspaper's charges were a direct reflection of Mussolini's attitude, and hinted broadly that Il Duce might withdraw at any time from the Spanish neutrality accord of 27 nations.

Mussolini's open entrance into the Spanish war would, in the opinion of diplomats, assure a rebel victory and the establishing of a Fascist dictatorship under Franco.

But, moreover, it might bring Europe to the verge of a general war, with democratic England and France—along with Red Russia—aligned against the two great Fascist powers, Italy and Germany.

Diplomats in Rome openly admitted their fears, pointing out that Mussolini usually precedes his diplomatic moves with newspaper propaganda. They also recalled the statements four days ago of Dino Alfieri, of the foreign office, to the effect that Italy would be forced to "reexamine the situation" if it were proved that other countries were violating the nonintervention agreement.

Immediately after Alfieri's statement Italian newspapers began pub-

Gratz Dunkum Gets Education Board Position

Gratz E. Dunkum, prominent for 30 years in business, religious and fraternal activities here, yesterday was appointed by the District Court to the District Board of Education seat made vacant last week by the resignation of Henry Gilligan.

Dunkum said last night he had not been officially notified of the appointment.

"I did not seek the office," he said. I have received several telephone calls concerning it, but no official notification, and I will say that I was not a candidate for the position."

Dunkum declined to state his attitude on any matters of policy, saying it "would be foolish to do so in advance of a survey of the whole situation. My interests, however, would certainly be in behalf of the school system and not in any group or faction."

Gilligan, known as a liberal member of the board, retires from the position tomorrow. He had served for 11 years.

Dunkum retired from active business about 10 years ago. Coming to Washington in 1898 from Buckingham County, Va., he was to serve as local manager for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and as a vice president of the East Washington Savings Bank, and have a prominent part in Masonic affairs.

Captain and Mate Injured, One Dead On Disabled Ship

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—The North German Lloyd Line late today announced it had received a message that one man was dead and two were injured on the S. S. Borkum, whose S O S sent ships in the North Atlantic steaming to her aid.

From Capt. Aherns of the S. S. Bremen came the following:

"Last night at 2:30 G. M. T. (11:30 p. m. New York time) S. S. Borkum, captain and chief officer injured, one sailor dead, navigating bridge and two hatches slightly damaged. Weather improving. Able to proceed to Horta accompanied by battleship Schlesien. S. S. Schwaben is at present of temporary assistance. S. S. Borkum cannot be reached by boat on account of rough sea. The Bremen's probable arrival at Cherbourg 3 p. m. the seventh."

Md. Legislature Is Deadlocked On Relief Bill

Baltimore, Eastern Shore Delegates Combine to Block Passage.

By Joseph M. Mathias,

A Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., April 5.—The Legslature of Maryland at midnight tonight, its closing day, reached what appeared to be an absolute deadlock on the question of raising $5,062,000 for relief in the State.

This all-important measure hit a snag in the House of Delegates when ways and means committee members attempted to bring out the Senate bill, covering relief taxation, which included in it the legalization of bookmaking in the State. Baltimore City delegates were attempting to eliminate the bookie clause and substitute the legalization of dog racing.

The deadlock occurred when Baltimore City delegates, acting under direction of a political leader of Baltimore, aligned themselves with a bloc from the Eastern Shore.

Prince Georges County delegation threw a bombshell into the proceedings on the all-important relief program when it proposed that the 1% State tax on wagers be withdrawn from the relief funds and be returned to the political jurisdiction in which they were collected.

The delegation also offered an amendment to the bookmakers' clause to the relief bill empowering the board of commissioners to require a $25,000 county fee in addition to the State fee of $5,000.

This led to a charge being made from the floor by Delegate Leon Abramson, of Baltimore, that the proposal would benefit "a bookmaker." He added, "I emphasize, a bookmaker."

Among the statewide legislation passed tonight were bills:

Regulating sale of pistols by requiring dealers to make records of sales and furnish data to police.

Providing constitutional amendment to authorize the Legislature to impose a tax on incomes of individuals but not of corporations. The amendment will be submitted in the November, 1938, election.

Requiring persons to testify for the State in trials of lottery, bribery and conspiracy charges and granting such witnesses immunity from prosecution.

Granting tax exemptions for four years to the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad.

Continuing for two years State roads commission control over county lateral roads.

Authorizing issuance of $1,000,000 in bonds for construction of a

Man, Sister Save 3 as 6 Die In Windstorm on Texas Lake

By the Associated Press.

San Antonio, Tex., April 5.—A brother and a sister emerged tonight as heroes of a Medina Lake boating tragedy in which six persons were drowned.

Frank Trahan went to the aid of a party spilled into deep water when a squall upset their motorboat while his sister, Carolyn, 21, swam half a mile to shore and summoned help.

Sam Johnston died trying to save his 5-year-old daughter, Minnie Lee. Mrs. Johnston and a son, George, were rescued. Rescuers found Mrs. Johnston supporting the body of her daughter.

The others drowned were Mrs. Lucille Lamkin, 35; Henry L. (Sunny) Lamkin, 45, cafe operator; James E. Stone, railroad man; Leslie A. Bowers, 34, a pari-mutuel employe at Alamo Downs race track.

Five of the victims and four other persons, including Miss Trahan, were in a large motorboat when a sudden squall overturned the craft. Trahan and Johnston were in a smaller boat nearby. A wave capsized the boat as they hurried to the rescue. Trahan was struck on the head.

"For a moment I was stunned," Trahan said, "then I began frantically pulling my riding boots off. I dived in and grabbed my wife and little George Johnston. The wind and the waves were getting pretty rough, but I finally succeeded in going back and getting Mrs. Sam Johnston, my sister, who held her

A few hours after President Roosevelt had asked, in a special message, legislation for a permanent Civilian Conservation Corps limited to 300,000 enrollees, members of Congress last night were ponedring ways of boosting the maximum enrollment above the President's figures. At the same time, throughout the country, members of the corps were holding 2,000 open house celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the corps.

A Democratic steering committee of the House, eager for an enlarged CCC rather than a restricted one, at a meeting today will consider the possibility of fixing the permanent strength at 350,000 or higher. The committee, early in March, carried to the President a plea that a higher enrollment be provided for, but the President at that time said he had to consider the matter in terms of budget requirements and pointed out that the 300,000 figure would provide for all applicants from relief families.

Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat), Oklahoma, who led the group visiting the President more than a month ago, said last night he was prepared to lead the fight for an enrollment of 350,000. He suggested that postponement of construction of one of the two new "$50,000,000 battleships" could help provide the additional funds. It is estimated each enrollee costs about $1,000 a year.

A Question of Money.

Johnson said at the time the House group visited the White House that it was a question of finding the money, and indicated he expected the President's acceptance of the greater CCC strength if members of Congres could find the money without upsetting budget figures.

In his message yesterday, the President said in view of improved business conditions an enrollment of 300,000, including war veterans, who now number about 25,000 of the corps members, was as great as could be expected.

"To go beyond this at this time," the message said, "would open new and difficult classifications of enrollment, and the additional cost would seriously affect the financial position of the Treasury."

The President, recalling that in his budget message last January he had indicated his desire that the CCC be made permanent, pointed out that its legislative authorization is due to expire June 30, and added:

"I am convinced that there is ample useful work in the protection, restoration and development of our national resources, upon which the services of the corps may be employed advantageously for an extended future period.

"It should be noted that this program will not in any respect reduce normal employment opportunities for our adult workers; in fact the purchase of simple materials, of food and clothing and of other supplies required for the operations of the corps tends to increase employment in industry."

CCC Members Celebrate.

Meanwhile, as CCC youths throughout the country ate or danced at jollification ceremonies marking the corps' fourth anniversary, figures made public here by Robert Fechner, corps director, revealed something of the magnitude of its accomplishments and operations to date.

In a report to the President, portions of which were written by the Secretaries of Labor, Interior, Agriculture and War and the Veterans' Administration, who have a share in the CCC activities, Fechner revealed that more than 1,700,000 young men and war veterans have been taken from relief rolls and put to work on conservation projects. It estimated that employment had been supplied to an additional 300,000 nonenrolled persons, and the expenditures of funds for supplies have stimulated business recovery and furnished employment indirectly to many engaged in production, manufacture and distribution of supplies and equipment.

Up to last December 31, financial obligations of the emergency conservation work had totaled $1,511,650,509.

Pay of members reached $460,684,157, and enrollees sent home to dependents more than $360,000,000.

Civilians received an additional $171,110,055.

For subsistence was spent $201,608,780, and for clothing $154,893,327.

Supplies, materials and equipment cost $192,497,285, and $67,785,183 went for shelter.

Steady Reduction Made.

Other lesser expenditures, all serving to swell the totals, were for travel, transportation of materials, utilities, pay of reserve officers and land.

The actual peak enrollment of the corps, including Indians and residents of the territories, was 519,000 on August 31, 1935. The number was gradually reduced by a policy of nonreplacement of enrollees who left the corps to take jobs or for other reasons. On January 31, this year, there were 351,382 enrollees in 2,084 camps, but this number has since been reduced.

On March 21, 1933, I addressed a message to the Congress in which I stated:

"I propose to create a civilian conservation corps to be used in simple work, not interfering with normal employment, and confining itself to forestry, the prevention of soil erosion, flood control and similar projects. I call your attention to the fact that this type of work is of definite, practical value, not only through the prevention of great present financial loss, but also as a means of creating future national wealth."

The prompt consideration given this message by Congress resulted in the enactment, on March 31, 1933, of Public—No. 5, to provide for the relief of unemployment through the performance of useful public work; and on April 5, 1933, Executive Order, I set up the office of Emergency Conservation Work to carry the above act into effect.

It is not necessary to go into detail regarding the accomplishments of the corps. You are acquainted with the physical improvements that have taken place in our forests and parks as a result of the activities of the corps and with the wealth that is being added to our natural resources for the benefit of future generations. More important than the material gain, however, is the improvement we find in the moral and physical well-being of our citizens who have been enrolled in the corps and of their families who have been assisted by monthly allotments of pay.

The functions of the corps expire under authority of present law on June 30, 1937.

In my budget message to Congress on January 5 of this year I indicated that the corps should be continued and recommended that legislation be enacted during the present session to establish the corps as a permanent agency of the Government. Such continuance or establishment is desirable notwithstanding the great strides that have been made toward national recovery, as there is still need for providing useful and healthful employment for a large number of our youthful citizens.

I am convinced that there is ample useful work in the protection, restoration and development of our national resources, upon which the services of the corps may be employed advantageously for an extended future period. It should be noted that this program will not in any respect reduce normal employment opportunities for our adult workers; in fact, the purchase of simple materials, of food and clothing and of other supplies for the operations of the corps tends to increase employment in industry.

I recommend, therefore, that provision be made for a permanent corps of 300,000 youths (and war veterans), together with 10,000 Indian and 5,000 enrollees in our territories and insular possessions. It would appear, after a careful study of available information, that, with improved business conditions, these numbers represent the maximum enrollment that at this time would open new and difficult classifications of enrollment, and the additional cost would seriously affect the financial position of the Treasury.

I trust the Congress will deem it wise to enact legislation making permanent the Civilian Conservation Corps.

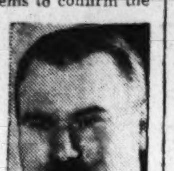
Senate's Refusal to Vote 'Sit-Downs' Illegal Seems to Back Roosevelt Aid to Lewis.

By Franklyn Waltman



WALTMAN.

REFUSAL of the Senate to brand sit-down strikes as illegal and contrary to public policy seems to confirm the widespread opinion that President Roosevelt is anxious to do nothing which would interfere with the union organization activities of John L. Lewis — by fair or foul means.

Approval of the Byrnes sit-down-strike amendment to the new Guffey-Vinson coal-control bill was bitterly fought by the Administration leaders in the Senate, even though it was sponsored by a close friend of the President. Presumably the Democratic leaders in the Senate acted on White House inspiration.

This presumption becomes stronger if the tactics used to defeat the Byrnes amendment are examined. Democratic Leader Robinson pleaded for rejection of the Byrnes amendment on the ground that the question of sit-down strikes should be considered independently of the coal-control bill, and finally it was proposed to let the Senate vote on this matter later in a concurrent resolution, which, if adopted by the House and Senate, would not require the President's signature. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt does not wish to take a stand on sit-down strikes.

* * * *

This action of the Senate adds a great deal of force to the statement several days ago of Walter Lippmann that "for the first time in their history the American people are questioning whether the party in charge of their Government believes in law or is willing to sustain courts."

That is the real issue in this controversy. It is not a question of the right of labor to organize, of collective bargaining or of fair treatment for workers. All these issues are subordinate to the higher question of whether the Federal Government shall continue to encourage lawlessness—even though the objectives sought are meritorious and worthy.

Many industrialists have been arrogant and stupid in their resistance to collective bargaining. Many of them blindly have spent millions of dollars in recent years employing labor spies and strike-breaking organizations to thwart every effort of their workers to form organizations to protect their rights.

Perhaps many of these industrialists would have been shocked if they had been present and heard the words yesterday of Thomas Ashurst, employer delegate from Great Britain and secretary of the British Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers Association, before the World Textile Conference meeting here.

Mr. Ashurst declared that he viewed with "great concern any international action which would involve the abandonment of our system of settling wage and hour conditions in the various countries otherwise than by collective bargaining." He added that collective bargaining had proved "satisfactory" and "equitable" and asserted that "any attempt to take from us our system of such bargaining will be resisted not only by the employers, but, I am quite sure, by the workers section as well."

Mr. Ashurst was urging opposition to proposals for an international labor organization imposing a 40-hour work week on the textile industry—because the British textile industry does not want a 40-hour week. But his remarks in regard to the value of collective bargaining in England—where it is regarded as a natural relationship between workers and employers — indicates how unenlightened many American industrialists are.

But all of that is beside the point in this controversy over sit-down strikes. The real issue is the contempt for law and the courts which is being engendered by the attitude which the Roosevelt Administration has taken in regard to sit-down strikes. Surely one can fight for humanitarian ideals and undertake to see that no person starves without acquiescing in the actions of hungry men stealing or tossing bricks through restaurant or bakery windows.

From the inception of the sit-down strike movement in this country, the Roosevelt Administration has not lifted a finger to discourage them. Indeed, it has subtly encouraged them from the day that John L. Lewis, as Senator Bailey phrased it in the Senate on Friday, "in an excess of arrogance announced that he had elected Mr. Roosevelt President; that he had contributed half a million dollars to the campaign fund, and he demanded that the President of the United States come to his deliverance and take his side."

It was after that the President forced Alfred P. Sloan, of General Motors to confer with Secretary of Labor Perkins; that Secretary of Labor Perkins held that the legality of sit-down strikes had not been determined, and that SEC Chairman James M. Landis, with all the prestige of his new appointment as the Harvard Law School dean, suggested in the developing concepts of law sit-down strikes in the future may be regarded as lawful.

And now the President's lieutenants in the Senate beat down, with Democratic votes, a proposal to put that body on record as pronouncing sit-down strikes illegal. Whether the Senate by passing a concurrent resolution later can repair the damage done is doubtful. Indeed, many a Senator may well ponder why he should take a definite stand on the question which the President apparently wishes to evade.

We will be a lucky and fortunate people if the germs of disrespect for law and authority now being injected into our national life do not become a malignant growth within the body politic with serious consequences at some future date.

Clause Is Defeated Before Passage of Coal Measure.

vote for the amendment, while 43 Democrats, 3 Republicans, 1 Independent and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted "no."

Senator Pittman, whose language Byrnes used, but who favors action by resolution, voted against the amendment. Later Pittman introduced a concurrent resolution condemning alike sit-down strikes and the industrial "spy" system.

The Pittman resolution, one of three now on the Senate table, provides:

"Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that the so-called sit-down strike is illegal and contrary to sound public policy; and

"That the so-called Industrial spy system, breeds fear, suspicion and animosities and is contrary to sound public policy.

"The Congress only assumes to speak as to strikes in industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

Other resolutions were offered by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania. These are simple Senate resolutoins, and would not require action by the House or White House signature.

The King resolution declares continuance of sit-downs "inimical to the maintenance of a democratic form of government and is subversive of the authority of the United States," while the Davis resolution declares it "the sense of the Senate that so-called sit-down strikes are illegal and contrary to sound public policy."

Another Row Likely.

Another row is imminent when and if any one of the three is called up tomorrow. One unanimous consent request will be presented to refer the proposal to committee, with instructoins to report back next Monday. If this fails, a motion to the same effect will be made.

The Guffey coal bill, passed yesterday by the Senate, and previously by the House, now goes back to the House with Senate amendments. It shortly will be sent to a conference committee to work out differences in detail.

It represents the second major attempt to regulate the soft coal industry. The original Guffey-Vinson act was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in the Carter coal case. Attempting to meet the high court's objection, the revised measure makes no attempt at regulating wages and hours.

Aimed at unreasonable price cutting and trade practices, the new measure seeks to establish minimum prices based upon average production cost in the competitive coal-producing areas. Power would be vested in a National Bituminous Coal Commission, and the country divided into 23 coal producing districts. Boards in each district, comprising at least two members of the industry and a representative of labor, will submit to the commission for approval minimum prices based on average production costs. Consumers' interests would be represented through a consumers' counsel.

To finance administration, a 1-cent per ton tax would be imposed on participants. Producers failing to participate would be taxed 19½ per cent of their sales.

An unsuccessful eleventh-hour effort was made by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, to strike out a paragraph in the bill exempting coal producers from prosecution under antitrust laws, for agreements in compliance with the measure.

Amendments adopted by the Senate exempted statistical employes of the coal commission from Civil Service laws, exempted sales to farm co-operatives from price requirements, and made purchasers subject to prosecution where illegal sales were made.

Walsh Criticizes.

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, took the floor to denounce personnel requirements that he said "practically abandon the merit system." Walsh said he knew it would be useless to offer an amendment to correct them.

Debate of the Byrnes sit-down amendment consumed most of the afternoon. Following its rejection, the South Carolinian predicted unfavorable reaction in the press and on the radio would have Senators clamoring for another chance to vote on the strike issue "within 48 hours."

Byrnes noted the denunciation of the industrial "spy" system in the Pittman resolution would "apply to all industry" whereas condemnation of sit-down strikes was limited to "industries within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

"That means it would apply only to the District and to the railroads," said Byrnes.

Robinson in vain sought withdrawal of the Byrnes amendment promising that if the two issues were separated, he would support independent consideration of sit-down strikes when once the coal bill was passed. He argued "lawlessness" was not confined to employes alone.

Sit-Down Vote

A. F. L. to Fight C. I. O. Efforts In Oil Fields

Rival Labor Union Opens 'Counter Offensive' on Lewis.

By the Associated Press.

The American Federation of Labor, striving to offset the inroads made by John L. Lewis in the Nation's labor ranks, last night launched a "counter offensive" to the Committee for Industrial Organization's drive to enlist a million oil workers under the banner of the C. I. O.

A few hours after H. C. Fremming, C. I. O. chieftain, announced plans for the Lewis organization's mammoth oil field campaign, Holt Ross, Southern representative of the A. F. of L., declared:

"The American Federation of Labor will do all possible to resist the drive of the C. I. O. to organize gas well and refinery oil workers."

Charges Communism.

Charging that the Committee for Industrial Organization is "honeycombed with Communists," Ross warned that the federation will "expel all C. I. O. delegates to central labor unions and to State federations."

He outlined plans for the A. F. of L. drive among the oil workers before the convention of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor at Lake Charles.

Meanwhile, President William Green of the A. F. of L., speaking at Newark, N. J., called on labor to support the federation and said "all those who believe in aiding one man to realize an all-consuming ambition will stand on the other side."

He did not refer by name to John L. Lewis in addressing delegates to the National Council of Aluminum Workers, as he declared:

"We're not going to have a Hitler or a Mussolini in the labor movement in America."

At the same time Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins attacked the sit-down strike, favorite weapon of the C. I. O. in its organizing drive, declaring the sit-down is "not a good technique, nor a useful one," and described it as "a vogue which is now passing over." She expressed her views in a press conference at Chicago.

Asked whether she believed Lewis had Presidential ambitions, she replied:

"I don't know. He hasn't confided in me."

Sloan Hits Sit-Downs.

Meanwhile Lewis and Walter P. Chrysler continued their strike peace conference at Lansing, Mich. Settlement of the four-week-old dispute, which would send at least 85,000 wage earners back to their posts, was reliably reported to be "a matter of hours," as the session adjourned until tomorrow.

These were additional developments in the labor field:

Pay increases aggregating $2,000,000 annually were granted 20,000 workers in the pottery industry. The United States Pottery Manufacturers Association announced the wage boost, ranging from 9 to 15 per cent, would affect 24 factories in the East and Middle West.

Farmers from half a dozen counties in Pennsylvania demonstrated at Hershey, Pa., against a strike which closed the Hershey Chocolate Co. plant and cut off the demand for thousands of gallons of milk. Negotiations toward settlement continued.

A parade and demonstration, during which ten persons were seized by police, marked the three-week-old trucker strike at Wilmington, Del., where a sympathy walkout of 39 unions was in effect briefly Saturday.

Some 20,000 Alabama coal miners were not among the hundreds of thousands who resumed work after last week's one-day shutdown pending sighing of a new contract. A delay in negotiations kept the Alabama workers from the pits.

Public Opposes Compromise in Miller Murder

Believes Dentist Should Stand Trial in Girl's Death.

By Edward T. Folliard,
A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—Growing resentment was noted here tonight following announcement of the compromise agreement in the case of Dr. Richard G. Miller, alleged chloroform killer of Cleo Sprouse, 18-year-old high school girl.

Under the agreement between prosecuting and defense attorneys, Dr. Miller will escape a jury trial by pleading guilty to second degree murder and leaving it up to Circuit Judge Lemuel T. Smith to sentence him to a jail term of from 5 to 20 years.

Meanwhile, in Staunton, Va., Mrs. Lula Sprouse, of Charlottesville, mother of the girl victim, engaged Charles Curry as attorney for the family.

Mrs. Sprouse made it clear she retained the attorney to ascertain what steps, if any, could be taken in view of the announcement that Dr. Miller would plead guilty to second-degree murder in the case.

Opposes Second Degree.

Mrs. Sprouse said tonight she did not know "they were trying to make a compromise on second-degree murder until this morning."

She said she wanted Miller, Charlottesville dentist held since soon after her daughter's body was found beside a cemetery wall March 2, prosecuted on a first-degree murder charge if prosecuted at all.

She said the entire family was unalterably opposed to any proposal to accept the second-degree murder plea.

Mrs. Sprouse in Staunton said she came there to confer with the local Commonwealth's attorney, but was unable to find him.

Curry said tonight he had arranged by telephone to confer with William O. Fife, Commonwealth's attorney, in the latter's Charlottesville office tomorrow. He said members of the Sprouse family would be present.

Dr. Miller was indicted for first degree murder, which calls for a sentence ranging from 20 years in the penitentiary to death in the electric chair.

Apparently, Commonwealth Attorney William O. Fife, of Albemarle County, was not so sure that he could get a first degree verdict. As for the battery of defense attorneys, they are relieved of any fear that there might be a first degree verdict. In Virginia, a jury not only determines the degree of guilt but fixes the punishment.

Dr. Miller was scheduled to appear in court today and make his plea of second degree murder, but the death of Judge Smith's sister, Miss Jane Smith, caused a postponement. He is scheduled to appear Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

A canvass of sentiment here indicated a large part of the populace—probably a preponderant part—feels that Dr. Miller should undergo the traditional trial by jury so that the whole case might be cleared up.

Mrs. Sprouse, mother of the slain girl, told reporters in Charlottesville:

"They say they are not going to bring Dr. Miller to trial because of the embarrassment and sorrow that would be forced upon his wife and son and daughter. I wonder if they have stopped to think about the terrible heartbreak and sorrow that he (Dr. Miller) has brought upon me and my children."

A haggard-appearing woman, Mrs. Sprouse was dressed in deep mourning.

Dr. Miller, 53, had been the Sprouse family dentist for 20 years. He was arrested the day after Cleo's body was found outside the University of Virginia Cemetery grounds, a can of chloroform pressed down on her mouth. That night, as he was being taken to Henrico County Jail in Richmond, Dr. Miller confessed that the girl died under the chloroform while he was preparing to perform an illegal operation. He was quoted by the officers as saying she was to have a child in five months, but as insisting he was not the father.

Robert E. Taylor, one of Dr. Miller's four attorneys, said over the week-end that he, the other defense attorneys and Commonwealth's Attorney Fife were agreed that a public trial in the case would cause "publicity that would be harmful to all concerned."

Just the same, there are a great many persons who don't like the procedure that apparently is to be followed. Many of these it is declared, are substantial men.

These citizens, it was said, argue that this is a case of the people vs. Dr. Miller, and that he should be tried by a jury, to the end that the people would know all the facts and be able to decide for themselves whether complete justice had been done.

Dr. Miller, who had been in the Henrico County Jail in Richmond since the night when a crowd of 1,000 gathered outside the jail, was returned here by Albemarle County officers last night.

Heretofore he has talked as if he were confident of acquittal. In Richmond, when one of his jailers told him about a fishing trip, Dr. Miller was reported to have said:

"Just as soon as I am out of this mess, I'll show you some of the best fishing spots you ever saw."
cmfwyp shrdl shrdl shrdl vbgkq

At her home here, late today, visitors were told that she had suffered a nervous spell and had been ordered to bed by her physician. Dick, the Millers' 15-year-old son, is now in school at Norfolk. The "glares" of his schoolmates here, it was explained, caused him to choose a new environment.

Man Confesses Killing Coach, Stabbing Sailor

Suspect Admits 2 Attacks on Ferryboat Near Portsmouth, Va.

By the Associated Press.

Portsmouth, Va., April 5.—Detective Sergt. T. A. Talbot said today Sidney Peele, 28, admitted after his arrest on a charge of murder today that he fatally stabbed William E. ("Bill") Daughtrey, 25-year-old Suffolk High School coach, and critically wounded J. E. Brooks, a sailor, on a ferry boat here last night.

Peele, arrested at his home early today by Talbot and Detective C. W. White, was held without bond pending a hearing April 17.

Peele told them, they said, he slashed the former Hampden-Sydney College athlete and the sailor attached to the U. S. S. New York because Daughtrey struck him after Peele had trampled the coach's foot.

The officers said a knife with a 2-inch blade, sharpened to a razor edge, was used, and that the assailant fled from the boat as it moved into its Portsmouth slip. The stabbing occurred shortly after 9 p. m. Sunday.

Daughtrey died in a hospital about 20 minutes later, and Brooks, attendants said today, remained in a critical condition after an operation performed in an effort to save his life.

The high school coach's bride, Mrs. Anne Holton Daughtrey, and two companions, who witnessed the attack, said they believed Daughtrey's assailant was angered when the group laughed about something on the boat, which the man apparently misinterpreted as being directed at him.

Wife Exonerated In Coast Shooting Of D.C. Attorney

Los Angeles, April 5 (U.P.).—An autopsy report in the death of Gordon Souther, 30, former Washington attorney, tonight exonerated his wife, Marian, who has been held for questioning since the shooting Saturday night.

The report stated the bullet wound was a "typical suicide shot" and cited powder marks in the ear and inside the wound, proving the .22-caliber rifle was fired at close range.

Although police said they probably would detain the widow until the inquest, set for Wednesday, Coroner Frank Nance said that in view of the autopsy there was some doubt that he would hold an inquest.

Boy Admits Setting Zion Temple Fire

Zion, Ill., Aug. 5 (AP).—Alven Ruesch, chief of both the Zion fire and police departments, said early today Thomas Griffith, 19, had confessed setting fire to the 35-year-old Shiloh Temple and radio station WCBD which resulted in an estimated loss of $600,000.

Ruesch quoted the boy as saying he burned the building to get revenge for wrongs he fancied were done his foster-parents by Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva of the Christian Apostolic Church, which operated the temple.

Woman Kills Self At Home by Gas

Mary Elizabeth Whitesel, 35, killed herself with illuminating gas early yesterday in her home at 409 I street northeast.

The woman was found unconscious in her room by Glade B. Outland, the landlord, who summoned police. The fire rescue squad worked about 15 minutes in an effort to revive Mrs. Whitesel. She was pronounced dead by a doctor from Casualty Hospital.

Shore Hotel Burns As 20,000 Watch

Atlantic City, N. J., April 5 (AP).—The once-fashionable, empty Grand Atlantic Hotel, a half block from the resort's famous Boardwalk, was destroyed by a spectacular, four-hour fire today.

Fought by 200 firemen and watched by 20,000 spectators, the blaze forced evacuation of 200 guests from the adjoining Royal Palms Hotel and threatened to sweep a vast area of frame buildings in the city's uptown section.

Briton Opposes International 40-Hour Week

Textile Industry Maximum Draws Fire of Labor Ministry Delegate.

By the Associated Press.

The British government delegate to the World Textile Conference sided yesterday with powerful employer groups in opposing an international 40-hour week for workers.

"We do not want a 40-hour week in Britain because that would mean reductions in the pay-roll income of our textile workers," said Col. Anthony J. Muirhead, parliamentary secretary for the ministry of labor.

He was the first representative of a foreign power to take a position on the maximum hours issue before the conference. His attitude was the reverse of that previously expressed by Arthur Shaw, British workers' delegate.

Muirhead contended the conference should devote itself to a "technical examination" of textile problems, but should not adopt resolutions.

Emil Rieve, president of the Workers' World Textile Conference, followed Muirhead with an assertion that employe delegates did not wish to "embark upon a competitive race in platitudes and commonplaces."

Opposes Technicalities.

"This is a technical conference," he added, "but we hope it is not to be a conference of technicalities. We must think in terms of action and accomplishment even while dealing with figures and accumulated data."

Rieve added that labor was "prepared to oppose those in this conference who expect to use the word 'technical' as the mantle for wide wanderings into related fields for the mere purpose of obstruction."

Victor Vanderputte, French workers' delegate, called upon the conference to state clearly that a 40-hour work week should be worked out by the next International Labor Conference in Geneva.

"Employers are trying to protect their interests," he said, "but production has outrun consumption and some action will have to be taken to reduce hours throughout the world."

Urging a limited week, Anton Roscher, speaking for the workers of Czechoslovakia, called for international action "making it impossible for manufacturers of one country to compete with those of another by exploiting labor."

Demands Limited Week.

He was joined by Alphonse Segier, Belgian workers' delegate, who insisted a limited work week was not only "possible but necessary."

James Bell, adviser to the British Workers' delegate, attacked Muirhead's stand as "ultra-cautious."

"I want to say how disappointed the representatives of the working classes in my country were when they listened to the address of the representative of the British Government," Bell exclaimed.

"If I summed up that speech in a very few words I would say, 'Oh, do be careful!' "

Referring to Muirhead's opposition to the 40-hour week, Thomas Ashurst, British employers' delegate, warned against a limited work period interfering with employer-worker relations.

"I view with great concern," he said, "any international action which would involve the abandonment of our system of settling wage and hour conditions in the various countries otherwise than by collective bargaining."

Harriman Speaks.

"It has worked equitably (in the British industry) and any attempt to take from us our system of such bargaining will be resisted not only by employers, but I am quite sure by the workers' section as well."

Of minimum wages, he said it would be "no easy matter" to raise pay in low-rate countries to the level of high-rate countries.

Henry I. Harriman, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, told the conference certain restrictions must be placed upon unlimited competition in the industry.

They would have to be imposed, he said, to the extent of establishing "fair maximum hours, fair minimum wages and the abolition of child labor."

Three Officials Of Nolan Firm Indicted Here

23 Charges Are Made Against Auto Company Head, Associates.

Charges of forgery, uttering, false pretenses and conspiracy to commit false pretenses were placed against William J. Nolan, head of the bankrupt Nolan Motor Co., and two of his former office associates, Benjamin D. Jenkins and James F. Gallagher, yesterday shortly after the District grand jury had returned three indictments in which there were 23 specific charges.

The charges revolve about the sale of allegedly spurious conditional sales contracts discounted with the Universal Credit Co. A total of approximately $30,000 is said to have been obtained. The conspiracy count of the indictment alleges they sold 45 bona fide conditional sales contracts to the Munsey Trust Co., and then sold spurious contracts for the same machines to the Universal Credit Co.

In another indictment reported yesterday, the grand jury charged Frank J. Hill, head of Crumpton & Co., with using the mails to defraud and with violating the Securities act. Hill, who has been sought since 1934, is alleged to have obtained Cities Service common stock from his customers on the representation the stock would be sold and the proceeds used to purchase preferred stock in the same corporation. With 25 salesmen on his staff, he is said to have obtained about $144,000, most of it from nearby Maryland and Virginia residents.

Former WPA Aide Indicted.

Charles B. Eliot, former official of the Works Progress Administration, was indicted on charges of forging three pay checks in the WPA. He is said to have caused the name of a fictitious person, Alex Dubois, to be placed on the pay rolls, with instructions pay checks should be delivered to him. The amount approximated $440.

Conspiracy charges were booked against Philip Gelfo, Sam Graham Hambrick, William J. Wise, Edwin Lowe and Harry H. Crossley after they had allegedly conspired to force nonunion barbers to join the union by a campaign that included smashing windows and throwing stench bombs.

Henry Berman, an automobile dealer, and Robert A. Wrenn, a teller in the City Bank, were indicted on an accusation of misapplication of funds of the bank. The former teller is alleged to have permitted Berman to "kite" two checks for $1,200 in 1936 after having been notified not to cash any more drafts for him.

Others Indicted.

Others indicted were: Robert R. Lovett, nonsupport; Nelson N. Carter, John White, Leon B. Edwards, Benjamin Taylor, Walter I. Reeves and Albert H. Rowe, joy-riding; Frank J. Blackwell, George W. Andre, William W. Scott, Joseph W. Petro, James Randsford, Rose Holzer, Helen Ryan, grand larceny; Robert Shaw, John E. Holzman, Karl O. Thornton, Lorenzo S. Wilson, Leroy Davis, Vernie Witten, James M. Cain, James H. N. Waring, Bliss Plaine, James D. Tinsley and Marion Tyler, housebreaking.

Robert E. Dorsett, Stanley Wyche and Bonnie McKay, assault with a dengerous weapon; Hampton L. Thompson and Harry C. Atkinson, larceny after trust; William Jeter, Horace Thompson, Samuel Wallace, William Brown, James McCoy and Edward Harris, depredation of private property; George H. Jackson and Samuel Newell, violation of national motor vehicle theft act; Cleo Garrison and Julius Manning, gaming; James Carter, James McDowell and James Jackson, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Melvin T. Salter, Helen M. Slattery, James E. O'Connor, John Anton Meyers, John Hand, Lee Wing, and Mark Ging, narcotic charges; Frederick Goldstein, Sampel David Goldfin and Mae Walsh, violation of the white slave traffic act.

Joseph L. McGuinn, pandering; Ethel Nash, violation of section 317, title 18, U. S. Code; Russel A. Strome, forgery and uttering; Albert C. Johnson, manslaughter; Edward Wilson Culpepper, second degree murder; Samuel J. Jones, first degree murder; Gerald V. Pershing, embezzlement; Harold Mollock and Sol Mollock, violation of section 335, title 18, U. S. Code; Edward Gibson, depredation on private property.

Man, Kept Alive 3 Years On Others' Blood, Dies

Indianapolis, April 5 (AP).—Roscoe Hardin, 38, of Shelbyville, is dead after living three years on borrowed blood.

Since infection of a cut finger three years ago, Hardin's system had been unable to produce new blood and in the last three years he had undergone transfusions nearly every two weeks. He died in a hospital while preparations were being made for the eighty-first transfusion. His wife and two children survive.

Bartender Free With Rum.

Newark, N. J., April 5 (U.P.).—Alfred Eisen went competitors one better today when he offered to lend a bar and bartender free with quantity purchases of liquor in his chain stores. The bar—5 feet 5 inches long, colored orange and red, and tended by Leonard Rosenstein—was loaned first last night to Mr. and Mrs. Lou Gelback who are celebrating their honeymoon.

Educational Toys Favored.

New York, April 5 (U.P.).—Educational toys will dominate 1937 Christmas trees, a survey of exhibits at the American toy fair showed today. Even the dolls are educational—their panties have real buttons and everything so that little girls may learn to dress and undress themselves.

at one time this week, as he hopped from one cheap room to another, that they arrived at one place only a few minutes after he had left.

"Because he is a 'psycho' case we're afraid he'll commit suicide the moment he feels we're really getting close to him," said Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine.

No sooner had he said that than police rushed to the Montclair Hotel, where a man leaped to his death from the sixteenth floor. But it was not Irwin, they decided. The body of a man found floating in the North River also was not Irwin, they said.

Charles Ottburg, landlord of the Fifty-second street rooming house, recognized Irwin's picture in today's papers and called police. Irwin, he said, had packed up and left his room suddenly the Monday morning after the slayings.

"He wouldn't let anyone make his bed," he said. "When he left he seemed very excited—his eyes were staring wildly."

Mrs. Kudner said she hadn't "heard from Irwin" in a long time, but that he visited the apartment for some time last fall.

"Do you think the police are after the right man now?" she was asked.

"I don't know, but I certainly hope so," she said.

Meanwhile, more excerpts from the diary of the slain Veronica were made public by police.

The model frequently mentioned her love for "Bob", her willingness to marry him, her dissatisfaction with her home, and once says:

"Mother is so broke she has nothing to eat and boy, am I hungry."

The excerpts in the order released by police:

February 22, 1932—"Went to Mary's house with Bob. Had a pretty good time. Went out at night and nearly fell asleep was so bored. came home and mother gave me h—— for getting in at 11 o'clock. I hate him and told him so."

February 22, 1933—"Rest,, made-up—had a quarrel with Bob in the morning. He should realize my condition."

February 23, 1933—"Feel sick and lousy. Didn't go to school. If Bobby gets a good job that pays good I'd run away with him and get married. Anything to get away from this family. I love Bob. He was swell. I am crazy, nutty, buggy, etc."

ROBERT IRWIN.

"I Am So Dumb."

March 10, 1932.—"I am losing weight. I look terrible. I feel terrible. Half of me says 'Yes.' Half of me says 'No.' This heavy feeling can't go on. I'm going nuts—crying, etc. I am so dumb."

March 10, 1933—"Mama is so broke she has nothing to eat and boy am I hungry. Dave has a very fine nature. I like it. Bob is so funny. I don't know at all how his family stands him. I am getting so sick and tired of it all. Him, my family and myself for being dumb. Went over to an odd millionaire's apartment. He was a homosexual and erratic."

Canton, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—Robert Irwin, 29-year-old sculptor and former divinity school student, was labeled an "odd guy" on the St. Lawrence University campus long before he became the object of a police search for questioning in connection with New York's Easter morning triple slaying.

Clews Are Found In 2 Sex Slayings

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP).—Blood-stained fingerprints on a window sill and two clay models of size 11 shoeless footprints were the only clews tonight in the search for the sex-crazed slayer of Mrs. Edna A. Worden and her 12-year-old daughter, Marguerite.

Police detectives, expressing belief a huge colored man used a brickbat to crush the skulls of his sleeping victims in their apartment early Sunday morning, were checking files on all persons arrested in recent years on morals offenses.

The officers said they believed the killer is the same who has slain three women and severely beaten five others in Los Angeles in recent months. In each case the women were felled by brickbats.

Italians Getting Taller.

Rome, April 5 (AP).—Italians are getting taller, says a report by Giunio Salvi, director of the University of Naples. Prof. Salvi cites statistics of the military conscription department showing Italian soldiers born in 1896 averaged 5.352 feet in height, and those born in 1909 5.405 feet. He added that figures compiled for later years show more increase in average height.

Hearing Is April 16 In Hit-Run Deaths

Washington, Va., April 5.—Trial Justice George Settle will conduct a preliminary hearing here April 16 for Thomas O. Greenough on charges in connection with the auto death of two colored men early Sunday.

Greenough, scion of a wealthy Virginia family, has been charged with involuntary manslaughter, Commonwealth Attorney Frank Moffett announced today, in connection with the deaths of Walton and Nathan Fletcher, brothers living here.

They and two other colored men, Henry Starks and William Roy, were struck by a station wagon which Moffett charges Greenough was driving. Starks suffered a broken hip and several fractured ribs and Roy was bruised badly.

Greenough was captured on the Virginia side of the Key Bridge just outside Washington, D. C., by Vernon Wilt and A. D. Langley, of the Arlington County police, after a lookout had been broadcast by the Police Department in the Capital.

Greenough was a football and soccer star at Amherst College. His mother has lived in seclusion on her large estate near Orange since the death of her second husband, Henry Waldo Greenough, former Mayor of Providence, R. I.

Greenough returned to his home today, at liberty under $5,000 bail.

Wagner Pleads For Approval Of Housing Bill

Says Speedy Passage Will Put 1,000,000 to Work in Building Field.

By Russell Smith.

Asserting that the United States must solve its unemployment problem "if we desire to preserve our economic system, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, last night pleaded for enactment, at this session of Congress, of his housing bill.

Blocked, apparently, by inability of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Congressional leaders to reach an agreement on financing of the measure, the housing bill has been stagnant for weeks since its introduction. The delay has led to numerous protests, most recent of these being that of the American Federation of Labor housing committee, joined by other federation units.

Adding to his argument that 1,000,000 workers would be re-employed directly in the building trades if his bill becomes a law, Wagner turned to President Roosevelt's assertion that one-third of the American population is "ill-clothed, ill-fed and ill-housed."

Hits at Evils of Slums.

"America is too proud and too wealthy a country," he went on, * * * to permit unnecessary sickness and suffering to be generated by the evils of the slums.

"We believe that society has the same responsibility toward the child crippled by a barren environment that it has toward a child crippled by a traffic accident.

"More than that, we do not want the child to be crippled at all. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Instead of building more hospitals and more prisons and more reformatories, we propose to remedy the conditions which make these institutions so largely necessary. America has the intelligence, the imagination and the social conscience to create the material environment for an inspiring home life.

"The housing bill, when enacted, will directly provide better homes for one million people within the next four years. To this must be added the stimulation of private home building generally, and the fact that the program will be expanded when its merits have been proved. Surely, here is a proposition worthy of support by all who desire to fulfill our Nation's promise of comfort and security for the masses of its citizens. Surely, here is a program which combines business wisdom with social vision. Surely, here is a program which in all good faith must be enacted at the present session of Congress."

Previously, the Senator said the rate of increase in technological unemployment was accelerated during the depression and since 1929 "every fifth man has been replaced by a machine." To ameliorate this situation, he said, his housing bill would give employment directly to almost 1,000,000.

Cites Rental Boosts.

Among the evils arising from a housing shortage he stressed reduced standards of living and rising rentals, and said that "during the past four months alone average rentals have jumped more than 11 per cent." Proceeding to an analysis of the bill, he defended the provision for Federal subsidies to keep rents down as follows:

"This Federal annual contribution has many merits. It provides a constant check against extravagance and waste in the operation of projects. It enables the Federal Government to stop its contribution at any time, if the full benefit does not accrue to those who need low rentals, or if people with higher incomes are allowed into the project. In addition, those contributions in an annual form are on a genuine "pay as you go" basis. The subsidies paid each year will produce lower rentals in that year. On the other hand, the so-called capital grant requires huge subsidies in the first year to pay rent reductions in 30 or 40 years to come."

Dog's Learning Costs His, Policeman's Life

New York, April 5 (AP).—Policeman Patrick Conroy and his faithful German shepherd dog, Paddy, were dead today because Paddy had learned a trick too well. Conroy had trained Paddy to attack anyone drawing a gun.

Returning home from duty early yesterday, Conroy removed his pistol from its holster preparatory to putting it away in a buffet drawer. Paddy, upon seeing the weapon, leaped upon his master just as he had been trained to do. The pistol went off, fatally wounding Conroy.

Conroy's fellow officers today shot and killed Paddy, fearing that the trick he had learned might make him a dangerous pet.

Court Plan Foes Combine On Constitutional Change

Wheeler Backs O'Mahoney Proposal for Amendment; Burke Also Is Reported as Favorable to Program.

"veto power" on legislation. He noted that in a court of nine members a minority of four could block court action that declared laws unconstitutional.

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, opposition chief, expressed himself as sympathetic toward the Wheeler-O'Mahoney amendment, and held that not only a majority of the opposition would agree to such an amendment, but that a majority of the committee would favor it.

Wheeler, meanwhile, lavished sarcasm on the statement recently attributed to Postmaster General Farley to the effect that the party would "call the roll of Congress" on the court issue. Said Wheeler with biting emphasis:

"I am extending my thanks to Mr. Farley for letting the Senate talk about this mater, and am sure the House will appreciate his letting them 'talk until they're tired.'

"I hope Mr. Farley will give the clerks of the House and Senate permission to call the roll, but when he does, I am sure he will find that he will not have enough votes to pass the bill.

"Mr. Hitler occasionally lets the Reichstag talk, and Mr. Stalin and Mr. Mussolini tell their chambers when they may speak.

"Is this what they mean when they speak of modern democracy?"

At the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings during the day, Dean Frank H. Sommer, of the New York University law school, and Oswald Garrison Villard, editor emeritus of The Nation, liberal weekly magazine, appeared to testify against the President's judiciary program.

Villard, lifelong liberal, with an achievement-studded record of reforms, also struck at the Postmaster General's statement as "the most direct attack on the legislative branch by the executive branch that I have heard in my lifetime."

Stipulating his agreement with the President's objectives, "for they were mine long before he found tongue to speak of them," Villard appeared to protest that "the remedy of appointing substitute judges for the men on the bench 70 years or over is a mere temporary method of achieving the purposes that we liberals have had in mind for so long, namely, the clarification of the Constitution, in order that the country may progress toward the best and fairest social conditions to be achieved under the sun."

With the novelty of the judiciary hearings wearing off, only a minority of the committee and a handful of spectators attended the morning session, while shortly after Villard began in the afternoon, a Senate vote on the Guffey bill forced all but Senator Burke and Chairman Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, to withdraw, and the spectators dwindled to a score in the great marble room.

Ashurst took sharp exception to a remark of Villard's, when the latter said of the proposal that the President work to achieve his ends through a constitutional amendment, that "if such an amendment were proposed, especially if the President threw himself behind it and campaigned for it, and gave it even less than the half-hearted support he has given to the child labor amendment, it would go through triumphantly."

Ashurst said: "This is the first time that the President has been charged here with being half-hearted. The burden of the song has been that he has been too whole-hearted, too zealous.

"I do not see any justification of the claim that he has been half-hearted in the advocacy of the child labor amendment."

Villard held that in the event the President's plan was successfully enacted, the resulting appointees to the bench would ever after be known as "the king's men." He reminded the committee that he had been a liberal fighter for 40 years, and that he had personally introduced Franklin Roosevelt to an audience in New York in 1910 as "the young man who had the most brilliant political future before him of any young man of that period."

He remarked that in his belief "some day * * * before too long, we are going to consider a constitutional convention for the remaking of the entire Constitution * * * in order to adapt the fundamental law to the needs of 150,000,000 or 175,000,000 people then living under conditions, economic, financial, social and governmental, which will bear extremely little relation to the conditions of 1789."

Sommer, slim, sandy-haired law school dean, made a deep impression, apparently, on the committee by his evident sincerity and by the quiet earnestness of his plea that the actual constitutionality of the President's plan should not deter the legislators from opposing it as a violation of the spirit of the Constitution.

Today's committee witnesses will be Charles C. Burlingham and James Truslow Adams, the historian.

bench during the Supreme Court controversy, paused in his reading of the written opinion long enough to thrust at the critics of his economic views:

"Our ideas are being influenced by social predilections. But they are so strong within us we cannot consider this a petty offense."

The justice, it was understood, was referring to a statement by Justice Stone in the New York minimum wage case last year. Stone had held that the majority opinion in this case was dictated by "personal economic predilections," a phrase that has since been picked up by President Roosevelt and proponents of enlarging the court by six new members when present justices do not retire upon reaching 70.

Justice Stone called attention to the sixth amendment of the Constitution guaranteeing to the accused the right of speedy and public trials by an importial jury, and to the seventh amendment preserving the right of jury trial in civil actions where the value in controversy exceeds $20.

He observed that the penalty inflicted by the police judge in the Clawans case is 15 times the minimum provided by the Constitution for trying civil suits without a jury.

"It seems permissable to inquire what will become of the other solemn declarations of the amendment," his opinion read. "Constitutional guarantees ought not to be subordinated to convenience, nor denied upon questionable precedents or uncertain reasoning. * * *

"This cause shows the grave danger to liberty when offenders must submit to the uncertain judgment of a single magistrate."

The decision in the police court case was the only opinion delivered in a courtroom crowded with spectators anxious to hear the court determine the fate of the Wagner labor relations act, as it was expected to do.

Five cases affecting the constitutionality of this major piece of New Deal reform are awaiting the court's decision, an action which is certain to have a far-reaching effect on the course of battle over President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan.

No opinion on the Wagner act can be delivered before next decision day, Monday, and, if not then, until April 26, due to a recess.

The majority opinion in the Clawans case was written by Justice Stone. While denying the defendant's contention that the District's jury law is unconstitutional, it did grant her a new trial.

"There must be a new trial," the court held, "because of the * * * restriction, by the trial judge, of cross examination" by the woman's attorney.

Literally hundreds of Police Court convictions hinged on the court's decision. Had the Supreme Court ruled with the Court of Appeals' holding that the law was unconstitutional, these would have been set aside and jury trials would have been required.

Counsel for the District in their brief had contended that 380 persons were charged with violations of the license law in 1935 and that jury trials in such cases "would seriously impede the effective administration of this and similar laws."

The proceedings involved a 1925 amendment to the District code prescribing trial before a judge for persons accused of violating an act of Congress for the District providing a maximum penalty of $300 or 90 days in jail.

"* * * We find it impossible to say that a 90-day penalty for a petty offense * * * does not conform to standards which prevailed when the Constitution was adopted, or was not then contemplated as appropriate, notwithstanding the constitutional guarantee of a jury trial," the majority declared.

Senator Norris Declares U. S. Won't Be Lured Into Next War

But Nebraskan Warns of Propaganda Peril on 20th Anniversary of Entrance Into World Conflict, Which He Opposed.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Norris, white-haired Nebraska Independent who voted 20 years ago against American entrance into the World War, predicted last night that this country would not become embroiled in "the next war."

His prophecy came in an interview on the eve of the twentieth anniversary of the United States declaration of war against Germany.

"I don't think they'll get us in another war," he said. "The Nation's memory of that conflict is still too fresh.

"Of course, they might stir up the Nation with propaganda for war—as they did 20 years ago—but I don't believe they will, or that they would be successful."

Norris said that if he had it all to do over again he would vote "no." and added:

"Entering the World War was the greatest mistake we ever made as a Nation. We got nothing from it. We didn't do anyone or any nation any good. And we and our children are still suffering from it."

While he expressed belief the odds are heavily against the United States engaging in another conflict, he urged precautionary legislation to prevent embroilment in the wars of other nations.

"To insure us against eventualities," Norris said, "we should have even more stringent legislation than the neutrality bills now before Congress. By going further than we have we might lose money and trade, but I prefer losing money than losing human life.

"If we could take the profit out of war we'd almost have a world of peace. The United States should prohibit the loaning of money to other nations for war, and shipping munitions of war. That's how we got into the World War.

"And we should provide for the Government to make all munitions of war and build all ships, with the idea of taking private profit out of war.

"Then wars might end, and God knows they never do good for any one."

Singer Claims Husband Called Her 'Hoot Owl'

Miami, April 5 (AP).—Xenia Andre Cella, New York coloratura soprano, filed suit today for divorce from Theodore Cella, harpist, composer and orchestra conductor, charging mental cruelty.

Mme. Cella charged her husband described her voice as "a screech not fit for human ears," and styled her "a Russian hoot owl."

Duce Threatens To Bolt Spanish Neutrality Bloc

'Flagrant Violations' of Accord by France Are Charged.

lishing accounts of purported French, Russian and Mexican intervention on behalf of the Spanish Loyalists.

United States Planes Mentioned.

The Giornale D'Italia, under the heading, "France's Flagrant Violations," said that from March 1 to 20 the Spanish Reds received 10 Russian Gorki airplanes, 4 Dutch Cookhoven fighters, 50 French and 35 Czechoslovakian planes.

The newspaper also charged that 10,000 revolvers destined for the Loyalists arrived at Marseille, France, on March 3, and that the Valencia government recently ordered 50,000 rifles and several light machine guns from Liege, Belgium.

Loyalist agents at Prague were described as negotiating for the purchase of 20,000 guns, and 50,000 rounds of ammunition. The newspaper also charged that several airplanes are awaiting shipment to Spain from Le Havre, France, and a loyalist representative is negotiating for purchase of 80 more.

It also was alleged that 21 American Bellanca bombing planes are awaiting shipment from Vera Cruz, Mexico.

Paris Visions "Retreat."

Paris, April 5 (AP).—Italian charges of French violation of the "hands off Spain" agreement were described in official circles tonight as part of an attempt by Premier Mussolini to "retreat with honor."

Officials, while maintaining it would be "useless to deny such allegations," expressed belief Italy sought to explain Spanish government victories by attributing them to help from France. They pointed out no war materials could be shipped from France without permission of the foreign office and ministry of the interior.

Await Official Charges.

London, April 5 (AP).—Officials tonight were inclined to believe Italian charges of French infractions of the Spanish neutrality accord would have to come from official sources rather than newspapers before they could be taken seriously.

"The nonintervention committee stands ready to receive information about any infraction of the agreement," said an informed source. "The committee would be glad to consider such charges provided they came from the Italian government itself and provided the Italian government is convinced they are true."

Rebels Renew Attacks.

Madrid, April 5 (AP).—Insurgents sought to resume the offensive today in two sharp attacks on the northern Guadalajara front where they have suffered successive defeats the last few weeks.

Both attacks were repulsed.

Although the Madrid defense chiefs were confident the attacks were not the signal of a much-heralded second insurgent campaign in Guadalajara, a new order for sharp vigilance was issued.

The southern government army continued its advance in Cordoba province and captured the village of La Granjuela. This opened a direct path for attack on the valuable Penarroya coal mines. A strong army was advancing toward Burgos and Basques of the Bilboa area fought bitterly against Gen. Emilio Mola's insurgents.

Within the capital, police seized a store of bombs and arms in one of the principal markets and asserted they had broken up a plot to convert the market and a nearby hotel into an insurgent fortress.

Physician Is Held In Girl's Death

Dr. James William Hart, 62-year-old physician, was arrested yesterday after the death of a 22-year-old unwed expectant mother.

Dr. Hart was arrested in his home at 2156 F street northwest, by Detective Sergts. Clyde N. Strange and Aubrey Tolson. He was placed under a technical charge and released under $2,000 bond for a coroner's inquest tomorrow.

Police said Marie McLean, 22, 1408 Forty-fourth street northeast, died in Sibley Hospital last Thursday allegedly from the effects of an illegal operation. She had been taken to Sibley several days before her death.

Dr. Hart said he treated the young lady for the grippe, but that he knew nothing of any criminal operation.

Dr. Hart was at liberty on bond in connection with two similar cases at the time of his arrest yesterday. Charges preferred eight times previously never have gone to trial.

Mother Reports Girl, 11, Missing From Her Home

Eleven-year-old Margaret Thatcher, blonde and blue-eyed, last night was missing from her home, 1532 Thirty-fourth street northwest.

Her mother, Mrs. Edith Thatcher, reported to police Margaret had gone to Jackson School, Avon place and R street northwest, yesterday, and did not return.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

De La Rocque Defies France To Ban Party

Croix de Feu Leader and 5 Aides Indicted on 'Fascist' Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 5.—Col. Francois De la Rocque, in an address to the nation tonight, defied Premier Leon Blum to break up his French Social Party, which the government charges is the Nationalist Croix de Feu under a new name.

De la Rocque was indicted today with five of his aides on a charge of re-creating the Croix de Feu, declared illegal by government decree.

Charging that Blum's was a "dictatorial government," De la Rocque asserted tonight his party, with a membership of more than 2,000,000, "cannot be destroyed nor suppressed."

Called a Fascist chief by the People's Front government, the colonel warned "we will continue to work no matter what happens."

He assailed the General Confederation of Labor, which last month called a half-day general strike in the Paris area in protest against Fascism, as responsible for his indictment.

The union leaders, De la Rocque said, forced Blum to permit such action.

Still campaigning in the provinces for his new party, he spoke twice at small towns near Bourges on the eve of the indictment. Headquarters of the party received the announcement quietly.

The colonel engaged a legal staff to fight the case in the courts. Those indicted with him were Deputy Jean Ybarnegaray, leader of the De la Rocque faction in the Chamber of Deputies, and four lesser party chieftains.

The charges allege specifically that De la Rocque used the "Social" Party to continue the league. He was also charged with fostering disorders by ordering his followers to stage a counterdemonstration last October 4 to a Communist mass meeting in the Parc des Princes.

Many persons were injured when the meeting ended in rioting, halted only when police and mobile guards were sent into action.

Conviction on charges of re-creating the league would carry possible penalties of 15 days to 2 years imprisonment and a fine of from 16 francs (72 cents) to 5,000 francs ($225). The penalty for conviction of provoking disorders is one to three months in prison.

Peace by Trade Is Set by Hull As World Goal

Secretary Receives Wilson Award, Urges End of Tariff Barriers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull appealed tonight, as he accepted the award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation on the twentieth anniversary of this Nation's entry into the World War, for "a determined and concerted effort to rebuild international political and commercial relationships."

"Animosities and resentment in the sphere of commercial and financial relations must bear an important share of responsibility for the depth of economic distress into which some nations have been plunged," he said, as he urged extension of the Government's present policy of substituting trade agreements for trade barriers.

From London, where an international sugar conference opened today, came word of a posible concerted world effort to combat barriers to trade.

Belgium Begins Survey.

Acting at the instigation of France and Britain, Belgium started a survey of European economic conditions with a view to exploring how it may prove possible to reduce international trade barriers in a manner Secretary Hull urged here.

[A man who insisted he be permitted to speak as a "representative of the federal governments of all nations" was ejected from the ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel at the conclusion of Hull's speech, according to the United Press. The man later identified himself as Herbert Loewenthal, of Great Neck, Long Island. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor, tussled with Loewenthal when he sought to get onto the speakers' dias. The latter tried to make himself heard by shouting out the first words of a speech—"Ladies and gentlemen . . ." That was as far as he got, because he was hustled from the banquet hall. When questioned, he gave his name and address and said Argentina, Cuba and many other nations had asked him to convey the official gratitude of the "Council of All Nations" to the Secretary of State for his efforts toward peace. He said the Department of State in Washington knew about him and his mission.—Editor's note.]

"Out of economic distress springs temptation to seek a greater measure of self-sufficiency by force of arms," the Secretary told the Wilson Foundation.

"We have witnessed the spectacle of some nations, already in the throes of economic poverty, straining their meager resources for the creation of unprecedented armaments. The construction of such armaments gives the impression of intensive economic activity. But that activity has the unhealthy flush of fever. It destroys rather than builds. It sows the seeds of disaster, either in the form of a military explosion or an economic collapse."

"There is only one way to avert this impending doom. It is for the nations which today bend their major efforts toward preparation for war to join with those other nations that are intent on a policy of peace in a determined and concerted effort to rebuild international and political and economic relationships * * *.

"No outcome of an armed conflict can possibly bring the nations concerned greater benefits than they can derive from a peaceful and fruitful exchange of goods and services, developing in a liberal spirit upon a basis of fair dealing and mutual regard for each other's needs and rights.

"It was this type of economic peace that Woodrow Wilson urged upon the world. The acceptance by the nations of the basic ideas which underlie it is even more desperately needed today when the dark clouds of a possible new war or of another economic catastrophe gather ominously on the horizon."

U. S. Gave Signs.

Secretary Hull said the world's economic outlook brightened after the economic conference of 1927 at Geneva, but added that, "immediately following our national election of 1928 the dominant political and economic forces in this country embarked upon a drastic upward revision of our tariff rates and an extension of other trade restrictions."

"This process continued through the year 1929 and the early part of 1930. It served as a signal which unleashed the forces of extreme protectionism all over the world."

Referring to the growth of tariff barriers as "the war after the war," the Secretary asserted that "personally I am convinced that it was the most important single cause of the great depression."

Reserve Board Bond Plan Aids Market Prices

since 1920, with the exception of $1.38⅞ in 1928.

May soy beans also jumped 4 cents yesterday, to $1.79, a new high record.

Wheat and oats futures were a little higher, cotton futures gained from 10 cents to 55 cents a bale, copper futures were up, but export and scrap copper, lead and zinc futures and rubber were all down.

Fair bidding and practically no offerings marked the opening of the Government bond market. Some issues went up more than $10 on a face value of $1,000. As higher prices were reached, however, and the yield on investment thereby cut, bids fell off and there were some offerings, sending prices slightly downward.

The failure of income tax payments to reach estimates was seen by some as probably responsible for the Treasury's need to borrow new money. President Roosevelt last Friday said he would send his relief budget estimate to Congress about April 14, and with it his new estimates on receipts and expenditures for the coming fiscal year.

At the press conference at which he said new borrowing will be necessary, Secretary Morgenthau praised the Federal Reserve Board's decision to buy Government bonds in the open market as "a constructive move in the right direction."

Taylor, chairman of U. S. Steel, told stockholders at the annual meeting in New York his greatest desire is that "we shall in some way in the not very distant future be able to reward you stockholders in a way which your patience justifies."

Philip Merivale says:

"My throat's grateful for Luckies —a light smoke"

"In one of the first important parts I did in America, the play called for a long and very trying individual performance. In every scene for five full acts I was on stage talking almost continuously. The strain made it imperative that I safeguard my throat and voice. After trying different brands of cigarettes, I came across Luckies. They stood the test and for many years now I've enjoyed them. I like the taste of Luckies and my throat is grateful for a light smoke."

Philip Merivale

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Merivale verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

Norment Estate Goes to Widow, Three Children

Niece, Others to Receive Shares of $1,800,000 Bequeathed.

Mrs. Lizzie S. Norment, widow of Clarence F. Norment, was named principal beneficiary of his $1,800,000 estate, it was learned in District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of his will was filed.

Norment left personal property, including cash, stocks, bonds, and other securities, valued at $1,520,600 and real estate with an assessed valuation of $299,400.

Mrs. Norment is to have the income from a $300,000 trust fund, and each of the three children, Ethel N. Alden, 1100 Michigan avenue northeast; Judith E. Norment Fuller, of the Chevy Chase Club, and Clarence F. Norment, jr., of Wardman Park, are to receive the income from $100,000 trust funds. Also the widow is to have $50,000 in cash.

Others who shared in the estate were Ida M. Walters, a niece, $10,000; George L. Starley, a friend, $10,000, and $1,000 each to the Society of Oldest Inhabitants and the Society of the Natives of the District of Columbia. In another provision Norment asked that a special trust fund of $150,000 be set up with the proviso that it be held for 15 years and then divided among grandchildren.

Nine Die, Many Hurt.

Atlanta, April 5 (AP).—Vicious spring storms hit the South today in a less destructive version of the April tornadoes which killed more than 450 persons just one year ago.

From Tennessee to Texas damaging wind and rains left their mark. At least nine deaths and a score or more injuries were chalked up against the weather along with toppled buildings, uprooted trees and disrupted power and communications facilities.

A Sunday gale capsized two boats and drowned six persons at Madina Lake, near San Antonio, Tex.

Alabama bore the brunt of today's storms.

A colored girl was killed in the wind-smashed homes in the colored section of Phenix City in East Central Alabama and two other colored persons died in a tornado which lashed Pike County further south in the same State.

More than 24 persons were hurt in the Alabama storms, six of them in the vicinity of the capital, Montgomery.

be sure of yourself with a clear SKIN from WITHIN

A SKIN that glows naturally bespeaks radiant health beneath ... it is alive ... stays fresh! So, be good to your skin from within and it will be good to you.

The reason for this is quite simple ... skin tissues must have an abundance of red-blood-cells to aid in making the skin glow ... to bring color to your cheeks ... to build resistance to germ attacks.

It is so easy for these precious red-blood-cells to lose their vitality. Worry, overwork and undue strain take their toll. Sickness literally burns them up. Improper diet retards the development of new cells. Even a common cold kills them in great numbers.

Science, through S.S.S. Tonic, brings to you the means to regain this blood strength within a short space of time ... the action of S.S.S. is cumulative and lasting.

Moreover, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite. Foods taste better ... natural digestive juices are stimulated and finally the very food you eat is of more value. A very important step back to health.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells ... to restore lost weight ... to regain energy ... to strengthen nerves ... and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel ... and have your friends compliment you on the way you look.

S.S.S Tonic is especially designed to build sturdy health by restoring deficient red-blood-cells and it is time-tried and scientifically proven.

At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The large size at a saving in price. There is no substitute for this time tested remedy. No ethical druggist will suggest something "just as good."

Germany Protests South African Ban

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, April 5 (AP).—Germany formally protested to the Union of South Africa today against a ban outlawing Nazi political units in Southwest Africa, the former Reich colony, governed by the British dominion under a League of Nations mandate.

A note of protest, handed to Prime Minister J. B. M. Mertzog by German Minister Wiehl, said the ban must be regarded as "a combative measure against Germans in Southwest Africa," asserting it was based on "unproved allegations."

Fire Sweeps Loyalist Ship.

Bayonne, France, April 5 (AP).—A mysterious fire today damaged a Spanish government freighter docked here pending a trip to government territory in Spain. Removal of large quantities of gasoline from the ship prevented the blaze from spreading.

Philippine Police Battle Tribesmen

Manila, Philippine Islands, April 5 (AP).—Fierce Mohammedan tribesmen of the Island of Mindanao fought off massed attacks of Philippine constabulary from behind log forts today.

Dispatches from Dansalan, on mountainous and heavily wooded Mindanao, said well-armed Moro tribesmen were putting up stiff resistance to 150 constabulary men led by 15 officers storming the Moro strongholds in the Binidayan district.

6 Children Lose Lives As Fire Destroys Home

Port Allegany, Pa., April 5 (AP).—Six children were burned to death today in a fire that swept the frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sweezy, one and a half miles from Port Allegany.

What Are The Facts?

If the mass meeting held Sunday brings the local controversy on relief to a climax it will have served a very useful purpose. Apparently there is a wide difference of opinion as to the actual need for an emergency relief appropriation. In that event full discussion and the presentation of concrete facts should be encouraged on both sides.

As early as last October the Board of Public Welfare requested an additional appropriation of $835,000 for relief. Of this amount $630,000 would have been spent to care for the 3,000 men and women who are said to have neither jobs nor prospects of public aid. The Commissioners are known to have considered this request without taking action. An informal meeting between the City Fathers and the Budget Bureau left the situation unchanged.

It is not to be supposed that the Commissioners would thus remain inactive if they were convinced that an acute need for more relief funds exists. Mindful of the District's substantial deficit, they apparently have concluded that economy is more in the public interest than additional relief outlays.

A very different viewpoint was persuasively presented at the mass meeting on Sunday. Several leading citizens expressed indignation over the lack of funds for families who happen to be caught in the "twilight zone" between WPA workers, on the one hand, and unemployables cared for by the Board of Public Welfare, on the other. Coupled with the attitude of the Commissioners, that leaves the public in a great deal of confusion. Is there any shocking neglect of the unemployed in Washington? Has the situation become a disgrace to the city? What are the facts?

The mass meeting adopted a resolution appealing to Congress. If it can be shown that 3,000 families in Washington are on the verge of hunger and distress this petition will have the wholehearted support of the community. But a thorough investigation is obviously desirable. The sponsors of this movement could be most helpful if they would list the names and addresses of necessitous families.

Only through a factual survey of this sort can the extent of the need for more relief be definitely established. And if it can thus be shown that the Commissioners' apparent estimate of the situation is wrong, they will undoubtedly take the lead in demanding additional funds.

A Permanent CCC.

In requesting Congress to give a permanent status to the Civilian Conservation Corps President Roosevelt did not need to search for supporting arguments. He simply presented the record of the camps during their four years of fruitful activity. That story suggests that no New Deal agency has rendered more genuine service per dollar spent than the CCC.

Under the direction of Robert Fechner the CCC has served not one but many constructive purposes. Over a period of four years it has given healthful employment to 2,000,000 young men. Through them it has supplied $360,000,000 of well-earned wages to families in unquestionable need. It has greatly advanced the work of protecting and developing the Nation's forests and other natural resources. Many new recreational areas have been made available and numerous local problems, such as mosquito control, have been solved. Less tangible, but even more important, is its contribution to the rehabilitation of youths caught in the downward spiral of idleness, discouragement and want.

As recovery progresses there is less pressure upon the CCC as an emergency institution. But its achievements clearly indicate that it would have an important role as a permanent agency. Unemployment, especially among young men who have not had an opportunity to train themselves in any trade, will at best be very difficult to liquidate. And conservation of both natural resources and human character are problems that are always with us.

A permanent CCC would be able to carry on all the best traditions of the present organization with certain added advantages. The President has in mind an enrollment of not more than 315,000, so that costs will not become excessive and effective vocational training can be given where it is most needed. The latter activity would undoubtedly be a still more important objective of the permanent organization.

Various other advantages of permanency also are apparent. The CCC would be able to develop its present constructive co-operation with the United States Employment Service. This would assist development of the training function in occupations where the need for new workers is likely to be greatest. Likewise more definite arrangements could be made for the placement of CCC "graduates" whenever openings are available in private industry.

It may be found desirable, also, to establish a closer liaison between the CCC and the schools. The present attention to continuation of education for citizenship suggests that no opportunity of this sort will be overlooked if Congress decides that this two-fold conservation work shall be indefinitely continued.

Two World Conferences.

By an interesting coincidence the twentieth anniversary of America's entry into the World War today finds this country taking a leading role in two great international conferences.

Here in Washington we are playing hosts to the 23 nations represented at the World Textile Conference, opened last week with a message from President Roosevelt in which he emphasized the value of "free and frank discussion of the problems of the industry in a spirit of good will." Yesterday, in London, delegates of 22 nations gathered for the convening of the International Sugar Conference, at which Norman H. Davis, ambassador-at-large, is the American spokesman.

At a time when there is much cynicism over the results of American participation in the war these two conferences are particularly interesting. Both of them are held as a part of the normal program of the League of Nations, the technical work of which is much less disrupted by political setbacks than many assume to be the case. Without the Geneva technique of systematic international collaboration, developed largely as a result of our wartime participation, it is unlikely that either of these great discussion groups would be in session today.

The textile conference in Washington is essentially an examination, from a world viewpoint, of a great industry seriously disorganized and demoralized by post-war conditions. The conference has been called here, at the request of the United States Government, by the International Labor Organization, an autonomous arm of the League of Nations of which this counry is now an active member.

The sugar conference in London is equally a League conference, invitations to it having been extended by the World Economic Conference, called by the Council of the League to meet in London four years ago. The function of the present London gathering is also to examine the problems of an industry which was greatly upset by the general dislocation of the war. Both the current undertakings may properly be called stabilization conferences, since in both cases the major objective is attainment of a better balance between supply and demand, clearly in the interests of both producing and consuming nations.

The active role which the United States is playing in both meetings is an interesting commentary on the reality of that fancied American isolation which some would like to recapture on this anniversary of our entry into the World War.

Whether the subject in question be sugar, or textiles, or any of numerous other commodities which might be named, it is all too clear that present economic dislocation, adversely affecting us, sprang from the war itself—not from the fact that we were the belligerent in its later stages. Our entry did not pronouncedly accentuate the post-war problems which were inherent in the nature of that struggle. But the action of 20 years ago has made it easier for us to co-operate constructively in combatting the universal heritage of disorder.

Moreover the two current conferences, while rigidly confined to the technical problems of the two industries in their official direction and agenda, are obviously of broader general importance than the difficulties of either the textile or sugar industries.

The chaos, the fear, the pessimism abroad in the world today result primarily from the economic breakdown which the war engendered. Present political tensions have their root cause in economic difficulties. If the latter can be cleared away, and the task at best will be slow and laborious, the likelihood of another war—a suicidal war of utter desperation—will automatically diminish.

The subject of world peace will not be stressed, may not even be mentioned, either at the textile or the sugar conference. But the delegates to these two meetings will nevertheless be working for that end far more constructively than many a professional pacifist.

Indeed it is probable that these two technical conferences, and others like them, can be regarded as tests of the practicability of the disarmament conference which all would like to see reconvened, but which all know would fail dismally if it were attempted now.

The effort to achieve disarmament when there was widespread economic dislocation collapsed because it was an effort to fit a keystone into an arch without supports. Now there is intelligent concentration on the slow but rational procedure of attacking the most serious economic problems first. If they are handled successfully—and without undue delay—disarmament will for the first time since 1919 become a practical objective.

It is not without significance, also, that these two great conferences are being held away from the headquarters of the League of Nations. On the one hand it is helpful for people everywhere to see the League technique, so much criticized, so little understood, in actual operation.

On the other hand it is healthy to have some of these conferences undertaken in surroundings more robust than the rather rarefied and academic tranquillity of Geneva, where agreements readily achieved "in principle" have shown a marked tendency to remain unobserved in practice.

The Way To Insure Confidence.

No exception will be taken to the announcement of the Federal Reserve Board that it is prepared under certain conditions to buy Federal Securities for the account of Reserve Banks. But whether, from the long-range point of view, the intended action will serve a constructive purpose depends on how it is carried out. Even more will it depend on the fiscal policies pursued by the Administration.

What made such action necessary was, in part, the downward movement in Government bonds which set in on March 12. Although this decline has not been of major proportions, it was nonetheless having a depressing psychological effect on the market and was tending to make Government fiscal operations difficult. The Secretary of the Treasury's recent announcement, and now the Federal Reserve Board's statement, should help to restore confidence.

But any Government pegging of bond prices, like Government pegging of commodity prices, would if attempted serve only a temporary purpose and might even prove disastrous. One need but recall the ultimate folly of President Hoover's Farm Board efforts to keep the price of cotton at 17 cents, and its unhappy sequel, to understand the necessity of avoiding such a course. Fortunately Mr. Morgenthau has declared that the Treasury has no intention to peg Government bonds.

The essential need right now is to remove existing fears in the minds of holders of bonds, including Federal issues, concerning the ultimate consequences of the Government's policy of spending far beyond its receipts. Buying of Government securities by the Federal Reserve could hardly keep pace with increased Government borrowing. What is needed is prompt, courageous action in grappling with the problem of an ever-growing deficit.

Relic Of A Simpler Day.

Those who heard the English Singers on their repeated visits to the United States will recall their fascinating rendition of the forgotten street cries of "Old London."

In England of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries life was simpler than it is now. There was then no drowning out of the voices of the venders crying their wares in rhythms as varied as their habiliments. Nor had the deep-seated instinct for song been stifled by increasing sophistication.

In certain parts of the world street venders are still at it, their cries following age-old patterns, modified by individual variations. No visitor to the Orient but has been delighted by the singing of coolies to ease the monotony of their back-breaking labors. It is these songs, together with the street cries still heard in such fascinating profusion in Shanghai and other Chinese cities, that, some students of folk songs believe, inspired the sea chanties of the clipper ship days.

And in parts of the Old South song continues to be an unformalized human expression, as instinctive as the twitter of birds. Hawkers selling their wares, prisoners in chain gangs, Negroes at work and play—they all take to song.

It is fortunate, therefore, that two students of American folklore—Walter G. Garwick, of Rye, N. Y., and George Hibbit, of Columbia University—recently made an odyssey into the deep South to collect these stray songs. Equipped with sound-recording devices, their 20,000-mile tour through five States netted them a rich assortment of street cries as well as game songs, conjure tales, spirituals, prayers, singing sermons and work songs.

Simple and primitive as all of these are, some attain to dignity and beauty worthy of permanent preservation. Their disappearance in the more clamorous cities of the North is a distinct misfortune, for with them has gone much of the charm of a simpler and, it may be, happier day.

British Broadcasting.

From the Dallas Morning News.

Opponents of Government operation of broadcasting stations in this country frequently argue that the party in power would use the radio for political purposes, as is done in Germany, and would allow minorities no voice on the air. Perhaps this is a healthy fear, but in England the government-owned British Broadcasting Corporation has gained a remarkable attitude for fairness.

Philip Wagner, London correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, finds the British broadcasts "remarkably free of political or economic bias. The news broadcasts are succinct and entirely free of gratuitous opinion. They strike an American as being far more objective than news reporting as it is done in most of the British newspapers."

Like our broadcasting companies, the B. B. C. does, of course, have the usual rules against libel and obscenity. It censors strictly any slurs against national or racial groups and even barred a Welshman from saying that "a Welsh choir's preliminary cough is often the most musical part of its performance." It imposes some censorship to please Mrs, Grundy, but this goes no further than ours unless a King's lady friend is concerned.

Who Preserved The Union?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to reply to the letters in your columns by Mr. McCall and Mr. Loudun in which, directly and by implication, the North is posed as a Union preserver and the South as a Union destroyer.

In Mr. Roosevelt's Gettysburg address, after telling us of the patriotic work done by George Washington, in which the rights of every State and every section were equally safeguarded, he adds: "If our fathers and grandfathers had truly heeded the words of Washington, there would have been no family quarrel, no brothers' war, no battle of Gettysburg and no Appomattox." In this "family quarrel," harking back to the facts, which side is entitled to the honor of being called "Union preservers?"

First—What is the verdict of informed Northern writers on this subject:

Gamaliel Bradford: "The attempt of the North to maintain the Union was nothing but forcible conquest, and the surrender at Appomattox marked the most tremendous step, in the progression that had gone on from the beginning, to undermine the State governments and increase the power of the Federal."

Dr. A. W. Littlefield of Boston: "The South tried to divide the country; Lincoln saved it; that is the erroneous opinion in these parts still. The South, though defeated, really saved to America and the world all that was best in American nationality—the constitution of the Confederacy furnishes ample proof of that. . . . The historic fact is that the Northeastern States have nearly destroyed not only the Constitution, but also the fundamental American ideal of local self-government and a Federal Union, built upon State sovereignty."

Second, the verdict of informed Southerners:

Dr. Abernethy of the University of Virginia: "In the sectional crisis between the Northern and Southern groups of States, it is marvelous that the North can think that it alone was 'the Union.' The South was as much 'the Union' as the North with an equal right to be called the United States."

Dr. Landon C. Bell, Columbus, Ohio: "The claim that the Lincoln administration made war on the South to preserve 'the Union' is an unqualified untruth! The Union was the creature of the Constitution. The South accepted the Constitution, but the North did not. The Lincoln administration went into power with, and could not have gone into power without the support of those who repudiated the Constitution. . . . The Northern States made war upon the Southern States, not to preserve 'the Union,' for that would have involved a respect for the Constitution, but to keep the Southern States by brute force under the same government with the Northern States. . . . But a war in which the Constitution was violated and a revolutionized government created and forced upon the South, can by no strength of the imagination be truthfully called a war to preserve 'the Union.'

We Feel Bad.

The Anti-Lynching Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Various attempts have been made to pass Federal legislation to abolish lynching. The principle underlying the proposed legislation is corporate responsibility. In brief, it seeks to fine the county or State in which a lynching occurs.

In the Orient, where the family is the unit of society, it is possible to remedy such evils by holding a community responsible for the overt actions of individuals dwelling within it: however, among a people where the individual has been the unit of society from time immemorial any attempt to place the responsibility and punishment for the perpetration of a crime upon an innocent group instead of the person or persons actually concerned therein is bound to meet with failure.

It must be borne in mind that the Federal Government is one of limited powers. It was created by the will of the people. All legislation must conform to the nature of the people and type of government for which it is designed. In a government of limited powers such as ours one cannot make a law on anything that he pleases and expect the people to obey it. The reform must come from within the body politic through moral growth. Any attempt to solve the problem of lynching through the enactment of Federal legislation is highly impractical for the following reasons:

(1) No congressional representative from a State in which lynching occurs could vote for an anti-lynching bill and return home to live. It would be political suicide for him because he must conform to the will of his constituents. He is elected to represent them. If they are opposed to an anti-lynching bill there is very little that he can do about it.

(2) As our Constitution now stands it is positively an invasion of State rights. After all the United States is a republic of States.

(3) There is practically no chance for such legislation to be passed by a Democratic Congress.

(4) The President would probably veto it because a solid South is a necessary keystone in the political set-up of the Democratic Party.

(5) Even if such a law were passed it could not be enforced against the will of the people.

Every individual of sound mind will admit that lynching is a great moral wrong. It is unfortunate that the moral and the political have nothing in common. It seems to me that a remedy is to be found by going to that power which created the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the Government rather than through legislative action of a questionable character.

Strikes Vs. Property Rights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I usually let others do the shouting, but there has been so much yelling lately about "sit-down strikes," the Supreme Court, etc., that I finally had to put my oar in too, just to relieve the tension.

All kinds of laws have been nullified because they were supposed to infringe on these rights. One would think that the whole Constitution was built around this principle. It is only in the fifth amendment that property is mentioned at all, and then only casually in connection with the rights of a citizen accused of crime. I am sure that those who put that little clause in had no idea that it would become the most important part of the whole Constitution, and that it would ever be used as a club to keep 40,000,000 workers and their families from making a decent living.

There is nothing in the Constitution which defines what shall constitute private property. It does not state that a few people shall have the right to fence in all the land in the country and claim it as their property, with all the means of production and distribution, and that the majority of the people must beg them for a chance to make a living.

All the workers can think of is to strike, which causes losses all around, and if they ever get a little more money or shorter hours they soon have to pay higher prices for their necessities.

The Struggle For Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In letters to The Post, Ellen C. Burke insists that the Spanish Popular Front Government is a minority of the voting population. The figures she gives are incorrect as compared with those published in The Post and other papers a year ago. Even if they were correct, what does her conclusions prove? Nothing.

Several of our own administrations were elected by a minority of the total vote cast, one of them being that of Abraham Lincoln. This was due to more than two strong political parties in the field. The same thing can occur in any democratic nation. It is typical in Scandinavian nations because they do not discriminate against minority parties, as is done in most of our States today.

In the United States, the popular vote cast doesn't mean anything necessarily, because the electoral votes are what count. Though Mr. Landon polled some 17,000,000 votes he received only a handful of electoral votes, those of Maine and Vermont. The electoral college should have been abolished by constitutional amendment long ago, because it is undemocratic.

In Spain a similar situation exists. The Cortes (Parliament) elects the president and he thereupon forms the government from a coalition of parties which support the government. President Azana, Left Republican, was elected by a substantial majority of the Cortes and he appointed a Socialist (not a "red") premier, Mr. Caballero. In the previous election the Fascists had led, but the people repudiated them a year ago in a popular election. This angered both Fascists and the Monarchists, so they staged a violent revolution against the democratically-constituted government, with aid of foreigners, the Italians and Germans. Had they, the Fascists and Monarchists, co-operated in the election, they might have won. But they refused to do this. So they were not numerically strong enough in Parliament to form a government. Instead of "taking it on the chin" as political parties do in this country when they are in the minority, the Fascists and Monarchists became rebels and used violence to overthrow the duly-elected regime. In other words, they used communistic tactics, so we should look at them in the same light, if we are consistent and really believe in democracy.

Now, what is, the declared purpose of Gen. Franco and his rebels with their Moorish and foreign troops from Italy and Germany? It is to overthrow the Spanish government and its really progressive constitution, abolish all semblance of democracy and elections, and substitute a Fascist dictatorship. In other words, what they failed to do in the election they are now trying to do by revolution.

Communists in Spain are far less numerous than Miss Burke supposes. The danger to democracy is not from "Reds" but from the Fascists and Monarchists who have always been bitterly opposed to democratic principles of any kind. Mussolini and Hitler are both on record as ridiculing all democratic institutions everywhere. Despite their dictatorial rule, they have not solved a single problem of their people. This is evidenced by the fact that they now threaten with words and increased armaments every nation having democratic ideals.

We should face facts as they are, and not substitute fiction. We should read all sides, for that way lies truth. Democracy if real, must consider carefully and in an unprejudiced way, conditions as they are today. If the Communists support the Spanish democratic government, it merely shows that they have recognized their past mistakes in opposing democratic institutions, and they should be commended for this virtue, whatever mistakes they have made in the past.

Soviet Russia no longer threatens any other nation. She has changed her tactics entirely, both as to domestic and foreign policies. If the Fascists would also change their tactics to a support of democratic institutions, the writer believes they should also be commended. Thus far they have not admitted their mistakes, or changed their tactics. They still claim that "democracy is a stinking corpse." If so, who made it so? Mussolini and Hitler. But that does not make it a corpse outside of Fascist-Nazi nations!

Some Dope About Eph.

EPH and I were shingling the roof of a barn we were turning into an office building. While we worked I encouraged him to talk, and while he talked my mind sometimes wandered to other things.

A man who moves around a bit picks up a pronunciation here, an accent there, an inflection somewhere else, until at last his speech has a rhythm and a tune all its own. And one of the first things he learns in his travels is that "good English" is the language spoken in the place he happens to be and that all other manners of speech are dialects.

We all have our little peculiarities. I have had attention drawn to mine. The trouble I have with "r," for instance, save when it is initial, is very noticeable in Pennsylvania, but less noticeable in Maryland. I can, when I have a mind to, give it a Scotch burr, but ordinarily I ignore the little cuss, treating it with silent contempt. When I say "word" or "work" I find it easier to say "wo'd" or "wo'k" than "wor-r-rd" or "wor-r-rk," but a happy medium is something I am wholly unable to achieve.

But am I downhearted? No. High or low, we have our weaknesses. I notice that when Windsor spoke his memorable radio abdication speech he made "throne" rhyme with "brown"—or so it seemed to me.

Perhaps this is why I have sometimes thought it a little unfair to Eph to transcribe his remarks phonetically. At least he talks with as much sense as many a man with more education.

But, on the other hand, you can't possibly properly appreciate Eph unless you get his manner of speech. His contempt for "r" (ah!) is even greater than mine. Thus "through" becomes "th'oo." And he coins words, mostly to the one pattern. The garden after rain becomes "mushified" and the kitchen floor, as a result, is apt to become "messified." The trees are gummyfied and the woods sobbified (soggy). And things mixed up (like his English) would be (believe it or not) "all jibleyfied."

Once in a while I get jolted. When I heard Eph say, "Is you is or is you ain't?" I am no longer sure the locution is natural. It may be joyous mimicry, for pretty nearly everybody nowadays has a radio.

And literacy has its drawbacks. When Eph tells me a yarn that has all the earmarks of an old folk story I am never quite certain that he didn't get it from the syndicate columns of one of the county newspapers. I feel reasonably sure about this one, though, for Eph had very evidently told it many, many times.

"Mistah Wolf he one day go a-fishin'," said Eph, "an' Mistah Rabbit he thought he like to go fishin', too. So he do, but he don' have no luck. But Mistah Wolf he get a lot o' fish an' go off wiv it in his basket. So Mistah Rabbit he run ahaid an' lay hisse'f down in the middle of the road, an' bimeby Mistah Wolf he come along an' kick him out o' the way. Mistah Rabbit he wait till Mistah Wolf go roun' the cornah 'en he git up an' run ahaid an' lays down in the road again. An' along come Mistah Wolf an' kick him away f'm dah. En Mistah Rabbit he run ahaid agin an' Mistah Wolf he say to hisse'f, 'Well, heah's one rabbit, an' back away they's anothah, an' fu'ther back anothah. Guess I'll get me a mess o' rabbits as well as a mess o' fish.' So he put his basket down an' go back. En up jumps Mistah Rabbit an' run off wiv the basket o' fish. An' Mistah Wolf he don' fin' no rabbits an' he ain' got no fish nuther. So he 'flected awhile an' he figger Mistah Rabbit fool him. So he go to Mistah Rabbit's house an' knock at the do'. 'Who's da?' Mistah Rabbit yell. 'This yere's Mistah Wolf, an' I comes to inquire about some fish.' 'Ain' no fish of yours yere,' say Mistah Rabbit. An' then he say to his wife, 'Turn that one ovah, ole woman. H'm! Ain' he nice an' brown!' An' all Mistah Wolf got of his fish was the smell."

I'm always interested in the maxims Eph quotes—"What'll fatten you won' kill you" and the like; and usually apply the necessary grain of salt to the stories he recites as facts:

Does you know Evan Britten? When he was in the ahmy camp the officer say to him. "Saddle my hoss." So he do, but he put the saddle on backward. An' the officer he say, "What fo' you do it thataway?" An' Britten he say, "Ah didn' know which way you goin'."

Britten he got a girl an' he get Ab Pearson to write to her fo' him, cos he can't write hisse'f. "Jes' give her my love," he say to Pearson. So Pearson say, "That's down. What else?" Britten he scratch his haid an' say, "Give her my love again." So Pearson writ it down again, and say, "What else?" An' Britten he scratch his haid again an' he say, "Oh, well, give her my love some mo'. The Lawd he knows it won't hurt her."

Britten was mighty fond of whisky, an' when he had money he din' drink alone. One day he say to Pearson. "Ab," he say, "all day I buy drinks fo' Coke an' now Coke drinks wiv these other people an' I gits none. Tomorrow when I feels better I come here an' pick a fight wiv him." An' Ab say, Huh! You isn't big enough. He's bigger'n me even." An' Britten, he say, "Well, you be here. An' when I waver an' make a pass at him, you hit him!"

* * *

Did you ever happen to hear the word "waver" used in that sense before? I never did.

The Farmer.

BY WHAT STRANGE kink do you suppose it came about that city people the world over assumed a supercilious attitude toward the farmers who raise all the food we eat, except fish, and the clothes we wear in such stylish superiority? How came we to adopt as terms of disdain such words as hick, bumpkin, oaf, yokel, rube, rustic sod buster, hay shaker and plow jockey.

Don't tell me, I can guess. We got that way a long time ago when the farmer was a chattel on the land and the people in the cities were rulers, traders and manufacturers.

The rulers lived in luxury and style, and the urban people around them began to ape their fancy manners and pretty soon they got an idea that anybody who pushed a plow through the soil and spent the days bent over picking insects off the parsley was a sucker and none too bright to work so hard for so little. There was something in that, no question, although most city people were not too smart, either, for they, too, worked hard and long and lived badly in congested quarters, and still do.

Yet even the poorest of the city people somehow regard themselves as being one or more cuts above the farmer, and the word itself is sometimes used as mild opprobrium. And, of course, the prosperous members of the city population, not only in this country but everywhere, feel conscious of a great superiority over the men and women whose work in the fields alone enables them to live. Literally that, because if there were no farmers the city people would go naked and starve, although it should be said that experiments in nakedness in our cities have caused no distress to date.

* * * *

I HAVE NEVER SEEN it happen, so well has the idea been woven into the social decorum of the cities, but if a farmer should appear in his farmer's working clothes—which is to say his overalls—with mud on his shoes and surrounded by his own atmosphere of honest B. O. at one of our stylish hotel restaurants or night clubs, where evening dress is desired, he would be headed off at the door and not even permitted to check his hat. He would not be allowed to intrude his presence on people gathered to eat the food and drink the liquor of his raising off tablecloths raised by farmers.

They wouldn't like him any unless they happened to be pretty well along in their drams, in which case they might spontaneously decide to clown him around in a derisive way with the orchestra playing "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Thinking," or "This Is the Life." And then they would charge him half as much for a small sheet of steak as he received for a whole cow on the hoof, including antlers, and as much for a few sprigs of asparagus as he could get for a crate of it at the loading platform.

Maybe this is two farmers, because I believe they are specialists now and do not raise meat and truck on the same acres. I once saw an $8 steak on the menu of a hotel in Washington, when a complete cow, alive and able to moo, could be had for $5.

* * * *

OF COURSE, THE FARMER himself is not as independent as he used to be. He used to know how to make his own leather and cloth, shoes and candles, or if he didn't, then someone in the neighborhood did, and he got along by trading around—a system which Mahatma Upton Sinclair tried to revive in California a few years ago.

But in case of necessity he could recapture these knacks in a short time, and meanwhile at least he would eat, which is something the city couldn't do but for him unless the city were content to go it on caviar, lobster and cod. The city could make do with stuff out of cans for a little while, but it seems that the stuff in the cans comes off the farms originally—an alarming discovery.

A very ingenious fellow is the farmer. He sticks some seeds in the ground, and pretty soon—What ho—here's wheat for breakfast or spinach for the baby or corn for whisky. If he wants milk he turns on the cow, and if it's bacon or hamburger that he craves for dinner he takes one of his pets out behind the barn and rolls his own.

He can get along without us, but we need him every hour, and yet we call him names. I hope he never gets out of temper.

Cradle Song For Quintuplets.

Sleep, my little darlings, sleep!
May the angels vigil keep;
We must get, the way it looks,
Some one else to keep the books.

Rest, my babies, oh, so sweet!
Fifty toes and ten pink feet!
What a joy to have around . . .
(And financially so sound!)

Croon, my little babies there!
Do not mind it if I stare? . . .
Never have I seen, I think,
Wealth so fresh, so young and pink!

Smile my little cherubs, smile,
As I gaze at you a while;
Radiant as the noonday sun——
(Quick, oh Bradstreet! Quick, oh Dun!)

Gurgle, gurgle, happy dears——
Let me pinch your toes and ears;
In each cheek a dimple's dent . . .
(What's that mean at 6 per cent?)

Shriek, my darlings; I should care
If the neighbors tear their hair;
Who wouldn't shout and yell and cheer
After such a fiscal year?

Shake your rattles as you will!
This is no time to be still;
You've a right to joy, my pet . . .
(Think of thirty-six's net.)

Symbols of the home and glory
(What's your latest inventory?)
Roses from some bowered court
(What's your annual report?)

Tender flowers, pink and white,
Cherry lips and eyes so bright,
Chubby hands with rapture beating . . .
When's the next directors' meeting?

Fulpan On Sit-Downs

Petunia Correspondent Seeks Light From Washington.

By Louis M. Jiggitts.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

(Special delivery) Petunia, March 22.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

My employes have sat down and won't get up. They have been reading in the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette about people sitting down all over the country and they say they won't move until I do what they want.

As one of the leaders of this country are you going to let this happen to me? Please let me know what you are doing about these sit-down strikes by return mail.

How can they sit on my property? Yours very truly,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 23.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

My Dear Mr. Kluck:

You want to know how they can sit on your property. As soon as the Congressman returns to the office I am sure he will be glad to tell you how.

Whenever this office can serve you please do not hesitate to call on us. Yours very truly,

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

Petunia, March 24.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I've already seen how. What I want to know is why. What are you leaders going to do about it?

They are still sitting down on me. Hurry up. Yours very truly,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 25.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

My Dear Mr. Kluck:

The Congressman is unavoidably detained, but I am sure that he will regret to learn that your employes are still sittting down on you. And you may be sure that he will be glad to advise you on this matter immediately upon his return to the office, as he has been giving some thought to this subject for the past few days.

Assuring you that we enjoy serving the Congressman's constituents, I am, yours very truly,

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

P. S.—What are they sitting down on you for?

Petunia, March 26.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

As you know, I own and run the Kluck Chicken farm on the edge of town. The other morning I went out to see why the hens were making so much noise and there was all five of my employes sitting in the chicken house, and they had got all the straw from the nests to make themselves comfortable. This made the hens uncomfortable, and they were showing it. They said they wouldn't leave until I gave them a raise of 30 cents a day and more molasses for breakfast.

And, besides, while the men are sitting, the hens won't set. What's gone wrong with the world anyhow? How can I get the men up and the hens down?

Why don't you leaders do something? Yours very truly,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 27.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

My Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am sure that you will be delighted to know that the Congressman is still giving this new problem his most serious consideration. He is again sitting in an important conference today, but instructed me to suggest that you reason with the employes.

I called the Department of Agriculture and asked them to send you their latest bulletin on how to persuade hens to sit. This should solve half your troubles. Yours sincerely,

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

Petunia, March 28.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Fulpan:

I don't need the Department of Agriculture to tell me how to set hens. I was setting hens when most of the young fellows up there was still wearing three-cornered pants. If you'll get the men up, I'll get the hens down.

I tried reasoning with them, but Willie Sitz, the leader, said they wouldn't move. I told him it was illegal and the Government wouldn't allow it, but he said how could the Government do anything, as he knew some people who had been sitting down ever since they got on the Government payroll, and nobody's ever done anything about it.

How long are you leaders going to let people's property be trespassed on this way? While you are sitting down in conference my business is going to rack and ruin. I want to hear from you directly why you and the other leaders can't think up a law.

Don't you have any legal members of Congress? Your worried constituent.

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 29.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

My Dear Mr. Kluck:

All the members of Congress are legal. The House rules do not permit illegal members.

Assuring you that this office takes great pleasure in answering your inquires, I am, yours sincerely,

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

TELEGRAM.

PETUNIA, MARCH 30.

CONGRESSMAN CICERO FULPAN
WASHINGTON, D. C.

WILLIE SITZ STILL SITTING WHERE ARE YOU

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., March 30.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

Dear Mr. Kluck:

I have been sitting in my office all day giving the sit-down strike problem my most serious consideration. It has long been my custom to approach all such important matters with calm and deliberate judgment. There are many angles which call for consideration; for instance, the rights of the employer, the rights of the employe and the rights of the public. I am sure that you readily understand a man in my position cannot afford to be swayed by emotions. My approach to every problem of importance has always been by cool reasoning. The welfare of the country, which is placed in our hands by the people is a sacred trust not to be held lightly.

I hope to arrive at a conclusion shortly that will prove eminently satisfactory to all concerned.

With best regards, I am, yours very truly,

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia, March 31.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

It's easy to be calm when your hens are not refusing to set and your eggs are not being eaten by trespassers in your chicken house. Suppose you were losing your eggs and your hens were acting finicky, would you be cool? From the results you have got so far it looks to me like you have been doing more sitting than thinking.

I am being worried by people coming around to see the sit-downers. They have got the hens so nervous they won't even lay. And now it looks like the hens have gone on a stand up strike.

It looks like whenever anybody starts anything in this country everybody else has got to do it.

Why? Yours very truly,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 1.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

My Dear Mr. Kluck:

I regret to inform you that the constant strain of work and the very serious consideration he has been giving lately to sit-down strikes has made it necessary for the Congressman to go to bed for the next day or two with a headache. But I am glad to give you the information you desire. You want to know why when anybody does anything in this country everybody else does it. It's just an old American custom.

Trusting that this is the information you desire, I am, yours sincerely,

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

P. S. Why don't you charge the people a dime each to see the sit-downers?

Petunia, April 2.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I thank your secretary for a good idea. This is the first sit-down strike in Petunia and everybody is curious. As your secretary suggested, I charged everyone a dime yesterday to see the sit-downers and made $5.10. I only wish she had thought of it sooner. But they are still sitting.

I hope you have now got out of bed with your headache and will do something for mine. Yours very truly,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 3.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am conferring with other leaders today, and I have very definite reason to believe that we shall devise a plan to settle the problem to the satisfaction of everyone. I am happy that I can give you this good news of our progress. Yours sincerely,

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia, April 4.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

If you are still sitting and thinking you can get up and stop. My employes have already got up. I got tired of waiting for the hens to set and for you to think up something and the men got tired of the egg diet. So we compromised for 15 cents and more molasses. Besides they got pretty hacked with everybody looking on and making comments. I want to thank your fine secretary for helping to settle the strike. You ought to raise her salary. Your relieved constitutent,

CLOVIS KLUCK.

Washington, D. C., April 5.

Mr. Clovis Kluck,
Petunia.

Dear Mr. Kluck:

I am delighted to know that your dispute has been settled just as I arrived at a conclusion about the sit-down strike.

I assure you that it has been a pleasure for us to render you a service, and I trust that whenever I can help you again you will not hesitate to call upon me. I am always at the service of my constituents. With best regards, I am, yours sincerely,

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Belgium Nearing Neutrality Status

Paris, April 5 (AP).—Belgium's return to complete neutrality in the European scheme of alliances and ententes will be effected this week, informed diplomatic sources said tonight.

This will be carried out by the exchange of letters between the Belgian government and Great Britain and France, by which Belgium will be released from the obligations she assumed concerning the defense of those powers under the Locarno treaty.

Britain and France, it was asserted, already have indicated their readiness to free Belgium from her undertaking to go to their aid in case of an attack by Germany. This is in accord with the new neutrality and isolation policy which the Brussels government, under the direction of King Leopold III, has been seeking to establish with the consent of its former allies.

20 Years After

By

Barnet Nover.

Dregs Of Disillusionment.

THE TWENTIETH anniversary of our entrance into the World War is being observed in a sombre mood. The bubble of high hopes aroused by America's intervention in the European conflict has long since been pricked. On the subject of the war and its aftermath, the attitude of the people of the United States is now one of bitterness and disillusionment. A striking indication of this is that seven out of ten queried by the Institute of Public Opinion, as last Sunday's Post revealed, now feel it was a tragic mistake for this Nation ever to have abandoned its neutrality in 1917.

Not hard to find are the reasons for this disillusionment, with its clear implications that the American lives that were sacrificed, the treasure that was spent with so lavish a hand, the enormous efforts that were exerted, were largely in vain.

These reasons are writ large across the contemporary scene. They constitute America's morbid reaction to the disturbing spectacle of present world trends.

* * * *

IT IS A WORLD whose terrifying realities are a mockery of the dreams of 1917. Despite the "war to end war" the gates of Janus are again ajar. To many, Spain is but the bloody rehearsal for another such spectacular orgy of bloodletting and destruction as occurred between 1914 and 1918.

Despite our efforts to "make the world safe for democracy," the democratic principle has been trampled under foot in more than one of the victorious nations. And the dictatorships erected on the "bloated corpse of Liberty," to use Mussolini's phrase, are far more ruthless, because less scrupulous and more efficient, than the autocracies of the past.

As for the "new world order" which the war was to bring into being, it is no glamorous castle in which peace and justice are enshrined, but a foul nest of fear, passion and greed.

The beautiful damsel we set out to rescue 20 years ago has proved, in the opinion of the rescuers, only a repellant ogre.

* * * *

THE FAIRY TALE simile is by no means out of order. On the contrary it is perfectly descriptive of the subjective unrealism which has dogged our thinking from 1917 to the present time.

Twenty years ago we went to war with Germany because we had been attacked and because we did not propose to submit to such attacks any longer.

It is really beside the point to argue that we should not have gone to war whatever the provocation. That argument may be sound, although there is no way of proving, or for that matter, disproving it. But obviously we did not then possess the hindsight we now claim to have. Nor was the American Nation in 1917 in the same mood of disillusionment and defeatism that is the case at the present time.

We acted in 1917 in the same manner as we had acted in the past, as all other nations with any pretensions to importance had acted from time immemorial. But we were not content with the simple reflex action of fighting back when attacked. The World War was not a war of armies as past wars had been; it was a war of peoples. Because it was that it was necessary to clothe the bloody business in the sacred garments of a crusade.

* * * *

THIS CIRCUMSTANCE, true not only for the United States but for all nations engaged in the war, explains our disillusionment. It also explains why that disillusionment is to no small extent naive.

Because the war had been transformed into a crusade it was necessary to inflame the passions of the populace to fever heat and arouse their hopes to great heights. These two emotions of hope and hate were in conflict. But while, so far as we were concerned, the hates were quickly satiated, we took the position that somehow the hopes would be automatically fulfilled.

Instead of viewing the problems of peace and of democratic survival in the world as continuing problems we felt, after the Armistice, that we had done our duty by peace and by democracy and let it go at that.

In other words, we considered America's role as that of a midwife rather than a mother. We had helped in the delivery of the "new world order." But from 1919 until the present we have refused to accept any responsibility for the upbringing of what soon proved a sickly infant. Yet now we complain that because the infant is sick it was a sorry day for us when we assumed the responsibility for helping bring the brat into the world.

* * * *

WE CAN ARGUE, of course, and with some justice that those into whose care we placed that infant proved poor foster parents. That may be. But it does not relieve us of the failure of having done nothing or next to nothing for it ourselves.

To abandon the simile, there can be no denying that the peace system established after the war and largely through our efforts was faulty in many particulars; that it contained many evils. But it is certainly open to question whether these evils would have flourished as they have done during these last years had we, in the period after 1919, actively and continuously taken the position that the aims we so ardently professed during the war had to constitute the bases of our policy in peace time as well.

The fact of the matter is that peace and the survival of the democratic ideal, which can only flourish in a world at peace, remain our concern whether we realize it or not. The feeling that we can somehow insulate ourselves against the consequences of another world upheaval, by laws or otherwise, is a product of sheer ignorance of world conditions and our relation to them. So also is the feeling that it is of no concern to us whether or not the festering spirit of totalitarianism spreads in the world.

Indeed we are much more safe from an armed invasion than from an invasion of ideas and philosophies destructive of the fundamentals of our own democratic way of life. Should democracy go under in the few corners left to it in western Europe does anyone imagine that American democracy will not suffer from such a collapse? And since nothing is clearer at the present time than that totalitarianism means war, a shrinkage in the world's democratic area means a heightening of the forces making for war—with its vastly evil consequences for us and for all other peoples of the world.

In the retrospect of 20 years it is clear that while we won the war our battle for peace was lost by default the moment the bloody phase was over. And having lost that battle our participation in the war itself now appears to us a mockery. The real mockery, however, lies in the circumstance that had we expended in the preservation of peace half the energy and idealism we devoted to the prosecution of war, there might today be no occasion for disillusionment.

Diplomats

By William Lyon Phelps.

A Young Country.

Stimulating conversation is one of the real pleasures of life, and I shall not soon forget an evening I spent with Prof. Clarence Manning, of Columbia University; for, after varied discussion of life and contemporary literature, he told me that one day the Countess Margit Béthlen, wife of Count Stephen Bethlen, former Premier of Hungary, said to him that the United States of America had no really great Ambassadors to foreign countries, and could not have, because a young country cannot produce great diplomats. Quite naturally he replied, "And how about Benjamin Franklin? Wasn't he a great foreign minister and diplomat?" And she said, "Of course; he was one of the greatest in the world, and one reason for that was that he belonged to a very old country, Great Britain."

* * * *

That was a neat counterstroke, and it was true. We often forget that the men of genius who founded our country belonged to a very old one, and had been brought up and trained in old traditions. George Washington was an English gentleman; Franklin, during nearly all his long life, belonged to Great Britain, and did his utmost to prevent the final separation from the mother country, and he failed, because of stupidity at London.

Gonorrhea Specific

Dr. Anwyl-Davies Perfects Serum for Cure of Social Disease.

Post Staff Photo.

DR. T. ANWYL-DAVIES.

A specific cure for gonorrhea, elusive goal of medical science for 2,000 years, was described here yesterday by Dr. T. Anwyl-Davies, venereal disease director of St. Thomas' Hospital, London.

An antitoxin prepared from the blood of infected horses has cured between 60 and 70 per cent of the more than 200 persons to whom it has been administered, Dr. Anwyl-Davies reported.

Speaking before the annual conference of State and Provincial Health Officers of North America, he presented his findings to a medical group for the first time via the platform. Previously, his only discussion of the discovery, which promises to revolutionize treatment of one of the world's most common and crippling diseases, was in a technical paper published February 13 in the British Medical Journal.

Describes Research.

At the conference, held in the United States Public Health Service building auditorium, the English expert described his research and conclusions in brief. In a subsequent interview with The Post, however, he disclosed details of his experimentation with the serum.

Dr. Mervyn Gordon, British serologist, has hailed the antitoxin as the greatest discovery in venereal research since Ehrlich gave the world salvarsan, or 606, for treatment of syphilis more than a quarter century ago.

Since beginning work with the antitoxin three and a half years ago, Dr. Anwyl-Davies has treated more than 200 patients of St. Thomas' and other hospitals in the Greater London area. Although the serum was an unknown quantity, therefore possibly dangerous to the sufferer, there have been no fatalities and very few reactions that might be called alarming, it was explained.

No Hospitalization.

Unlike fever therapy, by which the gonorrhea sufferer is placed in a cabinet for hours at a time, the administration of this antitoxin does not require hospitalization of the patient.

He—or she—merely comes to the clinic and receives a painless needle injection. The usual dose is one cubic centimeter, the patient receiving one treatment a day. Dr. Anwyl-Davies said it has effected cures in ten days.

He chose all types of cases. For example, of 157 men treated, 42 were free from complications and the rest were suffering from arthritis, conjunctivitis and other afflictions caused by the gonococcus.

Among this group the antitoxin had "excellent" results in 49.6 per cent of the total; "good," 26.9 per cent; "fair," 14.8, and "bad," 5.9. Clinical relapses occurred in only 6.6 per cent of the cases.

Observed Three Months.

Patients whose symptoms were abolished by the serum were kept under observation at least three months before Dr. Anwyl-Davies pronounced them "cured."

"Cures" in 36 acute, uncomplicated cases in men took anywhere from 16 days to 8 weeks. In treating gonoccal arthritis sufferers, pain and swelling frequently disappeared within a few days, sometimes after the first injection. Cures, whether the cases were acute or chronic, took from 3 to 40 weeks.

The discoverer had American aid in his discovery, the antitoxin itself having been prepared by the Parke, Davis & Co. laboratories. In his laboratory procedure, Dr. Anwyl-Davies was assisted by Dr. N. S. Ferry and Dr. Stanley White, of the firm.

To produce the curative agent, the poison manufactured by the germ which causes gonorrhea is "shot" into the bloodstream of a horse.

"It makes the animal quite sick, you may be sure," explained the 46-year-old venerologist, who has studied venereal diseases for 21 years.

Builds Up Resistance.

The horse builds up a resistance to the disease and his blood provides the serum for treatment of the human sufferer. Injected into the patient, the antitoxin neutralizes the poisons of the gonococcus germ and creates not only a passive but an active immunity, according to Dr. Anwyl-Davies.

This does not mean, he made clear, the serum may be used to prevent gonorrhea, as vaccination guards against smallpox or toxoid against diphtheria.

Summarizing his experiments and conclusions, he stated:

"The results obtained with this experimental gonococcus antitoxin have been distinctly encouraging.

"Acute and chronic cases, complicated and uncomplicated, respond equally well, which is in marked distinction to other biological preparations hitherto available.

"Reactions and results indicate that this antitoxin possesses specific therapeutic properties; properly regulated controls confirm this.

"Clinical evidence suggests that active as well as passive immunity is established.

"Sufficient data are available to indicate that a remedy for the treatment of gonorrhea has been evolved which offers considerable promise."

Studied All "Cures."

Dr. Anwyl-Davies has studied every known treatment of gonorrhea, including fever therapy, and found all of them wanting until he developed the antitoxin.

He thinks America has been late in starting to crusade against venereal diseases but, now that it is on its way, effective results will be obtained far more speedily here than in England. This, he said, is largely because the press on this side of the Atlantic is doing far more to educate the public than the English newspapers.

Although England has achieved encouraging success in combating syphilis since the World War, the daily newspapers still shun the subject, he asserted. The first and only mention of it in his memory, he said, occurred a few months ago when the News Review, a London weekly, commented on the article by U. S. Surgeon General Thomas Parran, which appeared last summer in Readers Digest.

One of the American broadcasting chains offered Dr. Anwyl-Davies $5,000 for a 30-minute broadcast on venereal disease control, but he had to reject it because acceptance would have meant virtually professional ostracism in England, he declared.

First Visit to U. S.

This is his first visit to the United States. He arrived in New York last Wednesday. The rough crossing on the Bremen resulted in many of his lantern slides being smashed. After leaving Washington he will lecture in Rochester, Toronto and other cities.

He will return to England after the coronation next month. He would prefer to leave earlier, but says he cannot book passage, every outgoing liner being packed with Americans headed for the crowning of King George VI.

Lack of home life in this country is partly responsible for its alarmingly high venereal disease toll, he believes. The greatest cause of the spread of syphilis, he thinks, is the cervical chancre in the female because it is painless and hidden. The woman is infected without knowing it until distressing signs appear weeks, months or even years later when hope for cure is remote.

He told the assembled health officers that his country has reduced incidence of venereal diseases by providing numerous clinics which are open all day and every day and whose services are free.

Papal Golden Rose Presented toQueen

Rome, April 5 (AP).—Queen Elena of Italy today was presented formally with the golden rose, a token of Pope Pius' recognition of her pious work.

An official of the papal court presented the gift in the Paoline Chapel of the Quirinal Palace. A papal brief addressed to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy accompanied the rose, citing the queen's piety, charity and excellence as a mother. The brief used the titles of Emperor and Empress of Ethiopia nine times.

Present for the ceremony were the King, Crown Prince Umberto, Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, Marshal Pietro Badoglio and presidents of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies. The King and Queen are expected to visit the pontiff within a week to thank him for the gift.

Malaria Killed 4,310 in 1936, Conferees Told

Control Lies in Drainage, Carnegie Man Says at Health Meeting.

Although more is known about malaria than almost any other disease, it claimed 4,310 lives and was responsible for 137,502 cases of sickness in this country last year, the annual conference of State and provincial health officers of North America was told yesterday.

The speaker was Dr. William B. Brierly, geographer of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, who made a survey of the occurrence and distribution of diseases in the Western Hemisphere.

The United States has only one known malaria-carrying mosquito, compared to six varieties in Europe and 13 in India, Dr. Brierly reported. If marshes, swamps and stagnant pools were drained, the control problem would be solved, he said.

Travel Complications.

Increasing use of hospitals and the growing migratory habits of the American people, the latter typified by the trailer craze, are complicating matters for the public health statistician, a Federal expert reported to the conference at its opening session in the U. S. Public Health Service building.

Dr. Halbert L. Dunn, of the Census Bureau, pointed out that ordinarily the death rate for a city or country is computed by dividing the number of deaths by the total population.

However, the picture is distorted if one counts the deaths in hospitals of persons who came from outside the city, or transient residents, the speaker pointed out.

"On the other hand," said Dr. Dunn, chief statistician in the vital statistics division, "it is important to include among the deaths for that area those of residents who have temporarily gone elsewhere."

800 Nonresidents.

In 1935, for instance, 800 of the 8,483 deaths reported in the District of Columbia were of nonresidents. In a preliminary study of 18 States, it was found that 22 per cent of those dying from tuberculosis died in a city in which they were not residents. Of those dying from auto injuries, 34.9 per cent were outsiders.

"As a cause of bodily illness, mental stress and misery, gonorrhea has few equals and its control must take its place with cancer, tuberculosis and acute rheumatism among the medical problems of this or any age," Dr. Ambrose King told the conference.

A member of the staff of London (England) County Council clinic, he urged health officers to apply themselves in every way possible to curb the disease, which is three to four times as prevalent as syphilis both in England and the United States.

Research Facilities.

"The future solution," he said, "is dependent upon improved facilities for research work and for treatment and upon the attraction of selected general practitioners into the field. The formidable mental barrier of public fastidiousness and, in sharp contrast, the morbid interest of many individuals can only be surmounted by skillful and persistent propaganda."

Dr. R. R. Spencer, chief of public education activities of the Public Health Service, told how the Federal Government is using the radio, newspapers, magazines and other means to spread the gospel of disease prevention and cure among health officers and laymen alike.

Other speakers yesterday were Dr. F. W. Jackson, who spoke on control of infantile paralysis in Manitoba, Canada; Dr. James A. Tobey, who discussed the courts' consistent support of milk control laws; A. V. Rohweder, of the National Safety Council; Dr. Rufus Cole, of Rockefeller Institute; Dr. G. F. Amyot, whose subject was health conditions of Vancouver, B. C., and Dr. R. H. Riley, Maryland State health director.

During the year ending March 1 more than $15,000 in social security grants were paid to 129 District blind persons, the Board of Public Welfare reported yesterday.

Of all the States reporting to the Social Security Board, only two showed fewer blind persons per total population than did Washington. Here, however, only 20 out of every 100,000 received grants. The average for all States was 50 out of each 100,000.

The board estimated there are 568 blind persons in the District. Of these, applications for grants were received from 288. Seventy were denied or withdrawn, and at the close of the year 102 were pending.

Copenhagen, April 5 (AP).—King Vhristian of Denmark was shaken up today when his horse fell while the ruler was taking his daily ride through the capital.

The King was replying to the salute of a motorist when the animal shied and fell. Part of its weight fell on the monarch's leg.

Court Rules Pepco Must Pay D.C. Tax

A tax of $45,303.84 levied by the District Government on the Potomac Electric Power Co. for revenues derived from the sale of electricity in nearby Maryland towns will have to be paid, the District Court of Appeals held in an opinion handed down yesterday by Associate Justice Charles H. Robb.

The company had protested the assessment on the ground the tax was in effect an interstate commerce tax and as such was not enforceable.

The Appellate Court ruled the tax was a franchise tax measured by gross earnings from within the District and without the District, and was properly subjected to levy by Congress. Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal and two assistants, Hinman D. Folsom and Raymond Sparks, appeared for the District in opposition to the power company's move to nullify the assessment.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a bride of a year. My husband likes to drink beer and I, too, like it. A few times he drank until he became ill. I did not scold but asked him to promise me never to do it again. He did promise once, but the promise was broken. Then I asked him to promise again. This he would not do. Then he started gambling with dice and often kept me waiting outside gaming places. I did not like this either. Finally I asked him to stop it. He promised never to do it again and as yet has not broken the promise.

* * * *

But now he is planning on a stag party with two other men, one of whom is married also. I am trying to stop this, too. He says he loves me and I am trying to believe him, as he means everything in the world to me. I do not like to go any place that he does not go or cannot go. I love him so much that I cannot bear to be parted from him.

* * * *

Please help me. Tell me whether I am to blame. Am I being fair? Should such things as he does be permitted? If I am to blame please tell me how to overcome my fault. Does he really love me as he says?

UNHAPPY.

What to Believe.

DEAR UNHAPPY: It is natural that you should be distressed over your husband's occasional excessive drinking, tendency to gamble and partiality for "stag" companionship. It is understandable that you should wish to weed out these potentially dangerous habits before they spoil his life and yours. Such habits should not be permitted if they can be eradicated. But here's the rub. It's proverbial wisdom that a woman should never marry a man with the intention of reforming him. She usually has to take him "as is," for better or for worse, as very few adults of self-indulgent habits are willing to refashion their lives to suit another's taste.

* * * *

Drink, gambling and resistant indifference to the disciplinary demands of family life are three faults which usually go hand-in-hand. They are the hall mark of the weakling, who, however, often manages partially to conceal his weaknesses from the woman he wishes to marry. He goes through a period of "being good" while courting her. He may even believe he is committed to everlasting reform. Then he marries her, and when romance becomes routine, his good resolutions begin to slip. He falls first into one habitual petty vice and then another. He pulls himself up short, promises to do better, does so for a while, then slips again. After while he no longer promises. He argues that it isn't fair to himself or to his accuser to promise to do better when he knows in his heart he can't. In some subtle way, the technique of which seems to be known only to such weaklings, he manages to put his accuser on the defensive. Often he winds up by saying he drinks, or he gambles, or he goes out with "the boys" because his wife nags—blandly closing his eyes to the fact that his habits caused the nagging; and not the nagging his habits.

* * * *

Not one woman in a million thus afflicted has ever managed to deal successfully with such a husband. There is no pat answer to the riddle. Some women of forceful character have finally browbeaten weaker mates into submission to their dictates. Others, through the exercise of tolerance, sympathy, encouragement, kindliness, love and never failing companionship of spirit, have sometimes managed to convince their erring husbands that all of happiness may be found with and through them—and not in spendthrift waste of time, money and health on profitless pursuits and companions. A woman must be sufficiently intelligent to analyse her husband and determine which method is likely to be most effective with him.

* * * *

You have been wise in not scolding your husband thus far. The best approach at present, probably, is to try "sweet reasonableness" with him. Leave emotion out of it. Don't use the argument that you cannot bear to be parted from him for an hour or an evening, as he is likely to dismiss that as childish and odiously possessive. Try instead to show him that both of you must give your wholehearted best to the partnership if it is to survive and thrive; that excessive drinking is only a short cut to a bad headache; that gambling is cheating one's self out of little niceties of existence which could be purchased with the same money, and that "stag parties," if they become a habit, are apt to be inimical to real happiness in marriage.

* * * *

I do not mean, however, that any husband is not entitled to an occasional evening out with "the boys." This is a psychic necessity for most men and the urge for exclusively masculine company now and again is almost irresistible to the average husband. It is a wise wife who lets her husband go on his first post-martial stag party with an indulgent smile. If she puts up a fight, he is likely to wonder if he has married a sort of old-woman-of-the-sea, whom he is never to have off his neck from now until the moment he dies. He will also be wretched at the thought that "the boys" are going to razz the life out of him for being tied to his bride's apron strings. Rather than suffer such humiliation, such seeming loss of his manly independence, he will probably go no matter how much she objects. I believe there is nothing to do but withdraw your erstwhile objections to the proposed stag party, and let him go with your blessing. Only if such parties become too frequent and too painful in their after-effects (for him) will you be justified in taking a definite, and reasonable, stand against them.

* * * *

It may be your husband's little vices, as described above, are of the most innocent sort. If he confines his drinking to an occasional bout with beer, keeps his promise not to gamble, and asks no more than an occasional evening out with his men friends—bachelor or married—and in all other ways is a faithful, dependable, devoted, hard-working, bill-paying husband, you haven't a thing to worry about.

* * * *

Your disinclination to go any place your husband does not go or cannot go bears looking into. You must be definitely lacking in personal and social resourcefulness. You are apt to become a deadly bore if you don't find some real interests in life aside from your husband. And if you can't really find them, you should at least pretend you have found them. It might be well for you to join some women's clubs or movements; or enroll in a daytime gym or dancing class, or arrange little evening parties with women friends to coincide with those evenings when your husband will be out with his men friends. Maybe you are gradually suffocating your husband's interest in you by clinging to him too devotedly and too constantly. Maybe he's got to get away from you in order to breathe, so to speak. Many a bride whose heart is broken by her husband's wish to spend an evening away from her has only herself to blame for the temporary desertion.

Medieval Styles Appear in Shoes For Autumn Wear

New York, (AP).—New fall shoes are appearing in the design salons, and some of them look like shoes from the middle ages.

One pair on medieval lines has a high-cut front and back, with the top curled over. The low-cut sides are of elastic material, the body of dark suede and the curled-over part patent leather.

High cuts and side lacings are leading new notes. Many of the tongue-like fronts come up to the ankle. There are new stitchings, some in scallop formation, others looking like braid, and many shoes have side openwork.

Fall shoes will have dark, rich colors or shades of copper and beige. Among the new colors are "red cedar," a coppery shade; "oak brown" and coffee brown."

Current Wave of Femininity Now Engulfs House Apparel

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THE CURRENT WAVE of elegance and femininity has spread to attire for the house. No longer is it permissible to wear some ill-fitting, nondescript outfit in the kitchen; the modern housewife is as fastidious about her morning house attire as she is about her clothes for shopping, the matinee or the bridge club. The same is true of lounging costumes; gone are the masculine-like pajamas and ungainly robes, which might have been comfortable, but which definitely lacked style.

House coats, either the smartly tailored and trim variety, or those of laces and sheers, have taken over the spotlight. Regardless of the material used, they are all decidedly feminine, well-fitted and colorful. Some are patterned after the much-talked-about house coat of Albert, Queen Victoria's consort. Others have much the apparance of chic formal evening coats. They are usually full length, either clearing the ankles or floor.

Cottons are in the lead at the present time for the majority of house coats. These come in solid colors, plaids and dots, flower patterns, Persian and Hindu prints and those of Chinese influence. There are also some lovely silks, particularly the old-fashioned fabrics, such as bengaline, grosgrain and silk serges, which are much to the fore in both the daytime and evening style picture. Many of the newest house coats are untrimmed, depending upon line and the pattern of the fabric for fashion interest. Others make smart use of striking contrasts in color for dramatic effect.

The modern house coat not only serves for kitchen and lounging wear, but is considered smart and appropriate enough to be donned for informal dinner at home, afternoon tea or cocktails (at home), and for the beach and general resort wear. While tailored, these coats are made with numerous gores which give a graceful flare to the skirts, and they have feminine and flattering necklines, short sleeves and shoulder detail. A zipper extending the entire length of the garment, or a parade of buttons extending from chinline to hemline, is the usual methods of fastening and decoration. The zippers are usually of contrasting color, often matched in tone to bands or piping on the collar and sleeve cuff.

Gay chintz, glazed and dull of surface; upholstery materials, terry cloth, voile and dotted swiss, pique, cotton broadcloth, linen, sackcloth and numerous novelty cottons are the mediums for the new spring and summer house coats. Cotton braids, unique buttons of wood or plastic, and those covered with self-material, comprise the trimmings. Colors range from all-white and white with brilliant contrasts, through delicate pastels and flamboyant primary colors.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IN AMERICA, a lady with a house and no maid usually has an easier life than her sister abroad who has several servants, and this is because of all the mechanical helps we have to simplify the hard jobs.

But there are no machines for raising babies, and not likely to be any! So, it looks as though we'll keep on being tied at home pretty close during the years when the children need watching, because nursemaids are hard to get and expensively out of the question for most of us.

In certain progressive communities and especially in the larger cities there are nursery shools for preschool age children. These are actually neighborhood play places, with someone on the job watching to see that the children are safe and happy. These will no doubt be the eventual solution of the problem of the busy mothers who can't be two places at once—in the house doing the work and in the yard watching the children play outdoors.

The nursery school is fairly rare as yet, but we know one neighborhood of mothers who clubbed together and organized a playground for their own youngsters. The way it worked was like this—two mothers would be on duty at a time and all the children of the group were gathered together to play under these watchful eyes. They took it by half-day shifts and no one woman had to serve but once a week. This left each mother free the rest of the time for her work or for going out. Since the success of the scheme depended on dependable co-operation, each mother made a point to be on the job when her turn came so that she could feel free to park her own youngsters the rest of the time. Think how many hours of worry that saved—knowing that the children would be in good hands!

Sometimes they would play in a back yard, sometimes in a basement or attic game room, sometimes in a park. Sometimes they would be taken on an excursion, according to the season and the weather. But the main point is, the idea worked!

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Headaches.

A GREAT DEAL of interest has been evinced by my quotation some weeks ago from Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, of the Mayo Clinic, who said that he thought the most valuable drug that had come into use within the last two or three years is ergotamine tartrate, for the treatment of migraine or sick headache. So in the articles today and tomorrow I will devote a little lengthier consideration of it.

Migraine is one of the commonest forms of headache, although, of course, all headaches are not migraine. The chief characteristics of migraine are that the headache occurs in an individual periodically; that when a person begins to have migraine he, or she, is liable to have these attacks every so often through most of their adult life; that it is hereditary; that, while extremely uncomfortable, it has no deleterious effect upon health or length of life.

Individual Headache.

People who have it are likely to refer to it as "my headache." They may have other headaches, but this one is their own individual brand. They may know the cause of the other headaches—reading too much, staying up late at night, fatigue, excess of one kind or another. But the migraine comes on them without any cause at all—after having led the most exemplary life, with no extra strain, no extra exertion, all of a sudden some morning they wake up with their old enemy making faces at them from the foot of the bed.

Sometimes it is called "hemacrania" because it affects only one side of the head. A good name for it is "sick headache" because besides the headache there are digestive disturbances—nausea, constipation and a feeling as if everything below the equator had stopped. Sometimes these digestive disturbances overshadow the headache and are referred to by the owner as "bilious attacks," to which also a person may be subject. It has nothing to do with biliousness, however.

Warning Is Given.

In many cases, the headache gives warning of its impending onset. These warnings may be very peculiar. One friend of mine told me that on a certain day he would have a feeling as if he had lived here many times before. Every act and every object that he saw was invested with a peculiar significance.

He understood, or almost understood, the entire meaning of the universe. And all the time he was in this trance state he knew subconsciously that the next day he would have one of his migraine headaches.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

New York, April 5.

IF YOU'RE headed our way this spring to check on the current insanities and delights of the metropolis, you'll have a thin time in the theaters, except for those hits which have been cramming in the customers all winter.

Easter week brought a slight flurry in the form of five newcomers, some of which are promising. Among the ladies you may like to witness are Lois Wilson, making her party bow on the local platform after 22 years in pictures, and lovely Constance Cummings, who divides her time between the stage and the screen. Lois, one of Hollywood's nicer folks, is as pretty as ever, and shows herself an able trouper in the comedy-drama called "Farewell Summer."

Checking and double-checking the playhouses, I find that the present smash successes run in this order: 1. "You Can't Take It With You," the most insane and delightful laugh show in a long time. 2. "The Women," Claire Booth's hit, which displays a bigger aggregation of cats than Mr. Clyde Beatty ever dreamed after a welsh-rabbit supper. 3. "Yes, My Darling Daughter," with three aces, Lucille Watson, Violet Heming and Peggy Conklin in the leads. 4. "Having Wonderful Time," the romantic comedy of young New Yorkers on vacation, which brings us the wondrous Katherine Locke as "the new Helen Hayes." 5. "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," a thriller from England. 6. "The Show Is On," musical hit with Auntie Bea Lillie and blubbering Bert Lahr. 7. "Tovarich," with Marta Abba, from Italy, and John Halliday from Hollywood.

You'll not go wrong on any of those. But the season nears its end.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—"Who are those two stunning gals coming down the steps of the church now?" I asked last Sunday morning. "Donna Marina Torlonia and Tatania Conus," I was told. So stunned and delighted was I by these rippling names that I quite forgot to inspect the Sabbath sables of Mrs. John F. Smythe-Bijones, who was close on their high heels!" . . .

* * * *

Has Ina Claire a new boy friend? Prince Lichtenstein was the one and only for some time, but now I note the lovely Fagan here and there with Sir Michael Duff Ashton-Smith. Sir Mike this-and-that has an interesting story. His last name was Duff, but he added the other two at the request of a rich uncle—who soon passed to his reward and left the young sir a few paltry millions! . . .

Our society scribblers certainly get palsy-walsy very fast! When Henry Fonda, the movie star from Omaha, up and married our pretty young Widow Brokaw, some of the reporters hadn't the vaguest notion of who he was or what he did, never having seen him on their party beats. It was very comical, indeed. And now the same ones are calling him "Hank!" Incidentally, one of the first shows the fine-looking pair took in on their current visit was "The Women," whose author, Claire Booth, preceded Frances as the wife of the late George T. Brokaw! . . . These divorced people are so chummy! Fonda attended the last performance of "Stage Door," in which his first wife, Margaret Sullavan, starred, and went to her dressing room between acts to congratulate and wish her well . . .

The beauty queens of the town are still the hostesses at our red-and-chromium lounges—and are they elegant and refined! Some are college girls; many are models when not passing hot cheese canapes and smiling, in a genteel way, on the male customers at 5:30 p. m. And I am convinced that nearly all of them are studying to be duchesses of the better sort.

Hearty Morning Meal Is Based On Lamb Chops

Vogue for Breakfast Entertaining Grows; Best Chops Are Cut Thick.

By Rebekah Blake.

"The bigger the breakfast, the better the day," is an old adage but true, for nothing makes one so satisfied as does a good hearty breakfast, one which is sure to last the morning through, come what may. So pledge your efforts in the morning with bigger and better breakfasts.

Time is generally a premium in preparing breakfast, but it is perfectly possible to turn out tantalizing temptors in ten ticks of the clock, and with the alarm set a few minutes early, you can achieve wonders in preparing a hearty breakfast that will set the stage for the entire day.

Deliciously broiled lamb chops can be included in the hasty breakfast. While friend husband is putting the finishing touches on his dressing, slip quietly down the steps, turn the broiling oven on and let the chops start cooking. By the time the table is set, the chops should be ready to season and turn. Then, by the time the coffee "perks," the chops should be done.

Along with this vogue of hearty breakfasts has come the vogue for breakfast entertaining, and here lamb chops are a perfect choice because they are substantial enough to satisfy ravenous appetites.

The lamb chops are best when cut thick, at least one inch, so that the outside can be nicely browned while the inside is tender and juicy. If you want them to be especially appetizing, broil them just "short" of well done, so that they show the slightest tinge of pink on the inside. This, hotel chefs consider the mark of well-broiled chops.

With broiled lamb chops, broiled fruit is the natural accompaniment, and this, too, is rapidly becoming a breakfast favorite, since it offers a delightful change from the iced fruits usually found on every menu. Pineapple slices, placed on the broiler rack when the chops are turned, become heated and slightly browned and, served with piping hot lamb chops, make a breakfast your guests will rave about.

Dinner Given Bankheads By 74th Club

Stage Stars Present Program at Shoreham Affair.

Speaker Is Introduced by Mrs. Coffee, the President.

Members of the Seventy-fourth Club entertained at a dinner last evening at the Shoreham Hotel for the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead. The Speaker was named to his post while he was a member of the Seventy-fourth Congress, wives of members of which compose the Seventy-fourth Club.

Mrs. Harry Coffee, president of the club, introduced Representative Bankhead and he made a brief address fallowing the dinner. Then followed a program which included several stars now appearing at Washington theaters, and a performance of rope throwing by Jim Ferrier, of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Coffee, who was seated at the speakers' table, wore a gown of turquoise blue chiffon and a corsage of dark red carnations and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Bankhead chose white chiffon for the occasion, with which she wore a corsage of orchids. Others at this table were Representative Jack Nichols, president of the men's Seventy-fourth Club; Representative and Mrs. Phil Ferguson, Representative and Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Representative and Mrs. Paul Greever, Representative and Mrs. William Barry and Representative and Mrs. Elmer Ryan.

The other guests were seated at a long, U-shaped table decorated with spring flowers from the Botanical Garden. Among those present—some 90 in all—were Senator and Mrs. John Lee, Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church of Maine, who was accompanied by Mr. Clarence Stetson of Bangor; Representative and Mrs. Charles A. Halleck; Representative and Mrs. Herron Pearson, Representative and Mrs. Maury Maverick, Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan, Representative C. Jasper Bell, with his son, Mr. John Bell; Representative and Mrs. Aaron Ford, Representative and Mrs. Scott Lucas, and Representative and Mrs. Phil Ferguson, the latter wearing a flowered print gown.

Congress Club Elects Officers

Members of the Daughters of the House of Representatives Club, organized only two weeks ago, held their first meeting yesterday at the George Washington Club. Officers were elected and tentative plans were made for a dance about the first of May.

The officers are Miss Betty Lou Massingale, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Sam Massingale, president; Miss Elizabeth Mahon, daughter of Representative and Mrs. G. Heyward Mahon; Miss Dorothy Smith, niece of Representative and Mrs. Albert E. Carter; Miss Frances Boykin, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Frank Boykin and Miss Muriel Dempsey, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Miss Gladys Kitchens, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Wade H. Kitchens; secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting of the Daughters of the House is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, April 13, in the apartment of Mrs. Albert E. Carter, at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Virginians to Hear Senator Thomas

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, a member of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, will address the Jefferson Day banquet, to be given by the Virginia State Society Tuesday evening, April 13, at the Willard Hotel. Other addresses will be made by Representative John J. Boylan, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association, and Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillen, a member of the United States Civil Service Commission.

Special guests of honor will be Mr. Hollins Randolph, of Charlottesville, a great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson; Representative and Mrs. S. Otis Bland, Representative and Mrs. Patrick H. Drewry, Representative and Mrs. Clifton G. Woodrum, Representative and Mrs. A. Willis Robertson, Representative and Mrs. Howard W. Smith, Representative and Mrs. Norman R. Hamilton, Representative and Mrs. Thomas G. Burch, and Representative and Mrs. John W. Flannigan.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. R. Walton Moore, president of the society, will be toastmaster. The banquet will be followed by the spring ball.

MRS. J. F. FARLEY, wife of Commander Farley, U. S. Navy, is shown with her two interesting cats, Tom and Fuzzy Tail, in the home they have taken at 6409 Ridgewood avenue in Chevy Chase. Commander and Mrs. Farley arrived recently in Washington, where he has been ordered for duty.

Senator Norris To Be Honored At Reception

The International Relations Council to Entertain for Nebraskan.

Members of the Council on International Relations will entertain at a reception this evening at the Willard Hotel in honor of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska. The party will follow the dinner, at which Senator Norris will entertain those who were members of Congress and voted with him against the entry of America into the World War 20 years ago today, and the reception will also commemorate this anniversary.

Brig. Gen. H. C. Newcomer will preside at the reception, which is being given in the bamboo room of the Willard. Representative William Ashbrook and Representative Maury Maverick will make brief addresses, to which Senator Norris will reply. Then the company will listen to the broadcast which Mrs. Roosevelt and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will make from the White House.

The receiving line will be composed of the following: Dr. James Brown Scott, honorary chairman of the council; the Rev. Charles L. Carhart, chairman of the committee of the council; Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Miss Mabel Vernon, and Mrs. Florence Boeckel, prominent peace workers, and the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy.

Mr. Brent D. Allinson is secretary of the council. Some 600 invitations were issued.

German Envoy To Be Honored

The German Ambassador, Herr Hans Luther, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of American University.

The guests at the luncheon, which will be held at the Hamilton Hotel, will be Bishop William Fraser Mcdowell, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the college of liberal arts of American University, and Mrs. Woods; Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, dean of the graduate school, and Mrs. Griffith; Arthur S. Fleming, director of the school of public affairs, and Mrs. Fleming, and Miss Mary Louise Brown, dean of women.

Dr. and Mrs. Gray will entertain at a dinner this evening at their home on the campus in honor of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

Mr. Ladd Returns.

Mr. Fonnie Black Ladd has returned to his home on Connecticut avenue after having spent several weeks with his mother, Mrs. Henry Thomas Ladd, at Valley Farm, near Charleston, Miss., where he was called by the death of his father.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

George Bucheister has at last tired of life in the great city and is just about to take himself back to his lovely old country estate, Chelsea, in rolling Maryland. It seems funny to hear George, who loves a party better than anything else in this wide world, complain about having to gad about and lose his rest. So-o-o-oo, George is once again to lead the life of a country gentleman, arising early to get in a brisk canter before driving into town to his office on the Hill. Then when Congress packs up its troubles and scatters to its homes, he will have loads of time to himself.

Saw Margot Couzens Chewning in the Mayflower Lounge the other afternoon. She was spiffy in a black and white ensemble. The frock was of black and white polka dots and her hat was an off-the-face model, flaring into a halo and faced with polka dot materials.

Black seems to hold sway over the other color combinations. Mrs. Jouett Shouse, busily shopping in one of the larger stores downtown, wore a chic, simply designed all-black coat, and as contrast chose a brimmed hat of bright red felt.

Bear up, girls! Just when you have heard that all the handsome dashing White House aides are leaving their posts here, comes the welcome news a new one has been assigned to duty at the Executive Mansion. He is Lieut. Robert H. Williams, of the Marine Corps, that daring branch of Uncle Sam's service, famed for "having the situation well in hand"—and is tall, blond and blue-eyed.

In case you do not know, that friendly black Labrador retriever that follows close at the heels of Col. Jonathan Wainwright, commandant of Fort Myer, is named Seal. Her whole name is something like Miss Seal Featherstone, but due to her resemblance to a sleek, young seal it is shortened to that. Mrs. Wainwright, who has a way with animals, has been teaching her to balance a ball on her little pointed nose. Everyone had been hoping that perhaps the commandant's dog would take part in the pageant, but her tricks are being carefully kept in a bag until next year, then Kiko, George Millholland's canny canine, had best look to his laurels.

Davieses Arrive At New York

The United States Ambassador to the Soviet and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies arrived in New York yesterday on the Queen Mary and will come to Washington early this week.

Last evening, Mrs. Davies made an address at the Salvation Army's Centennial Memorial Auditorium in New York, recounting what the Salvation Army has contributed to the solution of New York's relief problems. Even during the worst of the depression, Mrs. Davies has maintained charity work in the New York slums, and acquired the name "Angel of Hell's Kitchen."

After a brief stay in this country, Mr. and Mrs. Davis expect to leave on their yacht, Sea Cloud, for the coronation of King George VI. They have leased the home of Mrs. Marshall Field in Regent Park, a magnificent house, which has a sizable park surrounding it.

Mrs. Field recently redecorated her house. The drawing room is decorated entirely in white, with rugs and walls to match.

75th Club Plans Meeting April 7

The April meeting of the Seventy-fifth Club will be held tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at the Congressional Club. Each member will bring as her guest a member of one of the older Congressional Clubs.

Mrs. John Coffee is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Her assistants include Mrs. Charles Leavy, Mrs. Frank Towey, Mrs. R. P. Hill and Mrs. Vincent Harrington.

Tour Arranged Saturday By Flowerless Society

Philadelphia Charitable Organization Pilgrimage to Be Led by Mrs. Ruth Strawbridge; Shrine Women Meet.

The "Flowers," of the Flowerless Society of Philadelphia, will conduct a tour of Washington Saturday. Mrs. Ruth G. K. Strawbridge, chairman, will lead the pilgrimage. The society, composed of prominent Philadelphia women, was organized in 1921 to supply flowers to shut-ins, hospitals and charitable institutions. It has the support of many of the women's clubs in and around Philadelphia. Mrs. William H. Marshall is executive secretary and Mrs. David E. Williams, president of the executive board.

An "800" party was held at the clubhouse of Almas Temple last night, under auspices of the Women of the Divan and the Nobility.

Mr. Ara M. Daniels, potentate of the Shrine, was in charge of the program.

Among the patronesses were:

Mrs. Charles D. Shackleford, Mrs. Leonard P. Steuart, Mrs. William Montgomery, Mrs. Robert P. Smith, Mrs. Edward S. Brashears, Mrs. Ara M. Daniels, Mrs. Granville Gude, Mrs. Stanley D. Mr. Street will speak on "One Year of Social Security in District of Columbia."

The department of government and child welfare, of which Mrs. R. C. Waganet is chairman, met yesterday afternoon. Phases of the District child welfare program were discussed.

Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss has invited the members of the Georgetown Garden Club to view the forsythia in her gardens at Dumbarton Oaks, Georgetown. The gardens will be open several days to the members of the club.

The international outlook section of the Twentieth Century Club met yesterday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Harper Sibley, wife of the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was the speaker. Mrs. Sibley is a member of the board of trustees of Central China College, and a member of the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry of the Orient.

She spoke on "Currents Moving in China Today." Mrs. D. Agnes Greenlees spoke on "Recent Events in China," and Mrs. Herbert A. Smith on "Recent Events in Japan." Mrs. Ellery Stowell presided.

Mrs. Ellis Logan spoke on "The Study of the Bible as Literature" at the meeting of the District of Columbia Auxiliary of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance at the home of Mrs. Wintermute W. Sloan yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley made a report on "Woman's Work and Influence" at the recent Buneos Aires conference. Mrs. W. A. Winkelhaus led the devotional exercises. Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter reviewed the work accomplishd by the Women's Council of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Abram Simon was the speaker at the meeting of the Sisterhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation in the temple yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Pelzmann read her report, which was accepted with thanks. The prayer was led by Mrs. Morris Cafritz. A program of piano selection was given by Miss Betty Baum. Mrs. David Simon made a short address. Mrs. Cecil Kaufman and Mrs. Jesse Miller were hostesses at the tea and reception which followed the meeting.

Harold Graves, Jr., Miss Judy to Wed

The engagement of Miss Alta Frances Judy, of New York, to Mr. Harold N. Graves, jr., of Washington, was announced in St. Louis recently by Miss Judy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Judy, of that city. Miss Judy is on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest and Mr. Graves is an associate editor of Pathfinder magazine.

He is a son of Mr. Harold Graves, an assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, and Mrs. Graves.

Both Miss Judy and Mr. Graves were awarded master of science degrees in 1936 by the School of Journalism of Columbia University.

F. R. Weisgerber To Wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Burr Edwards announce the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Cortland Meader, to Mr. F. Rankin Weisgerber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weisberger, of Grosse Point, Mich. The wedding will take place Saturday and will be attended only by members of the two families.

Mr. Weisgerber and his bride will reside in Detroit. Mrs. Meader was graduated from Westover and Mr. Weisgerber is a graduate of the University of Michigan. She was presented to Washington society after completion of her studies at Westover.

Henrietta Beman, Dr. Woolley Wed

Ceremony Is Performed at St. Mark's Church Here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Edward Beman, of North Carolina, announce the marriage of Mr. Beman's sister, Henrietta Croft Beman, to Dr. Herbert Codey Woolley Saturday, April 3, in Washington at St. Mark's Episcopal Church. Dr. and Mrs. Watson W. Eldridge were the only attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Bernard College, Columbia University, and has been on the editorial staff of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Visits Representative Here.

Mrs. Norene A. Whitmore, of New York City, is at the Shoreham while in Washington to visit Representative and Mrs. George B. Kelly.

Col. Frank P. Stone, Miss Baldwin Wed

Ceremony Held at Bride's Home in Baltimore.

A wedding of interest to Washington is that of Miss Edna Elizabeth Baldwin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baldwin of Baltimore, to Col. Frank Powell Stone, U. S. A., which took place Wednesday at the residence of the bride, 3906 Clover Hill Road, Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Rudolph J. Gunkel, rector of the Church of Our Savior.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. John Boise LeCompte Hanes of Washington, formerly of Baltimore; Mrs. John A. Arringdale, of West Point, formerly of Cosey Point Farms, Easton, Md.; Mrs. William Henry Chambers, and Miss Suzanne Pierce Baldwin, of Baltimore.

After May 1, Col. and Mrs. Stone will be at home at Tilden Garden Apartments, 3900 Connecticut avenue.

Mr. John Roosevelt's Engagement Is Denied

First Lady Says Son and Miss Clark Are Friends of Long Standing, but That Marriage Is Not Planned.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The rumored romance between Mr. John Roosevelt, son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and Miss Anne Clark, who was here for the Hasty Pudding Club Show, is only a rumor. This was Mrs. Roosevelt's answer to questions regarding it yesterday at her press conference.

The families have been friends for years, she said, but the fact that the two young people have been seen together in Boston and that Miss Clark attended the Hasty Pudding Show here with Mr. Roosevelt, does not necessarily mean they are to be married. She also added, with a smile, that it is still customary for the announcement of an engagement to come from the young lady's family, when one is made.

Replying to a question as to the order of precedence observed at the luncheon given last week by the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, for her and Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the Governor General of Canada, Mrs. Roosevelt explained the seating difficulty had been very simply solved. Miss Perkins sat at one end of the table, Mrs. Roosevelt at the other and Lady Tweedsmuir at Miss Perkins' right.

The First Lady entertained a group of the Cabinet wives at luncheon yesterday at the White House and today will be the luncheon guest of the Ladies of the Senate at their regular meeting at the Senate Restaurant. Her program for the week includes other luncheons, dinners and teas.

This afternoon she will be the guest of the American Association of University Women at tea and this evening there will be a dinner at the White House. She will leave her guests at 10:30 to speak on the Emergency Peace radio program with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Tomorrow she will entertain at a large luncheon at the White House and at two teas, at 4 and 5 o'clock. Thursday she will receive delegates here for the Textile Conference at a tea from 4 to 5 and, in the evening, will attend the dinner being given at the Mayflower in observance of the anniversary of the Children's Bureau.

Friday, Mrs. Roosevelt will go to New York, where she will make an address which will be broadcast at a dinner of the Girl Scouts in the evening and will be entertained at a luncheon to be given in the afternoon by the alumnae of the Todhunter School.

Wife of Panama Minister Boyd Entertains at Legation Luncheon

Envoy, Mme. Fotitch Give Dinner For French Ambassador and Wife

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch.

The other guests were Mr. Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Haersma de With, Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mr. Jules Henry, Minister-Counselor of the French Embassy; Mrs. Albert Niblack and Mr. Roger Gaucheron, First Secretary of the French Embassy, with his sister, Mlle Simone Gaucheron.

The Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky have left for a two weeks' visit to Florida.

The Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. van Haersma de With will entertain at a luncheon today for delegates from their country to the Textile Conference.

Four Officers Slated for High Army Charges

Col. Charles Burnett to Be Chief of Bureau of Insular Affairs.

Four Army officers yesterday were nominated for high commands and promotions in rank by President Roosevelt. The nominations were sent to the Senate, where confirmation is expected immediately.

The nominees:

Brig. Gen. Charles D. Herron, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, Chicago, to be major general.

Col. Walter K. Wilson, stationed at Omaha, to be brigadier general.

Col. Walter C. Baker, stationed at Boston, to be chief of Chemical Warfare Service, with rank of major general.

Col. Charles Burnett, stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, to be chief of Bureau of Insular Affairs, with rank of brigadier general.

Aide to Pershing.

The proposed new chief of insular affairs is an expert on Far Eastern affairs. One-time aide to Gen. Pershing, Col. Burnett has served 12 years in Japan as a student of the language, which he speaks fluently and as military attache. He also has had tours of duty in Hawaii and the Philippines. During the devastating earthquake in Tokyo in 1923, while he was on duty there, he saved the life of the American Ambassador, Cyrus E. Woods. Col. Burnett was in charge of relief activities in Tokyo and won praise from high Japanese officials and representatives of other governments.

A native of Tennessee and a graduate of the Military Academy in 1901, he has served as Assistant Military Attache at London, and as adviser to the American delegation at the London Naval Conference in 1930. He has had several tours of duty in Washington, in the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department and with Cavalry units at Fort Myer. For his World War service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, and also is a member of the Japanese Order of the Rising Sun.

To Succeed Gen. Cox.

He will succeed Brig. Gen. Creed F. Cox, present chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, whose term of office expires the end of May.

Brig. Gen. Herron, who will be promoted to major general, succeeds to the rank held by Maj. Gen. Henry W. Butner, who died recently in Washington. At present commanding the Sixth Corps Area, he will shortly be succeeded by Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, who will relinquish his present command of the Hawaiian Department the end of July. Gen. Herron's new assignment has not been announced.

He is a native of Indiana, and was graduated from West Point in 1899. During the World War he served on the General Staff at A. E. F. Headquarters, and later as chief of staff of the Seventy-eighth Division; he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor for his war services. He served in Washington from 1930 to 1935.

Served in Spanish War.

Entering the Army from the ranks, following service in the War with Spain, Col. Baker originally served with the Coast Artillery, transferring to the Chemical Warfare Service in 1920. From 1910 to 1915 he was stationed at Fort Monroe, Va., and from 1918 to 1925 with the War Department here. His World War service earned him the Distinguished Service Medal. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Claude E. Brigham, whose term of office in the Chemical Warfare Service expires the end of next month.

Col. Wilson, whose new assignment has not been announced, succeeds to the rank vacated by the promotion of Brig. Gen. Herron. A graduate of West Point in 1902, he has served in the Field Artillery and Coast Artillery. During the World War, as a member of the General Staff, he organized and administered the important cable service, in charge of the War Department cables to and from the A. E. F. For this service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He has had several early tours of duty in Washington, in addition to duty with the cable service as assistant to the Chief of Coast Artillery.

Social Security To Face First Validity Test

Supreme Court to Get Initial Challenge of Taxing Clause.

The first case to question the constitutionality of the taxing clause of the social security act will be brought before the Supreme Court probably tomorrow.

A brief in the case, Charles C. Steward Machine Co. vs. Davis, has already been filed by the Government. The Supreme Court, on March 29 granted a writ of certiorari to review the case following a decision of the Fifth Circut Court of Appeals upholding the clause.

The brief begins with an economic discussion indicating the extent and effects of unemployment, including the drains made on the Federal Treasury for relief and public works.

Clause Called Valid.

Then the brief argues that the clause is a valid exercise of Congress' power "to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises to pay debts, and to provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States.

The argument is made also that Congress has the right to lay a tax regardless of the motivating policy. In support of this argument the Government cites Florida vs. Mellon, which upheld the Federal estate tax. Under this law State estate taxes, up to 80 per cent of the total Federal tax, may be deducted from the amount paid the Federal Government.

Even if the tax's motivating policy be examined, the brief says, it will be found reasonably close to the exercise of taxing power. The taxes are designed to avoid double taxation and to encourage State unemployment compensation laws which would diminish the drain on the Federal treasury.

Coercion Denied.

Because, the brief says, it is a valid exercise of the taxing power, the tax cannot be declared unconstitutional under the tenth amendment. The tenth amendment states that all powers not specifically delegated to the Federal Government are reserved to the States.

It is emphasized in the brief that the taxing plan adopted by Congress does not coerce the States. Instead it actually tends to a cooperative pattern of government for which there is much precedent.

The case for the government will be argued by Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson and Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., special assistant to the attorney general.

Auto Club Aide Fights Raising Motor, Gas Tax

Keneipp Addresses Mass Meeting; Alleges Funds In D. C. Diverted.

George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, last night attacked the proposals contained in the District supply bill which would double the gasoline tax rate here and substitute an expensive weight tax for the present tag and personal property taxes.

Speaking at a mass meeting of motorists and oil men held in the assembly chamber of the American Security & Trust Co., Eighth and H streets northeast, Keneipp declared the increases were unnecessary, since only about two-thirds of the tax money paid by motorists during the past few years in the District has actually been spent for streets and roads.

He quoted figures from the United States Bureau of Public Roads which show that in 1935, the last year for which the bureau's figures are available, the District placed $914,543 of the revenue received from gasoline taxes, title, tag and permit fees and from personal property taxes on automobiles in the general funds of the District. This was 29.8 per cent of all motor vehicles and motor fuel receipts. Only five States, Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts, New York and South Dakota are guilty of diverting as high a percentage of their motor vehicle funds, he asserted.

"The Keystone Automobile Club has always taken the position that as long as there is need for desirable and necessary highway projects, it is fair to assess the expense of these projects upon those who principally benefit," Keneipp declared, "but the club has always strongly opposed, and will continue to oppose, as indefensible, taxation of motorists for the sole purpose of balancing the budget. It is absurd to assume that a citizen must travel by automobile to determine the exact amount of taxes he should pay toward District expenses."

Youth's Wife Sued By Mother-in-Law; Perjury Charged

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—Marital woes of a young mother against whom her husband's mother has filed perjury charges were aired today in justice of the peace court, with Mrs. Thelman L. Howser Naughton, this city, held for action of the April grand jury. Bond of $250 was furnished by her attorney, Edward J. Ryan, and her stepfather. The mother-in-law, Mrs. Beulah E. H. Naughton, asserted that her son, Alvin Lee Naughton, was only 16 years old when Miss Howser obtained the marriage license January 28, 1936, and gave his age as 21.

Woman Withdraws McGrath Charges

Charges against Policeman William T. McGrath of testifying falsely in a civil suit have been withdrawn by Mrs. Mary Catherine Richardson, Assistant Corporation Counsel Mathias Mahorner reported yesterday. Mrs. Richardson was involved in the suit.

McGrath, however, will be forced to face the Trial Board Wednesday on charges of performing services of a legal nature for a fee and accepting outside employment, Mahorner said.

McGrath was formerly detailed as a clerk in the corporation counsel's office at Police Court.

Plane With Passengers Down at Sea; All Safe

Lima, Peru, April 5 (AP).—The Pan-American-Grace plane "Santa Maria" landed at sea a short distance off Point Mogoncillo today when motor trouble developed. Passengers and pilot were unharmed and an amphibian from Lima was dispatched to pick them up. Several tugs also put out from nearby Carma port.

On the Air Today

Edgar A. Guest, accompanied by Frankie Masters and his orchestra and the Master Voices, begins a new series of programs tonight, WMAL, at 8:30, to be konwn as "It Can Be Done." The new series replaces the veteran "Welcome Valley" which starred Guest for years.

"It Can Be Done" will bring to the microphone men and women who have succeeded in the face of great odds. Guest, of course, also will read his poems as usual. Anna Sheridan, a former Chicago policewoman who, after 40 years, began studying for the bar, will tell of her rise to prominence as an attorney in the first show tonight. She will explain (with dramatic interpolations by a cast of actors) how she attained her goal despite circumstances that suddenly placed her five grandchildren in her care.

A second visitor will be Dr. F. E. Austin, of Hanover, N. H., builder of ant palaces.

Other features today:

Maj. Brown—And Mrs. George Thorpe in safety broadcast, WMAL, at 5:45, on "Causes of Fatalities in 1936."

"Stump-Us Club"—In debut at WRC, at 7:30, with Les Colvin, pianist, and a guitarist-violinist. Idea is to make requests for old popular songs with rewards to those who call for songs the musicians are unable to play. With Floyd Mack. Also Thursday nights.

"Husbands and Wives"—Changes to Tuesday ngihts at 8, WMAL. Also second anniversary of show on N. B. C. net.

"Twenty Years After"—Representative Ashbrook in WOL "Congress Today," at 9:45, in talk commemorating twentieth anniversary of entrance into World War.

Secretary Woodring—In Army Day address, from Mayflower, WMAL, at 10.

Northern Dramatic Company—Makes a Tuesday night appearance (usually Thursday nights), WOL, at 10:30. Fifth episode of "That Guy Smith."

"Workout"—In air premiere with Freddie Rich and symphonic orchestra, WJSV, at 10:30, in "Americana." "Workout" is in three movements, details of the routine of a modern dance chorus, entitled "Go," "Sweet" and "Fast Swing," Composed by Robert McBride. Other compositions: "Cripple Creek," by Stringfield, and "Four Minutes and 20 Seconds," by Roy Harris.

"No Foreign War Crusade"—With Admiral Byrd, Mrs. Roosevelt, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, WMAL, at 10:30.

Edgar Guest says he is convinced that coincidence in real life can outstrip the wildest imagination. He has writtetn verse a time or two about the death of children for consoling parents who had just lost them. One such verse was written only last month and was released to newspapers as a syndicate feature. The verse appeared on schedule in the Kilgore, Tex., paper on March 20, the day following the school explosion that killed so many children. School officials were so impressed with the verse and its timeliness that it was read at the memorial service Easter Sunday.

Here and there: NBC also introduces a new variety show, "Piccadilly Music Hall," on the blue net at 11 tonight. WMAL will not carry it, but you may want to shop around and see whether it appeals to you. It will employ the devices of the English music hall with John Goldsworthy as master of ceremonies . . . Walter Hirsch, an all-American football player under Yost at Michigan, is a member of Frankie Masters' band, backing the new Guest program . . . Tony Martin will take over the master-of-ceremonies job in "Hollywood Hotel," as predicted, effective May 7 . . . Carlton Kadell has given up his job as announcer for "Amos 'n' Andy" to become straight man in the Moore-Broderick show.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1936

THE 90th Annual Report of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company covering operations for 1936 will be presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting on April 13, 1937. The report shows that total operating revenues increased over 1935 by $73,613,003 or 20%, but continued subnormal, being 35% below the annual average for 1925-1929. Operating expenses increased $50,987,517 (due principally to increased business and larger expenditures for necessary current maintenance and to improve the general condition of the road and equipment). Net income was $38,742,091 as compared with $23,962,586 in 1935. Surplus for 1936 was equal to 4.8% upon the outstanding Capital Stock as compared with 2.8% in 1935. Surplus per share (par $50) was $2.38 as compared with $1.38 in 1935.

Dividends aggregating 4% ($2.00 per share) were paid during the year. The dividend of 2% paid on December 21, 1936, was charged against 1936 income. Expenses incurred on account of floods and for retirement of property during the year aggregating $24,794,575 were charged to Profit and Loss.

FINANCE

The net decrease in total funded debt was $35,436,910, due to the payment at maturity of $52,000,000 Fifteen-year 6½% Bonds; $10,251,000 Equipment Trust Obligations; $1,100,000 Thirty-year 4% Bonds and $500,000 Sunbury & Lewistown Railway Company First Mortgage 4% Bonds, and by the redemption on May 1, 1936, of $50,000,000 Forty-year 5% Bonds due in 1964.

An issue of $60,000,000 General Mortgage 3¾% Series "C" Bonds was sold, of which $40,000,000 were sold on a 3.95% basis and $20,000,000 on a 3.775% basis. The proceeds were used chiefly to redeem the Forty-year 5% Bonds. In addition, $18,420,000 Fifteen-year 2¾% Equipment Trust Certificates were issued and sold, on a 2.71% basis, to finance in part the cost of 10,000 new freight cars.

During 1935 and 1936, $167,000,000 of bonds of Companies in the Pennsylvania System have been refunded at reduced interest rates, effecting a reduction of $2,500,000 in annual interest payments.

To provide funds for the extension of electrification and other necessary additions and betterments, as well as for additional equipment and facilities and for the payment of maturing obligations and other proper corporate purposes, an allotment of $52,670,700 Fifteen-year 3¼% Convertible Debenture Bonds was made to stockholders of record February 6, 1937. After this issuance of Convertible Bonds the available margin of authorized funded indebtedness will be reduced to $3,234,000. Therefore, the stockholders will be asked at the annual meeting to approve an increase in the authorized indebtedness in the amount of $95,000,000.

ELECTRIFICATION

The Company's experience with electrification has been so satisfactory that it has decided to electrify its lines from Paoli to Harrisburg, Pa., from South Amboy to Monmouth Junction, N. J., from Morrisville to Harrisburg, Pa., and from Columbia, Pa. to Perryville, Md., and certain branches, which will enable it to obtain substantially increased advantages from the electrification previously completed. The completion of this program, which will require approximately 1½ years and the employment of over 10,000 men on the project itself and a similar number in the industries furnishing the materials, will increase materially the capacity of the Railroad by making possible the handling of a denser traffic with greater flexibility and speed over the same tracks than is possible with steam locomotives.

NEW AND IMPROVED EQUIPMENT

Built at a cost of approximately $25,000,000 and involving 11,000,000 man-hours of employment, 10,000 all-steel freight cars were completed and placed in service. 216 drop-bottom containers for handling powdered lime, cement and similar commodities, 240 hopper-bottom containers for handling fluxing lime and cement, 1 steel coal barge, and 250 gondola cars were also placed in service during the year. Air-conditioning was installed in 22 additional dining cars, 88 coaches and 23 passenger baggage cars. At the end of the year approximately 1,100 air-conditioned cars were operated on the system's lines, the largest fleet of such cars on any railroad.

BETTER SERVICE

Train schedules were quickened and rearranged to provide maximum of service and more convenient times of arrival and departure for the travelling public. The running time between New York and Philadelphia was reduced and the fastest train placed on a 1 hr.—34 min. schedule. The "Congressional" between New York and Washington runs daily on a 3 hr.—35 min. schedule, the fastest train ever provided between those points.

On November 16, 1936, complete door-to-door collection and delivery service for less-than-carload freight at no additional cost above the regular freight rates (subject to a minimum of 45 cents per hundred pounds), regardless of distance, was established, marking a distinct advance in the art of rail transport.

A supplementary service is a cash-on-delivery arrangement, under which the invoice price of merchandise is collected by the railroad upon delivery and remittance made to the shipper by the Company, an additional forward step in meeting the modern trends of business practice.

PASSENGER AND FREIGHT RATES

By order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a general reduction in the basic passenger fare structure of all railroads became effective June 2, 1936, establishing a maximum fare basis of 2 cents per mile in coaches and 3 cents per mile in Pullman cars and eliminating the Pullman car surcharge.

During the year the Interstate Commerce Commission denied the petition of the railroads for authority to continue indefinitely the moderate increase in freight rates which had been granted on certain classes of commodities effective April 18, 1935, to enable them to meet in part the increased cost of railway labor and the increased prices of fuel and other material and supplies, but authorized the increases to continue, with some exceptions and modifications, until December 31, 1936, when they expired. On October 23, the railroads petitioned the Commission for authority to make a comprehensive revision in the railroad freight rate structure to meet present-day conditions, in order to offset in part the large loss in revenues as a result of the expiration of the emergency charges. Hearings are now being held by the Commission in connection with this proposed revision of the freight rate structure.

STOCKHOLDERS

Capital Stock of the Company at the end of the year was owned by 218,720 holders, a decrease of 8,531 compared with December 31, 1935. The average number of shares owned was 60.2 shares.

The results recorded have been made possible by the splendid work of our employes. The Pennsylvania Railroad cordially invites the active interest of its stockholders and bondholders in getting people to travel and ship via The Pennsylvania Railroad. M. W. CLEMENT, President

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

By Bob Burns.

No matter how big a man becomes or how far away from home he happens to stray—sooner or later he'll have to obey the urge to go back.

I had one cousin down home who always seemed to be distant even to his own folks. They never thought he cared anything about 'em. When he was 13 years old, he ran away from home and when they didn't hear from him for 25 years, they thought he'd forgotten 'em altogether. Finally one night, the "Cannon Ball" pulled into the depot and off stepped my cousin. He didn't look around. He made a "beeline" for home and in about seven minutes he showed up at the depot agin and I says "Well, I sure am glad to see ya! Are you gonna stay with the folks long?" and he says "No, I went home and peeked through the back window and saw everybody was all right so I'm takin' the next train back to the coast."

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Penned-In Languor

A current concern of government being the creation of a more abundant and livable life, it seems proper indeed that the Government fixes attention on spring fever, of which there is a greater abundance now than of anything else.

Offices are full of it and park benches are full of people trying to escape from it. River banks, where people fish, are full of people trying to escape from it and all the while everybody else is talking about it with results no more effective than a yawn.

The Government has nothing startling to offer by way of a remedy, but at least diagnoses the condition and recognizes it officially. The Government's diagnosis—as set forth in an official release—describes a spring fever afflicted person as one "with a desire to let down a little and pursue his everyday tasks less strenuously."

Further, in matters of diet, the afflicted one—which is everyone—begins to prefer more fruits and vegetables with consequent withdrawal from the heavier foods. The out-of-doors becomes inviting and the patient would "gladly lay aside his daily round of school and business and yield to the lure of spring."

* * * *

The Government hastens to say that all of these symptoms do not constitute a disease, strictly speaking. Spring fever, the sufferers are told, is "but the name for a common experience." And it should not be construed as a signal for the giving of tonics, say the Government's health authorities, adding: "The boy who makes a wry face and objects to having these tonics has just ground for complaint and objection . . . the administering of spring tonics is one of the fallacies that bloom in the spring."

Now, say the experts, what "we all need in the spring is not spring tonic but fresh, clean foods and fruits, plenty of fresh air and sleep, more outdoor exercise." In other words, the Government holds that if you yield to the symptoms you probably will be cured.

In a world full of guile, a touch of open-hearted frankness is certainly something to ring the bells about . . . And so we ring the bell for "a teacher" in the Indian Service . . . Now the publication, "Indians at Work" carries in certain issues statements from various workers on why they joined the Indian Service . . . Some very highfalutin reasons are given, but, says "a teacher:" "I was born in the Indian Service. My father was a superintendent. But frankly, I went into the service myself because of the pay." Which is certainly a beautiful reason, because Truth was beauty a long time before the poet said it was.

'Magnificent Desolation'

One of those Interior press release writers must have gotten a big kick out of doing the "release" on the President's proclamation to extend the bounds of Death Valley . . . That was a sweet story to write and the press release man did a good job . . . He says, in part:

"Death Valley's magnificent desolation contains rocks of all the great divisions of geologic time, the positions of the complex mosaic of rock masses mutely witnessing to profound and recurrent breaking and dislocation of the earth's crust in remote times. The new boundaries add many of these colorful rock strata, of igneus, sedimentary, and metamorphosed formations, to the monument, including the upper reaches of Titus Canyon, precipitous and narrow."

Appointment

Chief Forester F. A. Silcox announces the appointment of Philip V. Woodhead to the position of assistant chief of the range management division of the Forest Service, a step-up from his former post as assistant to the assistant regional forester . . . Woodhead will have headquarters in Washington . . . During the past year, he has had charge of the range distribution survey, which involved a study of the economic factors related to grazing use in the National Forests. Woodhead, who entered the Forest Service in 1916, has served in various capacities in five National Forests.

Army Marks Entry of U.S. In War Today

President to Lead Nation in 20th Anniversary Observation.

All Branches of Service Will Participate in Military Parade.

President Roosevelt today will lead the Nation in the observance of Army Day, on the twentieth anniversary of America's entry into the World War.

As plans were made for parades of military might up and down the principal cities of the Nation, the 21 men now in the Senate who voted for America's entry into the great conflict said they still stood by their convictions.

In Washington, the Army Day parade will be under the auspices of the Military Order of the World War, directed by Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowler, of Baltimore, Third Corps commander.

Marshals of the five divisions will be Brig. Gen. Charles D. Roberts, Col. John W. Oehman, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, Col. Jesse C. F. Drain and Lieut. Col. George E. Ijams.

President Roosevelt will review the parade. Accompanying him will be Secretary of War Harry Woodring and his staff. Also present will be Admiral W. D. Leahy, chief of Naval Operations, ranking officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and military and naval attaches of the Diplomatic Corps.

Parade Starts at 1:45 P. M.

The parade here will start at 1:45 p. m. From the vicinity of the House Office Building, it will proceed across the Capitol Plaza to Constitution avenue, thence west on Constitution avenue to Seventeenth street.

Grandstand seats will be available to the public at moderate prices. Yesterday, the Board of Education announced that children might be excused for the afternoon to witness the parade with their parents. Most of the Government Departments and independent bureaus and administrations will permit employes who will participate in the parade to have the day off.

On Capitol Hill yesterday there were echoes of the days of the war.

The two Senators, now in office, who opposed hostilities against Germany, maintained unchanged views.

"Except in case of invasion, I never would vote for another war," said Senator Neely, of West Virginia.

The heavy-set Farmer-Laborite, Senator Lundeen, of Minnesota, said:

"Ask those who voted us into that carnage if they are proud of it; I challenged them on April 6, last year, and their silence was eloquent."

Sheppard Proud of Vote.

A quick response came from Senator Sheppard, the Texas Democrat.

"Voting to declare war was the proudest act of my life," he said.

Once denounced as a traitor for opposing the war resolution, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, said yesterday:

"The course of history for the past 20 years has justified my vote."

Meanwhile, Miss Jeannette Rankin, first woman elected to Congress, who voted against entrance into the war, yesterday appealed to all voters to work politically for legislation that will keep the United States out of any foreign war.

Norris will attend a reunion dinner tonight with 25 other members of the war-time Congress who voted against entering the conflict. In addition to himself, two other members of the present Congress will be present—Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, who was a representative 20 years ago, and Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota.

Fine Bud Display Is Predicted for Festival Thursday

Yesterday's favorable rain and prospects of more today make it virtually a certainty that the Japanese cherry trees wil be in excellent bloom for Thursday's festival, Secretary Charles Columbus announced yesterday after a meeting of the general committee.

Additional arrangements for the program, which will be climaxed Thursday night with the coronation of Sakiko Saito as queen, were made yesterday.

The framework for the queen's barge has been completed, it was announced, and the entertainment float will be placed in the center of the Tidal Basin today.

It was reported that $1,850 in contributions has been received by the committee. Expenses will be further defrayed by the sale of 5,000 seats around the basin. They are being sold at downtown hotels, the motor clubs and at Union Station.

A. Gardiner Moore, president of the Washington Hotel Men's Association, informed the committee that thousands of visitors spent last week-end in the Capital, but predicted the number will be far surpassed this week, with the blossom display expected to be at its peak on Sunday.

Perils of Reckless Driving Shown 500 at Traffic School

Slides Furnish Grim Reminders of Highway Tragedies as Sessions Open; Van Duzer Asks Motorists' Aid.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Illustrating the dangers of careless driving by lantern slide reminders of highway tragedies, the District's new traffic school opened weekly sessions at McKinley High School last night with more than 500 enrolled "students" in attendance.

Sponsored by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the safety courses were inaugurated with a detailed description of Washington's traffic problem by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

He cited the present accident toll and appealed for co-operation in efforts to promote highway safety. A similar school was recently started in Milwaukee, Wis., Van Duzer said, and the enrollment has increased to more than 1,800 students—both drivers and nondrivers.

In Washington, the traffic director said, there is an automobile for every 2.6 persons. This, he added, is the largest registration percentage of any city in the country and presents the District with a difficult administration problem.

Drivers' Aid Asked.

And in addition to local traffic, authorities are forced to regulate additional vehicles which enter the city from nearby Maryland and Virginia, Van Duzer pointed out.

"Congestion," said Van Duzer, "breeds accidents and speed breeds deaths. To combat these two evils, we must have the support of every driver in Washington. It is only through co-operation that conditions can be improved."

The need for motorist co-operation was also stressed by Inspector William E. Holmes, the new police traffic supervisor.

"We must stop this killing. I am going to do the best I can to bring about improvements—but we need the support of all drivers," said Inspector Holmes.

Lantern slides vividly portraying several of the city's fatal crashes were described by M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic. Eldridge outlined the school's purpose, explaining that various traffic and police officials will serve as instructors.

The next session will be held Monday in the McKinley High School auditorium. Persons over 18 are eligible for enrollment. The courses are free.

At the same time last night, a course in driving instruction was opened at Roosevelt High School under auspices of the Community Center Department and American Automobile Association.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the women's safety committee, A. A. A., is in charge of this school. It will continue once a week until May 15.

Meanwhile, both the judicial and enforcement branches of local traffic administration yesterday issued new warnings against highway recklessness.

Judge Walter J. Casey, who took the bench in Traffic Court to review motoring cases for the coming month, sounded a death knell to leniency in speed offenses. All traffic law violators who appear before Judge Casey can expect no mercy, he indicated.

"I have no patience with excessive speed," the judge said. "Such cases wil be dealt with severely. I intend to carefully consider al factors in speed offenses and act accordingly."

And yesterday Inspector Holmes visited the First Precinct station to stress enforcement of all regulations governing traffic safety.

Policemen Get Orders.

Policemen—both on foot and motor patrol duty—were impressed with the necessity of safeguarding lives and ordered to follow policies of strict traffic enforcement.

Inspector Holmes' visit to the First Precinct was in line with his announced plan to co-ordinate all traffic activities in the various city police districts. He will visit each station to talk to the policemen and spur them to greater traffic enforcement efficiency.

"As long as I hold the position of traffic supervisor," Inspector Holmes said, "I will not tolerate laxity in traffic law enforcement. The situation must be cleaned up and we are going to leave no stone unturned to improve conditions."

Eight persons were killed in traffic mishaps last month and one so far this month. The year's total now stands at 37. This time last year, 29 deaths had been recorded.

Of the eight fatalities during March, five involved pedestrians—crossing streets not at crosswalks.

Forest Hills Group Opposes New Taxes Proposed in District

The Forest Hills Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution opposing the pending new taxes introduced last week by Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi.

This stand, in support of similar action taken Saturday night by the Federation of Citizens Association, called upon Congress not to enact taxes in excess of the District's needs.

The association also adopted a Friendship Heights resolution asking that a boy's club, with headquarters in Woodrow Wilson High School, be established. F. C. Cissel and L. A. Carruthers were named to confer on the matter with representatives of the Friendship Heights group.

Kenilworth Citizens

The Kenilworth Citizens Association meeting in Kenilworth School, demanded a tax on trucks coming into the District from other States.

After its business session, the association heard a debate on the President's Supreme Court proposal. The debaters, both from the District bar, were Leo N. Maguire, negative, and B. G. Wilkinson, affirmative.

Dupont Circle Citizens

Substituting for an absent speaker, Dr. Harry Garfield, former president of Williams College and the son of President James A. Garfield, spoke before the Dupont Circle Citizens Association on "Street Cleaning."

He called attention to a Cleveland, Ohio, street cleaning committee which functioned several years ago. At one time, he said, the committee consisted of more than 100 members.

Advocating such a committee for the District, Dr. Garfield was authorized by the association, of which he is a member, to discuss his plan with the Street and Park Commission.

At the association's business session, the following members were nominated, unopposed, for office during the coming year: Demarest Lloyd, president; Woodson Houghton, first vice president; W. F. Crosby, second vice president; Rowland Marshall, secretary, and W. H. Gill, treasurer.

North Chevy Chase

Donald B. Simpson was elected chairman of the civic committee of the North Chevy Chase Citizens Association. Mrs. R. H. Simpson was chosen secretary-treasurer.

On the special committee were named Dr. Mason Weadon, Mrs. William Crookson and Seldon Daniel. Alternates were Mrs. A. J. Steffen, Herbert N. Eaton and P. Brooke Amiss.

Citizens of Takoma Park

The Citizens of Takoma Park, D. C., meeting in the Public Library, opposed the pending District tax bills introduced in the House by Representative Collins (Democrat), Mississsippi. They asked that Congress enact taxes in excess of the District's needs.

These officers were elected for the coming year: W. C. Magathan, president; R. H. Fiedler, first vice president; Lewis A. Jones, second vice president; W. H. Parsons, secretary; Carl C. King, corresponding secretary, and Norman E. McIndoo, treasurer. Delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations are R. H. Fiedler and William H. Green.

Georgetown

In response to the association's invitation, E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., spoke before the Progressive Citizens of Georgetown. The association had asked that it be made possible for the women of Georgetown to make a continuous bus trip to downtown Washington.

Merrill, though declaring such a bus line impossible at the present time, said a large number of new buses would be placed in service in July.

Board to Set MinimumPay Is Considered

D. C. Commissioners to Study Enforcement of Law.

Would Have 3 Members; Voided 1923 Scale Is Favored.

A board to push immediately for enforcement of the District's minimum wage law will be considered today by the Commissioners, according to an announcement made yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Simultaneously, Commissioner George E. Allen, agreeing with Hazen against a waste of time, declared he thought the old scale established in 1923 when the Supreme Court held the wage bill unconstitutional, should resume in force until the new board begins to function.

That scale provided minimum wages for women and children, ranging from $15 to $16.50 a week.

This action of the Commissioners, in considering appointment of a new board has been taken as the result of a report by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal. He has advised the Commissioners that the recent decision of the Supreme Court reversing the 1923 verdict, has resurrected the old law.

Three to Be on Board.

The new board will consist of three nonsalaried members. Although the first minimum wage board, alive from 1918 to 1923, received only $5,000 a year for operating expenses, Allen indicated a lack of funds would not hinder appointment of this new board.

Clerical help probably will be given it, Hazen said, by employes from other departments of the District government. In addition, he said, Congress probably would be asked for a deficiency appropriation to finance the board.

Commenting on President Roosevelt's suggestion that the District wage bill be made "model"—that is, include also minimum wages for men—Hazen declared it wiser not to widen the scope of the present bill.

A bill providing, in addition to minimum wages for women and children, minimum wages for men, might be held unconstitutional, he said.

Can Determine Wages.

The new Minimum Wage Board will have authority to establish wages for women and children, and to prosecute employers who fail to pay them. The board will not be forced to follow the wage scale in effect in 1923.

At their meeting today the Commissioners will consider names of possible appointees to the board. The law requires that on the board must be represented employers, employes and the public.

The new board will have the power to investigate wages; to examine books, and to require statements from employers.

Women more than 18 years of age, and all minors, come within the scope of the law. All trades, except domestic service, are affected.

Twins Are Born To Bess Furman, Long With A.P.

Twins were born yesterday in McCook, Nebr., to Mrs. Robert Armstrong, jr., the former Bess Furman, for eight years an Associated Press staff writer in Washington.

Godparents of the children were Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, former Ambassador to Denmark, and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The twins were a boy and a girl. They weigh 7 pounds and 6 pounds 12 ounces, respectively. The son was named Robert Furman and the daughter Ruth Eleanor, after the first Lady and Mrs. Rohde.

Workers Alliance Heads, Hopkins to Meet Today

National officers of the Workers Alliance of America will visit Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The visit is based on a conference between President Roosevelt and David Lasser, national president of the workers' group.

Change of Heart by Congress For D. C. Urged by First Lady

Model Capital Depends Upon New Attitude She Says; Terms Relief Situation Here 'Quite Serious,' Sees More Taxes as Solution.

Making Washington a model city depends largely on a change of attitude by Congress, Mrs. Roosevelt believes. At her press conference yesterday, the First Lady expressed the opinion conditions in the Capital will be improved only when more members of Congress display a vital, constructive and personal interest in local affairs.

Terming the District relief situation as "quite serious," she said proposals for increased taxation seemed to her the only sensible solution to the relief problem.

The difficulty in caring for children who up to now have been sent to the Receiving Home for Children was another subject Mrs. Roosevelt discussed. Commenting on the probability that the home will not be open after July 1 and that boarding homes will be used instead, Mrs. Roosevelt declared, "Placement service is better than institutional service if done under proper supervision. Without adequate investigation and careful supervision, boarding homes can prove to be worse than any institution."

Mrs. Roosevelt expressed herself as much pleased at the appointment of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman as U. S. Minister to Norway, not only because "it is gratifying to have another woman in the Diplomatic Corps," but also because she believes the appointee is admirably fitted for the post.

Asked to comment on the recent minimum wage law for women, Mrs. Roosevelt said she had long been in favor of it, and hoped that various States would take advantage of the opportunity now offered to pass it. When her attention was called to the President's statement to the effect he would like to see the law apply to men also, Mrs. Roosevelt said she did not consider such a law as important for men as for women. "Most men are in trade unions and can bargain for themselves," she said. "The majority of women, especially the younger women in sweat industries, do not belong to a union."

The First Lady's calendar for the week includes a broadcast at 10:30 tonight in connection with the No-Foreign-War crusade. She will speak on a program with Admiral Richard E. Byrd, explorer, and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of New York.

Group Named To Study Need OfUnemployed

Citizens' Mass Meeting Body to Ask $100,000 a Month for Relief.

Under authority bestowed Sunday by the Citizens' Mass Meeting in Behalf of the Unemployed, Coleman Jennings, general chairman of the meeting, will name a committee to carry out the mandates of the meeting, it was announced yesterday. The new committee, to be named at once, probably will meet before the end of the week and will formulate plans for action in accordance with the resolutions adopted Sunday.

In the meantime, the study of the 3,000 "employables" in the District being made by a group of volunteer church workers under the direction of Miss Louise O. Beall, of the Family Service Association, continues to develop tragic stories.

It is probable that the first efforts of the new committee will be directed toward obtaining a deficiency appropriation of at least $100,000 a month for relief purposes during the balance of the present fiscal year. This money is needed at once, it is pointed out, to relieve a situation that grows more and more desperate as each day rolls by.

"These people we are trying to help are very real personages," Chairman Jennings said yesterday. "One has only to spend a few minutes at the headquarters of the survey now being made by the churches and the Family Service Association to obtain first-hand information on just how desperate this situation is."

"Volunteer workers from the various churches, reporting to Miss Beall at 1500 Sixteenth street northwest, bring tales of suffering that are almost beyond belief. An average of 25 families per week are being evicted officially. This does not take into account the ones that are thrown out of rooming houses where there is no record of the eviction. These latter do not form such a spectacular picture because they rent furnished rooms and have no belongings to be piled on the sidewalks.

"Tales of overcrowding, or insanitary living conditions, of families broken up because the bread winner cannot stay at home and see his loved ones starve are common stories in the daily reports of these workers."

Meeing in the District Building, members of the Department Council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars last night indorsed a program of aiding the District's jobless "employables."

The movement was adopted unanimously. The group went on record as asking the District and the Federal Government to provide funds for the jobless here.

Iago Galdston Assails Health Advertisements

Emphasis Placed Wrong, Famous Physician Tells Institute.

Topping the all-day program of the Health Instruction Institute here yesterday, Dr. Iago Galdston, executive secretary of the New York Academy of Medicine, puckered his heavy face, grew introspective and said a little sadly that no one seems interested in health for health's sake alone.

He told the meeting, which was sponsored by the District Tuberculosis Association and the public schools, that ofttimes he looks at advertisements with some bewilderment.

He wondered why they didn't emphasize the calories in the cookery or say bluntly that "the way to a man's heart is through his belly." Galdston, who writes prolifically on medical topics, spoke heavily during the afternoon session on "The Psychology of Teaching Health," but last night he spoke lightly, "inspirationally," as he put it.

He recalled how he began it all with the study of liberal arts, which, he said, was neither liberal nor art, and how early he concluded that the Greeks were the only people who ever had an adequate contempt of health. And he told the meeting that he had no formula for bigger and better boys and girls, but withal urged an adequate health association in the schools.

This was the theme of the meeting. It was stressed by speakers in sessions that began at 2 o'clock in the public schools and wound up at 9:30 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. It was the first meeting of the sort ever held, but Dr. J. G. Townsend, president of the Tuberculosis association, said it may develop into an annual enterprise as a stimulus toward health education.

Miss Katherine Lenroot, head of the United States Children's Bureau, pointed out that much disease is result of economic conditions—bad housing, bad living conditions in general—and said that the better favored sections are immediately concerned in this.

6 Are Seized In 'Clean-up' GamingRaids

Numbers, Racing Slips Confiscated; Two Women Held.

7 Treasury Employes Are Suspended for Taking Bets.

Six persons were seized late yesterday in what police termed "clean-up" raids on four alleged gambling establishments.

Another development of the day was an announcement by Treasury Department officials that seven messengers and laborers in the department had been suspended on charges of taking numbers bets. The suspensions followed an investigation by the Secret Service.

Two suspensions were for 60 days and 5 for 30 days. Numerous other employes were warned to stop playing the numbers, it was reported. The suspended workers, officials said, admitted taking wagers as agents for a policy syndicate.

Entering a barber shop in the 700 block of O street northwest, the police raiders took into custody two men.

On the second floor of the shop, formerly an elaborate gambling den operated by James (Micky) McDonald, police found hundreds of race bet slips, dust-covered as if they had lain there many months.

No Charges Placed.

At Police Headquarters the men gave their names as James Myers, 21, 800 block, O street northwest, and Timothy Caton, 34, 1300 block, East Capitol street. No charges were placed against them.

In the first block of I street northwest an elderly woman was arrested. Police refused to reveal her name, but said she probably would be released. The raiders said they had a warrant for several men who were not in the place.

A 23-year-old blonde and a colored man were seized in the 1300 block G street northwest by Lieut. John H. Fowler, who entered the place with a warrant charging the woman with conspiracy to violate gaming laws. A quantity of alleged racing slips was confiscated.

The woman gave her name as Grace V. Rawlins, 23, 1000 block of K street northeast. She was held at the Woman's Bureau. The colored man held for investigation was identified as Lloyd Patterson, 33, 1700 block Corcoran street northwest.

Apartment Is Raided.

The fourth raiding party smashed into an apartment in the 3500 block of Fourteenth street northwest, armed with a warrant for one man. He was not there, but police took into custody another man found in the place. He had not been booked last night.

Lieut. Floyd Truscott, who has engineered the more than 50 raids on gambling estqablishments during the last month, said the raids yesterday were merely to "clean up" some loose ends.

Meanwhile, 17 men seized in gambling raids in Ninth street establishments Saturday were released on bonds totaling $41,500 when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday.

All of the men pleaded not guilty to the charge of conspiracy to violate gaming laws.

Romantic Pair To Honeymoon By Time Table

Rigid Schedule for Hawaii Trip Is Laid Down for Popular Blondes.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, April 5.—Plans for the clockwork romance of Jeannette MacDonald and Gene Raymond—which read as if they might have been arranged by the War Department—now include a scheduled honeymoon in Hawaii.

The methodical couple, who months ago set June 17 as their wedding day, have already booked passage to the islands aboard the steamship Lurline, and are now getting down to the details.

As a result of a wangling campaign which began early last fall, each has obtained a six weeks' leave of absence beginning June 16.

Must Make Pictures.

Each must do a picture between now and that time, but schedules have been arranged so they will have ample time to complete all plans.

In the meantime they are homesite hunting in the San Fernando Valley, beyond the Hollywood Hills, and will decide on a spot within a day or two.

Building of their new home will begin immediately, and furnishings will be preordered and installed, together with a staff of servants, while they are running through the honeymoon schedule, so they can move in on return without loss of a moment.

Wouldn't it be tough if the preacher failed to show up on time?

Una Merkle is ready to give up trying to shake her synthetic Southern accent.

Although born in Covington, Ky she never had a drawl of her own, having been educated in New York and Philadelphia, but acquired the cornbread lingo for business reasons during the two years she played "Coquette" with Helen Hayes.

That was eight or nine years ago, but Hollywood has kept her sweet-mouthing in "down South" parts ever since.

Her diction coach says she's practically hopeless now.

Taylor for Blue Book.

With at least as much eclat as Ringling Brothers' circus entering Pine Bluff, Ark., Robert Taylor, curly-haired sex-appeal expert from Beatrice, Nebr., will enter this year's fat red volume of "Who's Who in America." Taylor has just received a form letter from the publishers asking details of his life to be immortalized for posterity.

Director Norman McLeod did the gallant thing when former stars Hedda Hooper, Claire Windsor and Betty Blythe appeared on the Hal Roach lot to play bits in "Topper." He greeted each with a huge bouquet of roses.

Spain Intervenes On Factory Crises

The Spanish Embassy said last night that where industrial plants deserted by managers are being operated by employes the government now stationed at Valencia has "decreed immediate intervention."

"This measure is enforced by responsible and duly authorized government agencies," an embassy spokesman said. "It has been taken only in order to meet the emergency at hand."

The embassy stated the Spanish government emphasized "that all financial obligations are being met under due financial process; loans are being amortized and interest coupons are being paid, all as part of normal banking operations."

Chinese Leader Sweeps Emperor-Kin's Tomb

Nanking, April 5 (AP).—The Nationalist leader Wang Ching-wei wielded a broom today to clean the tomb of Emperor Hung We, founder of the Ming Dynasty which ended an alien Mongol reign in the fourteenth century. It was part of ceremonies honoring ancient patriots and great Emperors.

Wang said the tomb "symbolized the glorification of the national spirit" as he carried out the Chinese custom, centuries old, of journeying at this season to ancestors' tombs, cleansing them and offering sacrifices.

Japanese Royal Couple Quits Canada for U. S.

Ottawa, April 5 (AP).—Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan left Ottawa late today for New York to sail Wednesday for London, where the Prince will represent Emperor Hirohito, his brother, at the coronation of King George VI.

For three days the imperial couple have been guests of the Canadian government. Premier W. L. MacKenzie King and several members of the cabinet said goodby at the station.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Roundup of Screen Story Material Insures a High Quality of Output for 1937-38, as Forecast by Will H. Hays; Fairbanks, Pere, Sells Out to Goldwyn for 'Marco Polo;' Roadside Theater Makes Known Plans for Coming Summer; 'Of Human Bondage' Added at Rialto Today; Theater Notes.

PURSUANT to Will H. Hays' suggestion—briefly outlined here yesterday—that a "universal audience" is being acquired by the films through the persistent determination of the producers of motion pictures to present upon the screens of the world the best works of fiction, biography, history and the drama, it is interesting to note that what the Motion Picture Herald designates "a mass round-up of story material for 1937-38 production" was consummated in March, when 16 Hollywood producing organizations purchased 53 vehicles for the screen.

BELL.

This would seem to indicate that the West Coast producers will continue to follow the course during the next few months that has been so successful during the year just past.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was the heaviest purchaser of story material in March, with six originals, three books and two plays articled for. Paramount was next with five original stories and one play, and Twentieth Century-Fox bought three originals, one book and one play. Warner Brothers, Universal and Republic Pictures each took four properties, Columbia bought two originals; Selznick Intrenational, two novels; Condor Pictures, two originals, and Reliable Pictures the same.

General Pictures, Grand National, Walter Wanger, Monogram and Samuel Goldwyn each acquired one.

A cursory examination of the list of works taken over for picturization—which, needless to say, is much too voluminous for reproduction here—indicates a perpetuation of the film-makers' purpose to bring to the silver sheet many of the most impressive of modern as well as standard works of fiction and the living theater, dealing with a broad range of subject matter and offering opportunity for the visualization of many stories and plays of enduring worth.

This is a distinctly salutary sign and the announcement of the motion picture industry's buying activity during last month comes opportunely upon the heels of "General" Hays' annual report as tangible corroboration of the optimism which it reflected.

* * * *

Speaking of Samuel Goldwyn, as we were somewhere back there, the postman whistles at the front gate and hands us this bulletin from Douglas Fairbanks, sr., momentarily in his native land: "Because of my desire to withdraw from the coproducership of 'The Adventures of Marco Polo' in order to devote my time to individual production of my own, Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, my close friend and associate, today has purchased all of my rights to this forthcoming production."

So that is that, for what it may be worth in your life and mine.

* * * *

First word that the Roadside Theater will be in operation again this summer comes in the form of an announcement yesterday that Anton Hardt will direct all of the barn productions for 1937. This marks a distinct departure from the policy followed in previous years, when Roadside productions were alternately under the charge of two directors.

With the production of "The Octoroon," Roadside's first attraction, Mr. Hardt established himself as an ace reviver of old, blood-and-thunder melodramas. His subsequent hits include "Murder in the Red Barn," presented in the old red barn so many times that its flamboyant lines still cling to the moldering rafters, and the manuscript play done last summer, "Windmills in Manhattan."

This year he will direct seven plays in a period of 14 weeks, one of the most pretentious schedules ever attempted by a director not employing full-time actors. Mr. Hardt at present is serving on the faculty of the Hilda Spong School of Drama in New York.

Miss Spong, by the way, will be recalled by old-timers among Washington theatergoers as a member of the old Columbia Theater Players when Wilton Lackaye, Charlotte Walker, later the wife of Eugene Walter, playwright, and the late Sir Guy Standing—then merely Guy Standing, an upstanding English actor, if you can overlook the unintentional pun—were the leading members of the cast. That was a mere 30 years ago!

* * * *

The list of nearby suburban theaters was increased by one last night with the opening of the Reed Theater in Alexandria, Va. The house has a seating capacity of 1,300 and was designed and erected by John Zink, theater architect of Baltimore, Md., who also built the Rialto, Uptown and other Washington picture houses. The Reed is conveniently located near the George Washington Memorial, with parking space for approximately 1,000 cars.

* * * *

"Of Human Bondage," instead of short-reel subjects, as suggested in yesterday's review, will be added to the bill at the Rialto Theater today as companion feature with "The Robber Symphony," to pick up the vacant time made available by the elimination of the symphony orchestra, conducted by Frederick Feher through last night.

"Of Human Bondage" costars Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, with a splendid supporting cast in the secondary roles. This is the picture for which this column always has felt that Miss Davis should have received the Academy award.

Magda Sonja, who in private life is Mrs. Feher; Hans Feher, who plays the boy lead in the picture, and his black dog, Sultan, will continue to make personal appearances throughout the current week at the Rialto.

Under the co-chairmanship of Sam Galanty and Harry Brown, the Variety Club, embracing practically all of the showmen in the Washington territory in its membership, will hold its annual golf tournament at the Congressional Country Club on Friday, May 7. The families and friends of the members will be included in the outing and prizes will be awarded in profusion. This event may be relied upon to turn in some of the weirdest cards in the history of the ancient Scottish game!

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, April 5.—Idol chatter: Wonder if Miriam Hopkins is just being clever, romancing with her directors? She seems to get so many close-ups. Nelson Eddy never ceases being amazed over being paid for doing the one thing he likes to do: Sing. Bet when Clark Gable sees pictures of telephone poles swept down in floods, he is glad he changed his racket. Contrast in sisters: Demure Olivia de Havilland, and emotional, Jeanne Eagles-type Joan Fontaine.

Errol Flynn ought to indorse a toothpaste, because he looks it. Funny that Edna Mae Oliver, whose screen sniff is famous, never gets head colds. Candidate for Gallery-of-Gorgeous-Figures: Virginia Field. Harold Lloyd is a devotee of telepathy. No scene more realistic than the coming of the locust plague in "The Good Earth." Gene Raymond seems to get a kick out of hearing Robert Taylor called "Pretty Boy."

Loretta Young falls head-over-heels in love at least once a year. After "Craig's Wife," two masculine fans wrote letters to Rosalind Russell (who played the mean Mrs.) and withdrew previous marriage proposals. Mack Gordon, who jolts the scales to 350, composed the song, "Floating Like a Feather in the Breeze." Actors on sets smoke cigarets like amateurs, holding them gingerly to keep from spoiling makeup. Shirley Temple's mother spends a weekly hour opening gifts sent to her daughter.

I have commented more than once on the simple happiness that prevails in the Joel McCrea-Frances Dee household. I probably will comment many more times, because such idealistic bliss is worthy of notice. I was standing near Frances the other morning when a friend said to her, "I never see you and Joel at night clubs. What do you do for entertainment?"

Miss Dee hesitated an instant, then responded, "Why, nothing much, I guess. We never seem to think of it, what with our ranch and home and children."

Dick Powell tells me of this amusing experience when he and Joan Blondell were seeking a new maid. A colored lass applied and seemed satisfactory, so Joan was ready to hire her. Knowing some of the picture jargon (but understanding little of it), the Negro girl said she would take the job if they would give her a six-month contract. Powell, somewhat surprised, asked, "With options?" "Nevah mind 'bout them," the would-be maid replied, "but ah does insist on a private bath."

During the icy spell and flu epidemic that discomforted the colony a few weeks ago, stars were receiving thousands of letters from the East, asking if sunny California was really cold. George Brent answered many such letters by sending photographs showing his house almost buried under snow drifts.

As a gag, he obtained a ton of "prop" snow and piled it Swiss Alps effect. He had such fun with the still photographs, he decided that motion pictures should be taken. But they never were, because one day George's "snow" disappeared. Manufactured of bleached corn flakes, it had attracted neighbors' chickens, and they practically cleaned up the stuff.

H. C. Feller Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Henry C. Feller, 79, who died Sunday in the Portner Apartments, will be held tomorrow in Hines funeral parlors, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native of Woodstock, Va., Mr. Feller was in the hotel business for a number of years before coming to Washington. He held executive positions in hotels at Cumberland, Md., Deer Park, Md., and Baltimore. He engaged in the building business here from 1910 to 1928.

Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Emma Lyon, in whose apartment he died, and Mrs. James H. Jarman, also of this city; a son, Henry C. Feller, jr., and four sisters, Mrs. Parker H. Sweet, this city; Mrs. Mary Wicks, New Market, Va.; Mrs. Jennie Kingree, Woodstock, and another sister who lives in California.

Jurist Reaches 80; Retains U. S. Post

Denver, April 5 (AP).—One of the oldest members of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in the United States attained his eightieth birthday today and avowed his intention to "keep on working."

Robert E. Lewis, senior judge of the Tenth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in Denver, mused over his 31 years in the judiciary.

Asked if he had any intention of retiring Judge Lewis said he "may get off any day. You can't tell, and I may stay for years. There is alway nature's act of removal to be considered: "I can't be put off. Of course, if I get so I can't do my work they can appoint another judge to the court. But I feel like I can hold up my end for a while longer."

Contract Bridge

From the First-Aid Kit.

The method of playing any combination of cards should vary according to the trick objective. If declarer can afford to lose a trump trick and still make his contract, he should not attempt the same line of play that would be necessary if he could afford to lose no trump tricks. This is one of those super-obvious factors that should require no restatement, but unfortunately even the super-obvious is not always observed at the bridge table. Consider the trump situation in the hand shown below.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North:
♠ A J 10
♡ 10 4
◇ K J 7 5
♣ K 10 4 2

West:
♠ 5
♡ K J 9 7
◇ 9 8 6 4 3
♣ A 9 3

East:
♠ 8 7 6 4 3 2
◇ A Q 10 2
♣ 8 6 5

South:
♠ K Q 9
♡ A Q 8 6 5 3 2
♣ Q J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 N T	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, with the hope of making three heart tricks, opened the Ace of clubs and, when East, played low, shifted to the nine of diamonds. Dummy played the Jack, East the Queen and South ruffed.

With no tricks to lose outside the trump suit itself, declarer made the "normal" play of laying down his Ace. After that West's three heart tricks became a certainity, and the contract went down to defeat.

It should have been an easy matter for declarer to see that the one chance of losing the contract depended on finding all four of the missing cards banked against him. But since it would not be fatal to find all four in East's hand, where they would be under the Ace-Queen, declarer's only precaution should have been against four in West's hand. Thus, instead of the Ace, a low trump should have been led toward dummy's ten.

If West should follow to this trick (as, of course, he would have done in this hand), the ten-spot would perform the vital function of winning a trick instead of dropping fruitlessly underenath an honor. No matter how the missing K J 9 7 of hearts had been distributed, this play to the ten would be an insurance policy. If they were split 3-1, no more than two heart tricks could be lost regardless of declarer's play.

If West failed to follow on the lead to the ten, East would be trapped on a subsequent heart lead from dummy.

The entire crux of the hand was that declarer could afford to lose two heart tricks but not three.

Newsmen to Hear Lusitania Salvager

Capt. John Craig, chief diver of the Ophir, the ship which is to salvage gold from the safe of the sunken Lusitania, will address a luncheon meeting of the National Press Club Tuesday at 12:30 p. m.

Capt. Craig, a 32-year-old native of Cincinnati who received part of his education in India, will return to England to resume salvage operations on the ship, the sinking of which off the Ireland coast played a major part in the entry of the United States in the World War.

The Argonaut Corporation of Scotland, is conducting the salvage operations.

Jewish Return To Synagogue Asked by Rabbi

Brooklyn Cleric, in Talk Here, Attacks Weakness of His Church.

"Jewish life is losing its last bit of blood," Rabbi Israel Herbert Levinthal, of the Brooklyn Jewish Center, told an audience of 300 persons at a joint meeting of the Adas Israel and B'nai Israel congregations last night at the Adas Israel Synagogue, Sixth and I streets northwest.

Speaking for the United Synagogue of America and the Committee to Combat Religious Indifference, Rabbi Levinthal decried the decline and weakness of synagogues throughout the United States. He called the synagogue a "spiritual power house," a "dynamo" pumping inspiration into the Jewish heart.

Modern indifference, he said, is due to the weakness of the synagogue. "Bring back the synagogue to the Jew, and the Jew to the synagogue, and everything will be solved." Jewish life, he continued, needs strengthening now more than ever before, due to enemies in Poland, Germany and other countries.

Referring to the symbols of Jewish worship as "our weapons," he said: "With these weapons we can conquor all our enemies, without these weapons we are lost, defeated, gone."

Robbi Levinthal was introduced by Representative Herman P. Kopplemann (Democrat), Connecticut, who praised the United Synagogue of America, asking for support of it.

Other speakers were Morris Stein, chairman of the local committee to combat religious indifference; Joseph A. Wilner, president of Adas Isreal Congregation; Paul Himmelfarb, president of B'nai Isreal Congregation, and Rabbi Henry Seagal, of B'nai Isreal. An octet, led by Samuel Bugatch, sang three selections.

2 D. C. Residents On Promotion List

Names of two District of Columbia residents were on the list of Presidential nominations sent to the Senate yesterday. Ralph A. Boernstein, of 2923 Ordway street northwest, a foreign service of Class 7, was among the 18 persons promoted from Class 7 to Class 6, and Kenneth J. Yearns was on the list of 28 men on the list promoted from unclassified to Class 8, and from vice consul of career to the position of consul.

A member of the Foreign Service since 1916, Boernstein has served in the passport division of the State Department for the past seven years. Previous to that he was in the United States foreign office in Naples. Yearns, who is United States vice consul in Tientsin, China, is now in Washington on a four months' leave of absence. He is visiting his mother, Mrs. Dora M. Yearns, of 1714 Kenyon street northwest.

U. S. Court in N. Y. Upholds HOLC Act

New York, April 5 (AP).—Constitutionally of the home owners loan act was upheld today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The ruling affirmed the validity of appropriations, administration and penalties assessed by the measure. The court upheld the conviction and sentence of Miss Gertrude Kay, Brooklyn real estate operator. Indicted on 21 counts charging she accepted fees from home owners on pretense that she could expedite HOLC loans, a Federal jury assessed her a year sentence. She appealed, charging the act was invalid.

New Minimum Pay Law To Be Drafted in N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—Likelihood that New York State again will enact minimum wage legislation for women and minors similar to that held unconstitutional less than a year ago, became almost a certainty tonight.

Proposed legislation, patterned after the invalidated 1933 Wald act was sponsored tonight by Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in a strongly worded message to the Legislature. Men would not be included under terms of the measure.

Linke's Triple in Ninth Beats Cards, 4-3, to End Slump

Newsom's Good Work Aids Cause

Pitcher's Triple in 9th With Millies on Base Wins Contest.

Newsom Yields Six Hits, But Gives Up Only 1 Run in 6 Frames.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—The Nats today found somebody they could lick and brought their four-game losing streak to a gratifying stop. But it was no upset, because they were rematched with the St. Louis Cardinals, who had a winning percentage of exactly .000 in three previous battles with the Nats this spring.

But there was nevertheless some doubt as to how it was all going to end, even as late as the ninth inning when the ball game finally blew up in the faces of the Gas House Gang. The score, 4-3, wasn't much to brag about, but Ed Linke was.

Big red-faced Linke had been having a very unhappy time of it after relieving Buck Newsom in the seventh, with the Nats in possession of a 3-1 lead. He got by the seventh, but he pitched two runs to the Gas Hause Gang in the eighth when they tied the score.

Linke was perilously close to the Nats' penal colony at Chattanooga as a result of his wastrel pitching in that eighth, but in the ninth he saw the thing to a happy finish.

Walter Millies whacked a single to center against Rookie Chambers to launch the Nats' ninth and then the cherubic Linke strode to the plate. Manager Bucky Harris, with Linke's ninth-inning home run against Chattanooga the other day still fresh in his memory, disdained the use of a pinch hitter for the pitcher.

The Cardinals detected the bunt sign and Third Baseman Gutteridge was playing within expectorating distance of the plate, when Manager Harris abruptly changed his signals to Linke. He told Linke to hit, and the fat pitcher didn't tarry.

Linke's bat slammed against Chambers' second pitch, a screaming line drive rocketed into deep centerfield, and two Cardinal outfielders were still chasing it when Millies galloped across the plate on a sprint from first base. It was no bunt, and was scored as a triple for Linke.

Louie Norman Newsom had an important hand in the Nats' triumph—his right hand, which was releasing a deadly fire of fast balls toward the Cardinals during those first six innings while the Nats were compiling their 3-1 lead.

The recapitulation of Cardinal hit is not so impressive for Buck—they made six off him—but they couldn't dent the plate after the first inning, when Newsom's only walk of the game was translated into a run after Frisch singled to left.

Buck delighted the 1,500 natives in the stands when he held the Cardinals scoreless in the third after Bordagaray and Stu Martin, the first two men to face him, rapped out singles. He disposed of Frisch on a ground ball and then, with evident satisfaction, struck out the next two guys—Padgett and Mize, who were supposed to be the Cards' clean-up hitters.

The Nats' wiped out the Cards' 1-0 lead in the second when Travis belted a triple to right and beat Frisch's throw to the plate on Mihalic's grounder. Mihalic, who was safe on first, galloped home by easy stages on Hogan's single to right and Mr. Newsom's single to center.

The left-handed Bob Weiland, a reformed American leaguer, was the victim of this assault and the Nats greeted Mike Ryba, his successor, with a run in the fifth. It all started when Buddy Lewis laid down a perfect bunt toward third, and Ryba threw the ball into Orlando's main drag in an attempt to get him at

Baseball Rained Out, They Play Basketball

Montanez Is Winner Over Titlist

Puerto Rican Decisive Victor Despite Late Rally by Ambers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.—Despite his rival's brisk finish, Pedro Montanez, senastional Puerto Rico puncher, kept his winning streak intact tonight by decisively whipping the lightweight champion, Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., in a ten-round non-title match before 17,000 customers at Madison Square Garden. Ambers scaled 137, 2 pounds over the class limit, and Montanez, 138½.

Montanez nearly knocked the title holder out in the first round. He knocked Ambers to one knee with a terrific right cross that glanced off Lou's chin, after jolting his rival with the first punch he threw. The Puerto Rican was unable to capitalize this advantage in his quest for a quick victory, nor was he able to put Ambers down at any subsequent stage of the bout.

The champion was in retreat, however, and subjected to a severe beating through the first six rounds as he fought chiefly on the defensive and relied on his speed to save him from Montanez's punching dynamite.

A rally that Ambers began in the seventh round and which reached its climax with a spectacular flurry in the tenth failed to offset the big advantage Montanez had on points.

Ambers, apart from his ability to tie up Montanez at close range, showed no aggressiveness nor willingness to swap punches until the final round. As the Puerto Rican tried wildly to land a haymaker, Ambers put on a real closing spurt. He outboxed and outpunched Pedro so decisively in the last minute that he had the big crowd in an uproar and prompted a loud outburst of disapproval when the verdict was announced.

The decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and the two judges, Chraley Lynch and Marty Monroe, was unanimous in the Puerto Rican's favor. Ringside critics were somewhat divided on the effect of Ambers' rally, but most score sheets showed a clear margin for Montanez.

Regatta Sailing Races Are Shifted

The dates for the sailing races of the President's Cup Regatta were shifted to an earlier week in September yesterday by the regatta committee. Chairman James Councilor announced that the sailing events will be held Friday and Saturday prior to the regatta, which is slated for September 24 and 25.

One reason for the shift was to entice a better quality field which would not be able to take part during the regatta proper because of limitation to one day's program. It was also pointed out that the powerboats practice several days before the races and would conflict with the course on which the sailing races are scheduled.

The races will be held in the Georgetown Channel.

D. C. Course Gets PGA Trial Play

Indian Spring Named as Qualifying Site; 3 Officers Picked.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Officially installing George Diffenbaugh as president, electing three officers under him, and approving the Indian Spring course as the qualifying trials for the National P. G. A., occupied a four-hour session of the Middle Atlantic pros at Indian Spring yesterday.

Ralph Beach, Suburban Club of Baltimore, was elected first vice president; Bobby Cruickshank, Country Club of Virginia in Richmond, second vice president, and Bill Schrieber, of the Mount Pleasant course in Baltimore, was retained as secretary-treasurer.

Three members of the local body will qualify for the P. G. A. tourney in Pittsburgh in the 36-hole qualifying rounds over the Indian Spring course on Thursday, April 29.

A pro-amateur event at Indian Spring on Monday, April 19, was posted as the first event on the tournament schedule, also released at the meeting. The event will also serve as a practice test for the pros for the PGA trials there the following week.

A rumored break in the Baltimore and Washington factions, expected to flare up in the meeting, was smoothed over with a stronger and closer bound body resulting. More than 40 pros attended the meeting, one of the most highly satisfactory in the history of the group.

Rain prevented a scheduled pro-amateur tournament, carded after the meeting. Erine Caldwell, Spencer Overton and Nathan Kaufman, Baltimore simon-pure aces, were on hand, but were not able to play, as were Volney Burnett, Eddie Bean and other local aces.

Al Houghton, formerly connected with Bannockburn and Kenwood Clubs, announced a new tourney added to the usual schedule, at Old Point Comfort, Va., on May 10. The Chamberlain Hotel, Houghton's backer, will add a $100 purse to the entrance fees. It will be a regulation, pro-sweepstakes open. All local amateurs will be invited.

Congressional, Beaver Dam and Manor were the other Washington clubs drawing tourneys, the remainder going to Baltimore and Virginia courses. Congressional will draw a lady pro event with the other two clubs sponsoring pro-amateurs.

Several other weekly tourneys will be sandwiched in the regular schedule. They will be announced later. Congressional's lady pro event is an added feature of the card. Three women golfers with handicaps will play with each professional.

The complete tournament schedule.

April 19—Pro-amateur at Indian Spring, three amateurs with each professional; full club handicaps.

April 29—Qualifying rounds, Indian Spring, for National P. G. A. tournament at Pittsburgh Field Club, Aspinwall, Pa.; three Middle Atlantic pros to qualify; 36 holes, medal play.

May 10—Pro sweepstakes, amateurs invited; $100 added purse; Chamberlain Country Club, Old Point Comfort, Va.

May 24—Pro-pro Scotch foursome, Mt. Pleasant Club, Baltimore.

July 19—Pro-pro best ball tourney, Rolling Road Club, Baltimore.

August 9—Pro-amateur, handicap allowance, Beaver Dam.

August 30—Pro sweepstakes, course to be selected in Richmond, Va.

September 20—Pro-amateur, one-half State handicap, Suburban C. C., Baltimore.

November 1—Pro-amateur, handicap allowance, Rodgers Forge Club, Baltimore.

Browns Are Beaten.

San Antonio, Texas, April 5.—The St. Louis Browns weakened in the ninth inning after rallying in the eighth to tie the score and dropped an exhibition baseball game to the Kansas City Blues of the American Association, 8 to 6, here today.

Ray Ingram Shades Camarata at Arena

Featherweights in Close Scrap All the Way, but Victor Gets Unanimous Verdict; Loser's Fouls Costly; Winner Wobbly but Recovers.

By Bill McCormick.

Ray Ingram, ranked eighth among the featherweights of the world, won a unanimous decision from Nick Camarata, who is No. 10 on the list, in as pretty a boxing bout as one could wish to see at Turner's Arena last night.

The fight was as close as the rankings of the two fine featherweights, but the award to Ingram did not deserve the concerted booing which was set up by that portion of the capacity crowd which had probably laid odds of 8 to 5 on Camarata.

Camarata was penalized the first two rounds for low blows. Without those penalties he might have been entitled to a draw, and then again he might not have earned a stalemate. The wallops below the equator probably took a bit of steam from Raymond.

To say that the transplanted New Orleans boy deliberately punched below the bread-basket line would be an injustice. Ingram's jumping-into-the-air style probably accounted for the thumps going astray, but they hurt, nevertheless.

Not Deliberate Punches.

After Camarata was publicly warned, it was every man for himself, with both sides resorting to every trick of the trade to gain an advantage.

Camarata was the sharpshooter. He laid back with his right cocked, letting that right go whenever he saw an opening—or thought he saw one. Not until the last round, however, did this punch have Ingram in difficulty.

In that round, Ingram, eager for a knockout to clinch his victory, threw all caution to the atmosphere and ripped in pumping both hands to the head and body. Nicky nailed him with two rights that had Raymond a bit wobbly, but he weathered the slight storm in expert fashion.

Ingram weaved, bobbed, jumped in the air and danced around with the adroitness of a Ray Bolger to befuddle his opponent most of the time. While going through these convolutions, Raymond kept shooting punches, aiming first at the head, then at the body and back again to the head with a nice change of pace.

Threw Caution Away.

The winner had one bad fault through the fight. Whenever he tossed his right, he invariably dropped is own left, leaving himself open for retaliation from either hand. Had it not been for this shortcoming, Ingram might have won by a much wider margin.

Ossie Stewart, colored Pittsburgh middleweight, scored a sensational third-round knockout over Rudy Marshall, of Philadelphia, in a semifinal booked for six rounds.

After a fairly even first round, Stewart jumped into a commanding second-round lead by flooring Rudy for nine.

Late in the third Ossie knocked Marshall clear through the ropes into the laps of ringside spectators with a terrific right to the chin. Rudy dangled on his head for a second or two, found his feet and scrambled back at the count of nine.

Referee Denny Hughes refused to allow him to continue and declared Stewart the winner on a technical knockout after 2 minutes and 30 seconds.

Clarence Sloat, Baltimore welterweight, scored a fifth-round technical knockout over Paul Scaffaro, of New York, in a preliminary scheduled for six rounds. Badly beaten anyway, Scaffaro was unable to answer the bell for the final round because of a broken right thumb.

In a brace of four-rounders, Hunter Crostic shaded Sam Bracala and Ole Anderson won a unanimous decision from Mike O'Leary.

5 Knockouts Feature Louisville Fight Card

Louisville, Ky., April 5 (AP).—Five knockouts featured a five event boxing card here tonight.

In the main event, Wishy Jones, Houston, stopped Henry Huerta, Peoria, in the seventh of a scheduled 10-round bout. Cecil Powell, Frankfort, kayoed Tony Urso, Cincinnati, and Joe Valla, Louisville, stopped Joe Baker, Cincinnati.

National City Leagues.

The National City "A" League will hold a meeting tonight at the Atlas Sports Store, and the "B" circuit will meet tomorrow night. Both meetings will be at 8 p. m.

Catholic Prep Loop To Be Organized

A Catholic Prep School Conference for Washington and Baltimore in football and basketball will be founded Saturday when representatives of six schools will convene there.

Largely through the efforts of St. John's High of Washington, plans for the league have proceeded far past a tentative stage. Five other schools, Gonzaga of Washington, Georgetown Prep of Garrett Park, Md., and Mount St. Joseph's, Calvert Hall and Loyola of Baltimore, are eager to organize.

The meeting Saturday will be held at Mount St. Joseph's. Representing St. John's will be Coach Irving (Horse) Holbrook, with Coach Orrel Mitchell for Gonzaga, and Coach Ed Hargaden for Georgetown Prep.

Rep. Cannon's Quiz Plea Held Sabotage

Wisconsin Congressman's Demand That Major Leagues Be Probed on Monopoly Charge Draws Violent Objection From Owner of Nats.

By Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—Clark Griffith, 67-year-old owner of the Washington Club, today took violent issue with Representative Raymond J. Cannon, who has demanded a Federal investigation of organized baseball on charges that club owners are violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

The reserve caluse in the player's contract which Cannon has cited as a restraint of trade in that players are compelled to sign at the clubowner's terms or face a virtual boycott in baseball, is vitally necessary to the maintenance of organized baseball, Mr. Griffith declared.

Mr. Griffith defended the reserve clause as a protection of the player in that otherwise organized baseball with its high salaries could not continue if players were permitted to change teams without permission of the owners.

The Nats' owner made the following prepared statement:

"Tampering with the reserve clause would not only stop the progress and growth of our great national pastime, but would kill altogether the big salaries and great benefits accruing each year to the boys and men who play the game.

"Very Life of Sport."

"Every ball player knows that the life of his trade depends on the reserve clause and that competition between teams of equal strength is the very life of his business and without which his salary would be naught.

"The Supreme Court has already decided that the reserve clause in a player's contract is necessary to maintain the high wages that players receive, and necessary also to the life of organized baseball.

"The present policy of our Government, as I understand it, is to arrange matters so business might live and that the employes may have an equitable scale of wages. The reserve clause makes all this possible.

"Unions Unlikely."

"Further, there can be no unionization in the players' line for reason that there can be no one scale of wages. Imagine for instance, a player who signed his contract for $10,000, going on a sit-down strike waiting for Lou Gehrig or Dizzy Dean to get a $50,000 salary.

"Baseball today is an inviting field for young men and offers opportunity for rapid advancement and high earnings. Any move tending to disrupt its conduct would be a ruinous blow to the game and thousands of young Americans' prospects of a livelihood."

McGinnis Dies, Was Leading Jockey in '36

Steeplechase Rider Was 25; Complained of an Earache Earlier.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., July 5.—Paul McGinnis, the leading steeplechase rider in this country last year, died tonight at his Baltimore home. McGinnis complained of an earache and died a few hours after being admitted to a hospital. A native of Detroit, 25 years old, he had been associated with racing half his life. Although he was best known for his steeplechase riding, McGinnis also was a flat race pilot and did the unusual last fall at Pimlico by riding a jumper and a flat racer to victory on the same program.

McGinnis was under contract to John Bosley, trainer for the steeplechase horses of H. R. Bain, Canadian sportsman. He had been helping condition steeplechasers at the Pimlico track.

Last year McGinnis won with 9 of 28 mounts and was astride Rockland when the gelding won the International Steeplechase Handicap at Belmont Park. He also rode for the Seagram stable.

He is survived by his widow, his mother and a brother and a sister.

Faulkner, Farrington In Badminton Final

Waldron Faulkner, city badminton champion, faces Max Farrington of George Washington University's coaching staff, in the finals of the National Capital tournament tonight at Eastern High School gymnasium.

The match will start at 8:15 with the mixed doubles semifinals at 9 p. m. and the finals at 9:45 p. m.

Bright and Early Captures Bowie Feature on Heavy Track

3 Winners Are Ridden By LeBlanc

Acautaw, Frisco Kid, Victorian Star, Khay, Count Me Win.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 5.—Bright and Early, owned by Robert Robertson, splashed six furlongs to win the Sagamore Handicap, featured event of a dismal afternoon at this race track. With the veteran jockey Johnny Gilbert in the saddle Bright and Early led Mrs. B. F. Christmas' Sunned to the wire by a half length, with T. F. Swords' Vote Boy third in the vest-pocket field of five.

Bright and Early was installed the favorite with the 6,000 customers, but had to be kept to a drive in the stretch to stave off the closing bid of Sunned. The winner paid a $4.80 mutuel and ran the route in 1:16 2-5.

Threatening morning skies finally wept with the start of the program and the track became heavier as the program progressed.

After a short scuffle that marked the getaway, Vote Boy became a definite leader. He was accompanied by Bright and Early and Sunned. Gilbert had a nice grip on the favorite to the far turn and then asked his mount for real speed. Bright and Early responded with a rush that established him as the leader and Gilbert did not let up on him thereafter. It was well that he didn't, for Sunned saved much ground at the final bend and was wearing down his rivel at the finish. Vote Boy managed to hang on for the third money.

LeBlanc Rides Winner.

Hubert Le Blanc, popular apprentice jockey who rode the winner of the eighth race in Tropical Park's finale Saturday, began his Maryland campaign in top style by bringing Acautaw, a veteran sprinter, to the wire ahead of six others over the six-furlong course. Le Blanc sent Acautaw to the front early in the running but had to work on the gelding in the late stretch as Golden Vein, the favorite, moved up. The latter was a length and a half behind at the finish, with Ironbound third. Acautaw was clocked in 1:15 4-5 and paid a $5.70 mutuel. The race was run in a light rain but the track was fast.

Frisco Kid, a Bomar Stable representative making his first start of the 1937 season, scored an easy victory in the second race. The gelded son of Jean Valjean defeated Conservative by two and a half lengths, with Ipso Facto, the favorite, another length away. He paid a $12.20 mutuel and recorded time of 1:16 for the six furlongs.

Vanderbilt Entry Wins.

A. G. Vanderbilt's cerise and white diamonds were borne to victory for the first time here this season by Victorian Star in the third race. Ridden by Sammy Renick, the colt bounded by the leaders in the stretch to win by four lengths. The photo was consulted before Francesco, the public choice, was awarded second money over Black Boo. The winner paid an $8.20 mutuel, and his time for the six furlongs was 1:16 2-5. The track was muddy by this time.

Le Blanc rode his second winner of the day aboard the favored Khay in the fourth race. He sent him to the front when ready and came through with some good kicking and elbowing to get him home. Brush Handle, one that had much trouble in the running, was second, with Harry's Dream third. Khay, a $5.40 betting proposition, ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:49 3-5. More Poise, one that contested Harry's Dream for the pace-setting honors, stopped to a walk and was pulled up.

Le Blanc piloted his third winner of the afternoon in the sixth race. The boy, who broke his arm at Laurel last fall, had the mount on Count Me, a $3.30 for $2 favorite and he made no mistakes, winning by eight lengths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACAUTAW, $5.70, $2.90, $2.20; GOLDEN VEIN, $2.60, $2.10; IRONBOUND, $2.30.

ACAUTAW, rushed to the front in the opening sixteenth, drew out to a good lead swinging for the stretch, but had to be kept to a stout drive to stave off GOLDEN VEIN. The latter was away well and finished gamely. IRONBOUND lacked early speed after breaking on top, and was going fastest of all at the end. WATERMAN showed an even effort. TAUNTON closed some ground in the late stages after being outrun. SAKUNTALA stopped after pressing the pace for a quarter.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds claiming. Went to post at 2:59. Off at 3:01. Start good from stall. Won easily; place driving. Winner, Bomar Stable's b. or b. g. (3), by Jean Valjean—Tesque. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRISCO KID, $12.20, $6.40, $3.40; CONSERVATIVE, $4.30, $3.20; IPSO FACTO, $2.80.

FRISCO KID, slow to settle into his best stride, was steered to the outside for racing room while bettering his position approaching the stretch turn, wore down CONSERVATIVE midway of the stretch and was being eased up at the end. CONSERVATIVE, first away, was steadied along in front, but could not cope with the winner when placed to a drive. IPSO FACTO saved much ground entering the stretch, but hung nearing the end. PLAYNOT tired after pressing the pace of CONSERVATIVE. The others were always outrun.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:30. Start good from stall. Won easily; place driving. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's blk. or br. c. (3), by Victorian—Astralobe. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:16 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VICTORIAN STAR, $8.20, $3.80, $3.10; FRANCESCO, $3.20, $2.60; BLACK BOO, $6.90.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE—FIRST AND THIRD RACES—PAID $25.00.

VICTORIAN STAR, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, rallied sharply when placed to a drive and drew far out in the closing stages. FRANCESCO, off very poorly, was hard ridden throughout and closed willingly. BLACK BOO saved ground and was going gamely at the end. CRIUS went evenly. ISADORE tired after chasing HIGH HEDGE. The latter had high early speed, but stopped midway of the stretch. SIR WINDSOR had early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 3:59. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, J. H. Logan's b. c. (3), by Omar Khayyam—Prancing Sprite. Trained by J. H. Logan. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 4-5, 1:45 2-5, 1:49 3-5.

MORE POISE	(Barba)	112	6	3	1^{h}	2^{1}	6	†		6.10

†Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHAY, $5.40, $3.90, $2.40; BRUSH HANDLE, $11.40, $5.60; HARRYS DREAM, $2.50.

KHAY kept out of trouble on the outside to the far turn, took command when called up nearing the far turn, shook off HARRYS DREAM, but was hard ridden to hold BRUSH HANDLE safe. The latter, probably best, was squeezed back going to the first turn, was pulled up when in tight quarters swinging into the backstretch and closed full of run. HARRYS DREAM was hard used running with MORE POISE and was faltering at the end. LANDSCAPE had speed in spots. MORE POISE dropped out of it after a half and was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Sagamore Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 4:28. Off at 4:30½. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, R. Robertson's b. g. (4), by Goldenbrook—Early Vote. Trained by R. Robertson, jr. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:16 2-5.

SUN POWER	(Porter)	115	4	4	4^{h}	4^{1}	5	5	13.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT AND EARLY, $4.80, $3.10, $2.20; SUNNED, $4.20, $2.40; VOTE BOY, $2.20.

BRIGHT AND EARLY, closest to the pace of VOTE BOY from the start, took the lead nearing the stretch and withstood a long drive to hold SUNNED safe. The latter was in tight quarters leaving the backstretch, saved much ground at the final turn and was wearing down the winner at the end. VOTE BOY was rushed to the front at once and was tiring gradually at the finish. LEMONT could not reach contention. SUN POWER showed good speed for a half.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:55½. Start good from stall. Won handily; place driving. Winner, P. M. Ryan's br. g. (4), by Reigh Count—Watch Me. Trained by P. Reuter. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25 3-5, 0:51 2-5, 1:18, 1:45, 1:52 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNT ME, $3.30, $2.90, $2.20; MAKEIT, $11.00, $5.40; JAMES BOY, $3.00.

COUNT ME went between horses at the first turn to take a brief lead over ENGLES BOY, shook off that one to open a wide lead leaving the backstretch and was being taken in hand at the finish. MAKEIT worked his way up to the leaders on the outside and closed with good courage. JOBAKHETA showed a good effort. ENGLES BOY pressed the pace to the stretch and then tired. The others could not reach contention.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Winner, R. C. Hanna's ch. m. (5), by The Satrap—Felside. Trained by L. L. Lycan. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:26, 0:52 2-5, 1:19 1-5, 1:45 4-5, 1:52 4-5.

COUNTERPASS	(I.Hanford)	106	6	7	7^{4}	8	8	8	8	81.55

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FELWYN, $11.70, $5.30, $5.50; HAPPY FLAG, $5.30, $5.50; POST BRIGADE, $9.10.

FELWYN ran WAR CHASE and TIEMPO into defeat while hard ridden and came again after being displaced by HAPPY FLAG in the early stretch run. The latter was allowed to settle into stride while trailing and saving ground, went to the front with a sharp move approaching the stretch turn, but faltered slightly in the closing eighth. POST BRIGADE loomed menacingly in the early stretch, but faltered suddenly. CHIEF MOURNER moved up to contest FELWYN along the backstretch, but tired badly. WAR CHASE had good early speed. TIEMPO faltered after reaching the top under hustling tactics. CONTINUITY showed a dull effort.

State Links Group Plans New Tourney

Maryland Golf Association Introduces Novel Handicap Event.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 5.—A novel individual handicap tournament for club members of the Maryland State Golf Association was announced by the State body here today. Popularization of the State handicap cards is behind the idea, after holders dropped 109 last year over 1935's total of 513.

From April 17 through April 26 there will be conducted at each member club a handicap tourney along the lines of the one-day affairs that appear during the season's schedule. Winners of low gross and low net in the A, B and C classes at each club will meet May 5, one group here and another in Washington, for prize awards.

Other benefits of the cards will entitle the bearer to play in the various one-day tournaments, sponsored by the association on Baltimore and Washington courses, throughout the year, including qualifications for the various junior, senior and other events under the aegis of the M. S. G. A. The fees go toward the running of the State body. Merchandise prizes are awarded winners of each event.

Other innovations of the schedule will be a State junior open, open to boys under 21, regardless of affiliation with member clubs. A senior-junior event is also being added to the card.

Arlington Hall To Hold Horse Show, May 15

The second annual Arlington Hall Horse Show, only sanctioned show in Arlington County, will be held at the Arlington Hall School for Girls, May 15. To permit more time for classes open only to girls' schools, eliminations in this type of event will be held the preceding day.

Particular stress will be laid on open events because of the general interest shown in jumper and open classes.

Besides the usual jumper, hunter, Corinthian and hunt team classes, there will be classes for hunters under saddle, not to jump and hunter hacks. A special feature will be horsemanship classes for children up to 12 years and a class for children over that age.

The hunter course, which is over typical rolling hunter country, has been greatly improved since last year's show. Turns have been widened and a few of the jumps, which offered too severe tests, have been modified.

If weather conditions are unfavorable, the show will be moved inside to the C. C. Lamond Arena, on the school grounds.

Center Softball Play Opens With 8 Teams

The Community Center Department, which successfully revived indoor softball after a 25-year lapse, is looking forward to carrying its winter success outdoors when it opens play in the newly organized Community Center Softball League.

Eight teams comprise the league, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Pearson & Crain, Diamond Cab, Federal WPA, Bureau of Standards, Sogimas, Triple "A" and Ehrlich Poultry, the favored team.

Managers of all teams listed are requested to be present at a meeting to be held at Tech High School Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Mid-South Golf Lead Is Taken By Mrs. Page

Dunlap Shoots 70, Then Rain Halts North and South Qualifying.

By the Associated Press.

Southern Pines, N. C., April 5.—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, who won the North and South title at Pinehurst last week, gained a four-stroke margin over her nearest competitors in today's 18-hole round of the annual 63-hole Midsouth match play tourney for women. The second 18 holes will be played tomorrow.

The sturdy Chapel Hill golfer clipped five strokes off women's par with a 39-39—78.

In second place were Virginia Guilfoil, blonde Syracuse, N. Y., collegian, who gave Mrs. Page a battle in the North and South final, and Mrs. Karl Scheidt, of Philadelphia, each of whom had 41-41—82. Both bettered par of 43-40—83.

Missing when the field of 40 linkswomen teed off were Deborah Verry, winner in 1936, and two South Carolina stars of the winter season, Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, and Jane Cothran, of Greenville.

Although the event is one of the few "open tourneys" for women, the two outstanding business women golfers of the country, Helen Hicks, of Long Island, and Mildred Babe Didrikson, of Texas, failed to participate.

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5.—George T. Dunlap, jr., shot a sparkling 70 in the qualifying round of the North and South Amateur golf tourney today to begin defense of his title against 171 competitiors, but his brilliant effort went for naught because a soaking thunderstorm caused postponement of play after about 50 of the simon-pures had toured the 18 holes.

Dunlap, former national champion and five times winner of the North and South, had a four-stroke lead over his nearest contender, Charles Whitehead, of Plainfield, N. J., when the squall forced cancellation of play. Some of the favored entries, however, had not completed their rounds, including Jack Munger, of Dallas, Tex., and Art Strafaci, of Brooklyn.

The qualifying round will be started over tomorrow. Members of the tournament committee said they would likely arrange two 18-hole rounds on Wednesday or Thursday in order to reach the 36-hole final by Saturday as originally planned.

Cincinnati 'Knot-Hole' Club Invites Boys

Cincinnati, April 5 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds, seeking to spread the gospel of baseball, today invited every schoolboy from 9 to 16 within a radius of 75 miles of Cincinnati to join their Knot Hole Baseball Club.

"We expect to have more than 100,000 boys in the club this year," said General Manager Warren C. Giles. "About 60,000 were enrolled last season when the only boys eligible were those in greater Cincinnati."

Men Past 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y.

Dear Al:

I have heard owners and trainers give a variety of answers to the question. "Do you like your horse today?" However, here's a fair one. A press-box boy went to the paddock to ask a certain trainer about the chances of his horse. The horseman said, "He ain't no sprinter, won't go a distance of ground, can't run in the mud, a fast track hurts his feet, can't carry weight and a light boy can't ride him. Do you know anybody what's got a sledge hammer?" The horse ran last. If you've been having hard luck at the track, just think of the story the horsemen brought back from California. A jockey agent accompanied two riders to Santa Anita last winter. One day he obtained mounts for them on pretty good horses. He took what remained of his bankroll and parlayed the two horses. Both won but both were disqualified and, furthermore, both of the jockeys were suspended. That's what I call tough going. I received a complaint in the mail about the finish camera here. However, I have agreed with every decision to date and if there has been any booing I did not hear it. One of the writers from Florida says he passed Clocker Mike outside of Jacksonville. Mike was riding on the back of a pie wagon. BILL.

Bowie Notes

The weights for the Paumonok Handicap, opening day feature of the Jamaica meeting on Thursday, were announced here today. Whopper has been assigned top weight of 126 pounds. Among those assigned heavy imposts are: Snark, 121; Tintagel, 120; Singing Wood, 119; Bill Farnsworth, 118; Good Gamble, 118; Jay Jay, 117.

Johnny McGinnis, veteran jockey, died of a heart attack at Pimlico this morning. McGinnis, who has been preparing steeplechase horses for John Bosley, trainer for H. R. Bain, became ill suddenly. He did the unusual at Pimlico last fall, riding winners on the flat and steeplechase courses on the same afternoon.

The installation of the camera and the stewards' stand on the roof of the Havre de Grace grandstand has been completed.

The Denemark Stable horses have arrived at Havre de Grace. A division of the Bomar Stable also has been shipped to that track.

Merrymaker, Trainer Willie Shea's Kentucky Derby hope, worked out a mile this morning, stepping that route in 1:46 while breezing.

Joe Renick, contract rider for E. R. Bradley, expects to resume his trade at Havre de Grace. Renick suffered a broken collarbone in a spill at Tropical Park.

The Charles Town, W. Va., track will have 32 days of racing, opening on May 29 and closing July 5.

Turf notes—The 2-year-old Sandid, scheduled to run tomorrow, was purchased today by C. Strum, of New York . . . Ray Bryson made the sale at private terms . . . Local jockeys donated more than $100 for flowers for the late Jockey Paul McGinnis . . . The Denemark horses which dominated the racing in Florida during the past winter arrived at Havre de Grace today . . . The moving of the camera and stewards' stand at Havre de Grace to the top of the stands has been completed . . . Maryland fans were pleased with the riding of Hubert Le Blanc . . . The apprentice, who starred in Florida, got off a train this morning and hustled out to the track to ride three winners . . . He had all the appearance of a veteran . . . He graduates from the apprentice class late this month . . . Albert Schmidl, another crack "bug" rider, also went into action. Ray Bryson has a 95-pound youngster by the name of Sandy Longo who will ride at The Graw . . . He hails from New Orleans . . . The $10,000 added Chasapeake at Havre de Grace on April 24 has long been regarded as the big Eastern trial for the Kentucky Derby . . . This year 27 eligibles for the Derby are also candidates for the Chesapeake. HAIGHT.

Linke Is Hero As Nats Score Over Cards, 4-3

Pitcher's Triple in Ninth Wins, Newsom Yields 6 Hits, One Run.

first. Lewis raced to third on the error and came home at leisure on Al Simmon's fly to right.

There was some shoddy play by the Nats in that eighth when the Cards' tied the score at 3-3. Bordagray whammed a Linke pitch for a single and raced to second base after Millies caught Martin's pop foul and, satisfied with his catch, failed to keep his eye on Bordagaray. Gutteridge blasted a single to center and Bordagaray scored when Jess Hill's throw to the plate was, conservatively, 20 feet wide, and got away from Millies. Gutteridge raced to third on the error and Padgett's single scored him.

But, eventually, Linke came to bat.

Simmons' first appearance in a Washington uniform today was an impressive affair and highly gratifying to owner Clark Griffith, who separated himself from $15,000 yesterday in purchasing Simmons from the Tigers.

Installed in left field by Manager Bucky Harris, Simmons cracked out two hits in his four times at bat—a stinging single through shortstop and a smart single to right which he deliberately pushed in that direction after faking a heavy swing.

But his defensive play was even more impressive. He galloped back against the fence for Terry Moore's well-spanked fly in the second inning, and in the fourth he was positively sensational. Chasing a long drive off Catcher Owen's bat with great haste, Simmons rifled a magnificent throw to Travis, who relayed the ball to Lewis at third and Owen was out trying to stretch the hit to a triple.

It was a downcast Freddie Sington who learned last night of the Nats' purchase of Simmons, which will be tantamount to an announcement that Sington had failed in his bid for a regular job in the Nats' outfield.

"I hope you're not giving up on me," he told Manager Bucky Harris before today's game.

"Not a bit, Fred," Harris told the big outfielder. "There's still plenty of room for you on this team. Just don't give up on yourself."

Sington said he wouldn't.

The Nats' rapidly dwindling exhibition schedule tomorrow will find them opposing the Detroit Tigers here with Simmons due to make his first appearence against his 1936 team mates.

Joe Judge's Hoya Nine in Debut Today

This Morning
WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

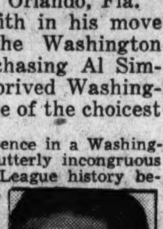
Orlando, Fla.

Clark Griffith in his move to bolster the Washington Club by purchasing Al Simmons has deprived Washington fans of one of the choicest hates.

Simmons' presence in a Washington uniform is utterly incongruous with American League history because it was at Griffith Stadium the black-haired Pole always encountered the most hostile fans.



POVICH.

They always reserved for him the richest, ripest razzberries, the loudest boos. Capital fandom didn't like the big slugger of the A's who later performed with the White Sox and Tigers. They didn't like his swagger and his obvious attempt to mimic Ty Cobb with those long-sleeved shirts which only Cobb used to affect.

And they never liked either the way Simmons handled his bat at Griffith Stadium. That is, they didn't like those home runs and other extra base hits that used to rocket off his shillelah with such destruction to the Nats' hopes of winning a ball game.

What a Feud!

"Sorehead!" they yelled when Simmons squawked at an umpire's decision or shook his fist at the pitcher he thought was using a bean ball, and then Simmons would laugh at 'em. They didn't like that either.

* * *

His feud with Fred Marberry will go down in history as one of the most cordial hates in baseball and Washington fans chortled on the day when Big Marberry dared Simmons to come out to the pitcher's mound and start something.

* * *

Marberry had just thrown a pitch perilously close to Simmons' head and the slugger got up off the ground in a mood to throw his bat at the pitcher, but umpires stepped in to prevent trouble.

Takes His Chances

Oh, yes, he was a sorehead and a Simmons strikeout at Griffith Stadium was something to be cheered with that little extra something that distinguished an extreme burst of joy from just the run-of-the-mine cheer.

Reminded of the hostility that always greeted him in Washington, Simmons smiled and waxed philosophic tonight.

"I don't figure it was a personal hate, do you?" he said inquiringly, and then he grinned broadly. "After all, I used to give 'em plenty to dislike me for up there. Always went good in Griffith Stadium. "But whatthaell, I'll take my chances with the fans anywhere. I like to see a crowd get excited. If they cheer against you, that means they're pretty apt to be with you strong if you're on their side. Maybe they'll even come around to liking me, huh? That would be funny, though."

* * *

Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris were still congratulating themselves vigorously on the Simmons deal after dinner at the Nats' hotel tonight.

"If he plays as well as he did last season when he batted .327 and drove in those 112 runs, he'll be a big help to us and I'll be satisfied," said Griffith. Then the Nats' owner continued; "But I'm betting that he's going to have a better year this season. I looked him over carefully before we made the deal. He's 15 pounds lighter than he was last year at this time. You remember he didn't really get started last season until the last three months and then he burned up the league. He must have hit .425 in those last three months."

* * *

Harris was less jubilant. "Here's a guy with a lifetime batting average of .325; how can he miss helping us? Al's a natural for the clean-up hitting post. I'll move Johnny Stone down to fifth, Cecil Travis to sixth and have Buddy Myer batting seventh.

* * *

"Simmons will play leftfield for us because he's always played leftfield and Stone will be moved to right because he's equally at home there. I've been in this league 17 years and I've never seen anyone get more than a single down the leftfield line when Simmons was playing out there. He gets the ball quick and he gets it awey quick and his throws are death on base runners."

G. W. Is Foe Of Harvard In Other Tilt

Western Maryland to Provide Georgetown Opposition.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Today's motto for collegiate sports is "let George do it," for George Washington engages Harvard on the East Ellipse, and Georgetown meets up with Western Maryland at the Hilltop in the lone items on the program, both baseball games.

The Hoyas may even carry the George motif a little farther by nominating George (Nick) Uicketakis for mound duty in their initial appearance of the season. "Big Mike" Petroskey and Hank Bertrand are other eligibles for the task.

It will be Georgetown's debut under the directoin of Joe Judge, former Washington star, and it should be a successful coming-out party with a team of veterans at his command. Joe Keegin, catcher, and Tony Barabas, outfielder, are the only newcomers to the regular line-up, and Barabas had some experience last year.

Others scheduled to play are Harry Bassin, first base; Ed Bodine, second base; Tom Keating, shortstop; Ed Cavadine, third base; Carl Nau, leftfield; Tommy Nolan, centerfield; Barabas and Keegin. It is probable that Judge will work his pitchers in three-inning shifts. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The Colonials are trying for the second victory of the season after a series of southpaw breaks that have kept them off-balance since the start of their season. Coach Ed Morris feels that his men are much better than their record indicates, and hopes that today's game will give them a fresh start in the right direction. Action is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

Outdoor Track Work Starts for 2 Squads

Outdoor track work will be launched officially today at Georgetown and Gallaudet, thereby swelling the ranks of athletes already warming up for what promises to be one of the best years the District has enjoyed in this particular line in a decade.

At Georgetown Coach Jim Mulligan has a small but potent squad under his wing, chafing at the bit hopeful of adding fresh laurels to those won indoors.

Georgetown will concentrate on the Penn Relays the latter part of this month. Teams are entered in the quarter-mile relay, scheduled Friday, and the half-mile championship of America, Saturday, and it is these events for which Mulligan is pointing.

Capt. Joe McCloskey heads the list of candidates. Others are Jim McPoland, George Bogan, Vincent Healey, Doug Hanks, Al Fry, Irwin (Red) Warder, Bill Marlowe, Jack Ford and Joe Kilcullen.

At Gallaudet Teddy Hughes is beginning his fifteenth year of coaching, and expects to celebrate with one of his most successful campaigns. Joe Burnett, former District A. A. U. indoor record-holder for the 800 and 1,500 meters runs, is back again, topping an impressive list of aspirants for regular work. Hughes has so many sprinters at his disposal he contemplates reviving the mile relay team.

Conley Akin, Ray Atwood, Kayo Workman, Rex Lowman, Will Rogers, Olaf Tollefson, Dick Phillips, Bob Clingingpeel, John Henji, Fred Cobb and Alden Ravn constitute the nucleus of Hughes' squad.

Among the outstanding newcomers are Frank Davis, who has done the century in 9.8, and the 220 in 22.1; Jewell Babb, a high-jumper, and Glenn Rice, a quarter-miler.

Mid-Atlantic 'Y' Swim Meet Here

One of the largest fields ever entered is expected to seek championship laurels Saturday at the Shoreham, where the fourth annual Middle-Atlantic Y. M. C. A. swimming championships will be staged.

Rapidly assuming the proportions of a major Eastern tournament, the affair is one of the most popular on the tank calendar, and the winning team generally is recognized as champion of the Eastern associations. Entries are expected from Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia.

The committee handling the event is comprised of James Orme, Sam Munson, Paul Wilson, Ernie Boggs and J. D. Shirley.

POST NOTES ON Fishin'
BY BILL ACKERMAN

For the past week small white perch have been biting in the upper Potomac—forerunners of the schools that this week will all but take possession of the river up to Little Falls.

The last several days has warmed the water to the extent they require for spawning, which is the urge that brings them to these parts.

Rather an oddity is the white perch, because they seem to be neither salt water nor fresh water fish. Preferring brackish water, they will live equally well in either and often become land-locked in fresh-water lakes.

ACKERMAN

By Sunday, due to a rise in the water, which has been low, some of the larger fish had arrived and in all but several of the strings observed, about every fourth one weighed from a half to three-quarters of a pound. Enough evidence that this week-end will see the run going in good shape. The rain will in no way hurt conditions, rather it will help them along.

* * * *

Perch about this size are average, although an occasional one at the heighth of the run will go up to maybe 2 pounds. The probable maximum weight that they reach is about 4 pounds, although there is no authentic record of this weight. Might be something to shoot for if you happen to bring in a big one.

* * * *

Capt. Joe Fletcher at New Cut and Canal road has all of his 34 boats in good shape and overboard, ready for use. Always well informed as to the best places to fish in his section, his advice is always well worth following.

* * * *

Not overly particular in their choice of foods as long as it is clean and alive, for bait, it is best to use one that they get naturally in this section—tiny crabs, shrimp, angle worms, minnows, insects and flies. From this choice it is easy to see that they will give you battle on a fly and flyrod as well as the more prosaic still fishing on the bottom. So they will too, but not this early in the season. Neither will they break water to take the fly, so if you try it this way, use a wet fly of the general color of the insects and flys that are present at the time.

* * *

For this early season fishing up the river, the blood worm, although not a natural food, is the best bait to use. Many of the sport stores are already stocking them. Second best bait is the common garden worm. At this time of the year most easily obtained by the good old method of digging.

* * *

At present, fish on the rocky shelves close to the edge of the deep water. With a few more warm days they can be caught most anywhere.

* * *

The run of herring is not far off, so those who like their fun in this fashion had best be getting their snagging hooks and lines in shape.

Trout fishing over the week-end was not up to opening days of other years. On the easily reached streams, anglers rubbed elbows from one end of the stream to the other.

Creels were small and even those that spent several days on the stream had less than one day's limit, to show.

The thought is, and on good authority, that the great majority of the stocking is being held back until later. From that the fly-fisherman seems due to have his inning, and it is no more than right, because the liver and worm fisherman has had his for many years.

The National Capitol Field Trial Club gave a testimonial dinner to Frank Kidwell on Saturday night to show their appreciation of the many pleasant evenings he has arranged for them during the past year.

They hold their spring field trials next Monday on the 123-acre farm of Walter Johnson, at Germantown, Md. More than the usual amount of interest is being shown this year and it is fully expected that it will be far and away the best trial in their 20 years of existence.

No. 1 Park Net Rating Given To Ritzenberg

Nate Ritzenberg, recently turned professional, was named the No. 1 ranking public parks tennis player of the city last night at a meeting of the National Capital Parks Tennis Association at the Tennis Shop. Ritzenberg won the city Public Parks championship last year.

Pressing him for the top-ranking berth were Pat Deck, Allie Ritzenberg and Ray Stocklinski. Barney Welsh, Dooley Mitchell and other leading players did not play public parks tennis last year. Fifteen players were ranked.

Herb Shenkin and Stocklinski were ranked No. 1 in the doubles with the Ritzenbergs No. 2.

Jimmy Heiskell was elected president and Deane Judd, vice president. Felix M. Silva was re-elected secretary and Bill Shreve was re-elected treasurer.

It was decided to split the Public Parks League into two sections this year, with the winner of the first division meeting the winner of the second for the championship. The league opens May 1.

Men's Singles.

1, Nathan Ritzenberg; 2, Pat Deck; 3 and 4, Allie Ritzenberg and Ray Stocklinski; 5, Herbert Shenkin; 6, Hy Ritzenberg; 7, Arthur Simmons; 8, Billy Contreras; 9, Deane Judd; 10, Happy Jacob; 11, Joe Baker; 12, Erwin Niemeyer; 13, Lawrence Sherfy; 14, Kent Boyle; 15, Maurice Goubeau.

Texas Senate Avoids Action on Antibetting

Austin, Tex., April 5 (AP).—The Senate declined to clear the way today for action on a bill to repeal Texas' four-year-old horse race betting law.

The House of Representatives had passed the bill and a Senate committee had reported it favorably. Anti-repealests were elated over the Senate action, but advocates of knocking out the race betting statute indicated they would soon press the issue again.

Georgetown 'G' Dinner At Willard April 28

Georgetown's thirteenth annual Varsity "G" dinner will be held on April 28 at the Willard Hotel, school authorities announced last night. Engraved certificates will be awarded varsity letter winners on this occasion.

Inaugurated in 1924, the affair has grown from an original gathering of 100 to an overflowing capacity of 1,250 attendance. Some of the prominent football coaches who have attended this dinner are "Chick" Meehan, Bill Ingram, Tad Jones, Bill Roper, Wallace Wade, Jock Sutherland, Dr. Marvin Stevens, and the the late Knute Rockne.

Chicago Team Climbs In Ten-Pin Congress

New York, April 5 (AP).— Wally Freitag and Louie Levine, Chicago veterans, climbed into second place in the doubles class of the American Bowling Congress late today, creating the only major change in the standings.

Two Phillies Are League's Top Hurlers

Walters and La Master Boast Best Records; Reds Bow, 6 to 3.

By the Associated Press.

Winter Haven, Fla., April 5.—The Phillies won their third straight exhibition game today beating the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 3, behind the five-hit pitching of Claude Passeau, Hugh Mulcahy and Syl Johnson, and Fred Tauby's timely single in the seventh.

The Reds bunched four of their five hits, including a triple by Myers, in the second to take a brief lead.

Two members of the Phillies' pitching staff, Bucky Walters and Wayne La Masters, have turned in the best performances of major league hurlers in Florida this spring.

Ferrell in Form.

Sarasota, Fla., April 5 (AP).—Wes Ferrell became the first Red Sox hurler of the season to go the full nine innings today when he pitched the scrubs to a 6-5 victory over the regulars. While pacing the scrubs to their first intraclub victory, Ferrell held the regulars to six scattered hits.

Macks Beat Collegians.

Austin, Tex., April 5 (AP).—Chubby Dean smashed four hits, including a pair of home runs, to lead a 17-hit barrage by the Philadelphia Athletics as they walloped the University of Texas team, Southwest Collegiate Conference champions, today, 11 to 3.

Mack "B's" Lose.

Marshall, Tex., April 5 (AP).—The St. Paul club of the American Association jolted the Philadelphia Athletics "B" team today in an exhibition game, 9 to 5. The Macks were erratic afield, committing four errors.

Pirates Win, 7-3.

San Bernardino, Calif., April 5 (AP).—The San Bernardino Argonauts touched two rookie Pittsburgh Pirate hurlers for only six hits today in an exhibition baseball game, and the Pirates won, 7-3.

White Sox Beat Cubs.

Tucson, Ariz., April 5 (AP).—Triples by Zeke Bonura and Jackie Hayes paced a seven-run scoring burst in the eighth inning which gave the Chicago White Sox a 13-to-9 victory over the Chicago Cubs today.

Paul Waner Weakens.

Sarasota, Fla., April 5 (U.P.).—Paul Waner, Pittsburgh Pirates' outfielder who led the National League in batting last year, indicated tonight his holdout siege may be nearing an end.

Indians Beat Giants.

Baton Rouge, La., April 5 (AP).—A New York Giant rally in the ninth inning fell one run short of evening the score and the Cleveland Indians won a tight ball game, 6 to 5, today. The tribe scored three times in the eighth.

Giants to Shift Camp.

Baton Rouge, La., April 5 (AP).—Gov. Richard Leche and Manager Bill Terry jointly announced late today that the New York Giants will train in Baton Rouge next spring.

Yanks Win Again.

Galveston, Tex., April 5 (AP).—The New York Yankees pounded out their ninth straight exhibition victory over the Galveston Buccaneers of the Texas League, today, 13 to 2. The world champions collected 17 hits while Pat Malone and Bump Hadley were limiting the Buccaneers to seven.

Md. Legislature Is Deadlocked On Relief Bill

Baltimore, Eastern Shore Delegates Combine to Block Passage.

State office building in Annapolis.

Allowing use of convict labor on roads.

Setting up a commission to award $30,000 per year in scholarships for higher education of colored persons.

A 64-year-old State Senator, James B. Latimer, of Calvert County, enlivened the final session of the State Legislature here tonight when he became embroiled in a fist fight with John W. Williams, about 35, former member of the House of Delegates from Calvert County.

Packs Wallop.

A brother of Dr. Thomas Latimer, Hyattsville, Md., chairman of the Republican State central committee for Prince Georges County, Senator Latimer is a mild-mannered man. But witnesses of the brief bout declared he packs a potent wallop.

The altercation, Senator Latimer said, began in the Senate chamber with a verbal argument over a bill he had introduced to make the cost of hunting licenses higher for nonresidents of Calvert County.

The afternoon session was marked by a bitter fight in the House of Delegates between the Eastern Shore and southern Maryland representatives on the question of dredging for oysters in the Potomac River.

Proponents of the bill to allow small dredges, known as hand scrappers, in the Potomac River opened the fight shortly before 4 p. m. The Legislature was technically still in Saturday's session.

The fight was to suspend the rules to allow the committee on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries to report out the bill. Had a vote been called then, only a majority would have been needed to call the bill out of committee on to the floor.

Adjournment Proposed.

After a brief skirmish between delegates from the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland Counties, however, Kent Mullikin, of Prince Georges County, majority floor leader, moved for adjournment.

When the House convened, it was technically the last day of the session, and a 2-3 vote was required to get the bill out of committee.

The vote was 68-39, failing of the necessary majority.

The bill authorized a State bond issue of $1,000,000 for construction of a State office building in Annapolis was sponsored by Ridgley P. Melvin (Democrat), Anne Arundel County. It was approved in the House by vote of 68-39 over opposition of the Baltimore delegation.

Liquor Sale Banned.

Sale of alcoholic beverages other than light wines and beer in the town of Hyattsville was banned, subject to a referendum, in a bill which passed the Senate and went to the Governor for his signature. The bill had been introduced in the House by the Prince Georges County delegation at the insistence of the mayor and town council. It provides for the holding of the referendum within six months after passage of the act.

A bill to provide compensation of $16 a month for the mayor of Hyattsville and $8 a month for each of the councilmen passed the Senate and went to the Governor for his signature. It is subject to a referendum to be held by the town within six months after passage of the act. A tax levy would provide money for the expense accounts.

Taylor Hints He May Retire As Steel Head

Paints Bright Future for Industry at Session of Board.

Hoboken, N. J., April 5 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of United States Steel Corporation, at the annual stockholders meeting today, threw out a veiled hint his retirement might be drawing near.

At the same time he held out to common stockholders the hope their patience would be rewarded "in some way in the not very distant future." Arrears on the preferred are $3025. Common payments have not been made since March, 1932, when 50 cents was disbursed.

Arousing in the minds of stockholders the question of possible retirement, Taylor said, "if through any chance the vicissitudes of time or circumstance should make it impossible for any of us to gather here together in this way next year, I want to express openly my appreciation and my own very great pleasure in this association."

"Love-Feast" Session.

Unlike meetings of recent years, when stockholders asked critical questions from the floor, today's gathering was a virtual love-feast which all officers and stockholders left in an apparently contented mood. There were about 260 present, a record attendance, a spokesman said.

In an extemporaneous address, the head of the Nation's largest steel company, looked back at the years which culminated in the great crack of 1929. He then reviewed the subsequent years, during which the company's operations rose from a depression low of 18.3 per cent to the present rate of 87 per cent of capacity.

In his review, he touched on three major policies pursued: Reduction of funded debt, the infusion of new blood into the management and efforts to gear the corporation's operations to highest efficiency.

Stockholders, by liberal applause, showed keen interest in Taylor's recognition of the corporation's executive personnel and seemed particularly interested in his allusion to "these young men."

Lauds Younger Element.

Referring to the younger element, he termed it "an omen of the future." This, together with the comment "they are the ones who will be here year after year reporting on the company's activities," excited interest among stockholders. Taylor is 63.

He cited Edward R. Stettinius, jr., young chairman of the finance committee, and said in Wall Street to be in line to succeed him; Irving S. Olds, lawyer recently elected to the board; Enders M. Voorhees, vice chairman of the finance committee, and Junius Morgan, elder son of J. P. Morgan and grandson of the financial founder of the corporation.

Discussing wage and profit problems, Taylor said:

"The best single formula I could evolve in the several relationships between workers, owners and the public is that which will induce the largest production at prices within the range of the purchasing power of the community and at the same time provide adequate real wages to workers, management and owners of the property."

Further along in his discussion of the wage problem, he said "each should be paid according to his contribution. But probably as long as men and women are men and women, no one is going to be wholly satisfied with the value put on his services by someone else."

Steel and Oil Shares Advance With Rise in Federal Bonds

By Frederick Gardner,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, April 5.—Buying forces favored selected steels, oils and specialties in today's stock market but were indifferent to most other groups. The decision of the Federal Reserve Board to support recently lagging U. S. Government securities, together with lessening of tension over labor disputes, apparently were moderately helpful market influences.

Dealings were exceptionally quiet throughout, transfers amounting to only 976,480 shares, compared with 1,637,930 last Friday. The Associated Press average edged forward .2 of a point to 71.3.

U. S. Steel was given a last-minute run-up of 2¼ points at 119¾ when Chairman Taylor at the corporation's annual meeting hinted that dividends on the common might be resumed in the near future.

At the same time the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated current mill operations at 89.9 per cent of a capacity, a drop of .8 of a point from last week.

The magazine Steel, though, found that steel makers have sold practically all their output for second quarter, with third-quarter orders being booked only at prices which may prevail at the time shipments are made. Slackened demand in the automotive field due to strikes, it was said, was more than offset by heavy requirements in other lines.

Chrysler Stronger.

With Wall Street confident a compromise agreement is near in the Chrysler negotiations with the union, this stock pushed up 1¾, to 123¼. General Motors failed to make the grade and was off ⅛, at 61⅝.

Copper shares lacked vigor as the export rate of the red metal was lowered. Fractionally under water were Anaconda, at 61⅜, Kennecott 60⅞ and Phelps Dodge 51⅝. Cerro de Pasco yielded 1, at 77.

Aiding the oils were forecasts of another lift in crude prices and the belief increasing consumption of gasoline and other petroleum products was more than taking care of advancing output. Gains up to a point or so were shown by Standard Oil of New Jersey, 72½; Standard of Indiana, 47½; Standard of California, 47½; Pure Oil, 21⅜, and Texas Corporation, 61⅝.

A few of the utilities picked up a bit on indications earnings for the power companies are continuing to tilt upward. Among the best of these were Consolidated Edison, at 39⅞, and Public Service of New Jersey, at 45.

While commodities, on the whole, were somewhat mixed, cash corn at Chicago jumped to a 17-year top at $1.40 a bushel. Corn futures were at new 12-year highs, up 1¾ to 3⅝ cents a bushel. Wheat was ½ off to up ¾. Cotton improved 10 to 55 cents a bale. Imported bar silver at New York was hoisted 1⅜ cents an ounce, to 46⅝ cents, a new peak since last November, following an upturn of this commodity in London.

U. S. Bonds Higher.

The recently hard pressed U. S. Government bond list assumed the the appearance of a seller's market today on announcement of the Federal Reserve Board open market committee that it would support the Federals to maintain "orderly conditions."

Before the close some of the buoyancy disappeared as a result of thinning of bids on the advance. At the top of the sweeping rise gains ranged from ⅛ to more than a full point, and traders did not overlook the fact that this improvement was on the heels of a sharp rebound on Saturday. At the close the list showed a long list of advances ranging from 2-32ds to 19-32ds of a point. A few Treasuries finished 1-32d to 12-32ds lower.

The investment market manifested keen interest in Secretary Morgenthau's announcement in Washington after the close that the Treasury will borrow new cash before this fiscal year ends on July 1. Immediate comment was withheld by Government bond dealers pending a more thorough study of the Secretary's statement.

Corporate bonds were also heartened by the reserve board's announcement of proposed support. For the last few weeks the whole market had been subject to unsettlement from the insistent selling in Federals. Top grade corporate bonds were responsive not alone to the promise of more stable conditions in the Federal market but also to the reserve board's notice of intention to adhere to its broad policy of low rates for long terms funds.

Thus a number of low yield industrial issues came up major fractions to more than a point, attaining levels well above recent lows. Convertible issues and the general run of junior liens moved divergently, but the close showed numerous gains.

Up fractions to around 2 points were Santa Fe 4s at 109½; Bethelehem Steel 3¾s at 94¾; Erie 5s at 82⅛; Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3½s at 148½; Studebaker 6s at 138; Pacific Telephone & Telegraph 3¼s at 100⅛; New York Central 5s at 97½; Hudson Coal first 5s at 50.

Measured by the Associated Press averages industrials declined .1 of a point. Rails and industrials were unchanged. Transactions amounted to $13,763,000 par value against $18,775,000 last Friday.

Important movements in the foreign divisions were mostly on the upside, with Italian and Cuban loans and Abitibi Power & Paper 5s in the lead.

Bar Silver at 46⅝, Up 1⅜c an Ounce

New York, April 5 (AP).—The price of foreign-mined bar silver in New York jumped today 1⅜ cents an ounce to 46⅝ cents, the highest level since November 10, 1936. The new price, set by Handy & Harman, brokers, followed a similar sharp advance in London. Trade reports ascribed it to buying in the Indian bazaars and speculative purchasing in the London market. There was no immediate explanation of the Indian demand, as brokers here said no shortage had been reported. In the Montreal silver futures market prices were from .62 of a cent to 1.30 cents higher.

Irving Trust Plans Int. Match Dividend

New York, April 5 (AP).—Payment of a dividend of from 2 to 4 per cent from funds held by the Irving Trust Co. as trustee for the bankrupt estate of International Match Corporation was proposed by the bank today in its sixth intermediate report on the defunct concern.

The bank held at the close of last year $6,907,355 in funds of International Match, while cash held for the account of Continental Investment, A. G., a wholly owned subsidiary, totaled $2,355,635. A separate fund of $175,000 was held as the remainder of proceeds from the sale of 350,000 shares of Diamond Match Co.

Steel Operations Dip to 89.9%

New York, April 5 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined .8 of a point to 89.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 90.7 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operation averaged 87.3 per cent of capacity while a year ago the rate was 64.5 per cent.

Mutual Agent Is Honored for Long Service

Associates of Adolph Krechel Tender a Luncheon.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Completing 20 years service with the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., Adolph Krechel was the guest of honor recently at a luncheon at the Hamilton Hotel. John R. Hardin, of Newark, N. J., president of the company, wrote a special letter of commendation for Mr. Krechel's steady production of high quality business, sending a gift of a gold and pearl pin marking his admission into the Veterans Club of the company. On behalf of Mr. Krechel's office associates, Frank D. Roach presented him with a humidor pipe set. The luncheon was given by H. Lawrence Choate, general agent of the company who presented the pin on behalf of Mr. Hardin and commended Mr. Krechel for his unusually conscientious programming of life insurance for his clients.

Enterprise Building.

Enterprise Building Association in its forty-fifth annual report, discloses its assets are now $1,529,673.89, an increase of $162,905.32 over the past year, the largest gain ever recorded by the association.

Directors on March 31, declared a 5 per cent dividend for the past year on all shares. The association also reports a substantial gain in new accounts and that no foreclosures were necessary during the past fiscal year. Number of borrowers in arrears is less than was the case a year ago.

The association has 1,565 members and is a member of the United States and District of Columbia Building and Loan Leagues. Its officers are Michael A. Keane, president; Fred Kraus, vice president; Martin A. Cook, secretary; James E. Connelly, treasurer, and Francis J. Hayes, assistant secretary. Directors: George I. Borger, Bernard R. Edwards, Maurice Fitzgerald, C. F. Gibson, P. F. Hannan, Ralph A. Judd, Edward T. Kehoe, sr., and Frank J. Torrens.

Wellington Foundation.

With the public today more social security-minded than ever, and with realization that much existing investment machinery is geared to large-scale operations, there has developed a special adaptation to serve the thrifty in the lower income brackets. The operation for making available to the small investor the same facilities open to the person with large sums has been found in the so-called living trusts based on the actuarial principle of saving and investment.

According to William M. Canby, manager, Washington office, Wellington Foundation, Inc., representing this form of investment, as little as $10 per month and upward can be deposited with one of the largest and oldest trust companies in the country, while single deposits in amount of $300 and up are also accepted. From that time the bank acts as trustee of all property accumulated in the account, and the depositor receives a certificate of trust. As deposits are made the trustee invests them in a mutual

2,110 Strikes Last Year but 4,438 Disputes in 1917.

New York, April 5.—After six years of relatively peaceful labor conditions, there was a sudden flare-up of trouble in 1933 with the beginning of the economic recovery movement. Since then, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute, there has been an increasing amount of labor trouble. The number of strikes showed a steady rise from 841 in 1932 to 2,110 in 1936. While figures are lacking for the current year, there is plenty of evidence that labor disputes have continued to increase.

The growth of labor trouble during the past four years has not yet resulted in such a serious situation as existed during the war and immediately afterward. There were less than half as many strikes in 1936 as in 1917, when 4,438 disputes occurred. The number of strikes in 1936 was also considerably smaller than in any year of the 1916-1920 period.

Effect of Inflation.

If the current inflationary movement continues to be extended, however, it is evident that labor troubles will continue to increase, because inflation is the begetter of the conditions causing labor unrest. It is conceivable that the situation might eventually become more serious than at any previous time. The Federal Government could help materially to check the spread of labor troubles by balancing its budget, and thus ending its contribution to inflation. Without a balanced budget little help can be expected from the Government.

Ultimately, however, labor peace will be restored, because sooner or later the inflation bubble will burst, the cost of living will decline, the demand for labor will be curtailed and the supply of unemployed workers will burden the market. Then no labor leader's voice will be effective and the disturbance of strikes will be displaced by the greater disturbance of another economic depression.

N. Y. Telephones Gain 13,961 in March

New York, April 5 (AP).—New York Telephone Co. reported today a net gain of 13,961 telephones in service during March compared with a gain of 9,406 in March, 1936. For the first quarter there was an increase of 38,172 telephones compared with an increase of 22,054 last year.

The company is the largest operating unit in the Bell system.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, April 5 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agri.).—The wool market in Boston was rather quiet today. A slackening demand was apparent during the latter part of last week and thus far there has been no sign of a pick-up. An occasional inquiry was received for fine territory wools in original bags, but buying interest did ont appear urgent. Average French combing length wools of fine and half-blood grades of spot territory wools were offered at prices in the range of 1.02@1.05, scoured basis.

fund, in this case the Wellington Fund.

That such a method of investment has merit, Mr. Canby states, is proven by the record made by Wellington Fund of the payment of 40 dividends in the last seven years, some of these payments being made through years of the depression. The average yield in these years has been close to 6 per cent, he states.

The I. A. B. Forum.

James C. Dulin, jr., chairman of the forum committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, is expecting a large attendance at the forum meeting tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock, in the board room of the American Security & Trust Co. The subject of "Reserve Requirements" will be discussed by E. A. Goldenweiser, director of research and statistics, Federal Reserve Board.

Curb Rise Halted By Late Selling

New York, April 5 (AP).—Late selling checked an upward movement in the curb market today, though a fair number of issues closed with their gains intact. Some leaders were unable to go the route, as, for example, American Cyanamid "B," which canceled an early gain and closed 1¼ points lower at 30¾.

Buying interest was broad in early trading in response to gains on the big board and some bullish interpretations placed upon the Federal Reserve Board's declaration it was prepared to buy U. S. Government bonds in the open market.

McWilliams Dredging closed at 35½, up 1⅝; Apex Electric, 34¾, up 2¾; Aluminum Co. of America, 169½, up ¾; Montgomery Ward A, 143½, up 1; Gulf Oil, 58¾, up ½; Creole Petroleum, 31¾, up ⅞. Brown Co. preferred, an inactive, soared up 9, to 79. Transactions totaled 300,000 shares, against 431,000 on Friday.

Gold and Silver Imports.

Grains Reach NewHighs With Lower Supplies

Corn Up 4 Cents a Bushel to 17-Year High; Wheat Is Irregular.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 5.—Corn excitedly smashed high-price records anew right and left today, with immediate delivery of corn reaching the topmost quotations attained here since 1920.

Notwithstanding more than 21 cents rise in the past two weeks, May corn contracts today vaulted 4 cents a bushel, the maximum allowed in any 24-hour period. Rapidly decreasing supplies at a time when accumulation is the normal experience was generally regarded by traders as the chief basis for the sensational upturn of values.

At the close today, corn futures were 1¾@3⅝ cents above Saturday's finish; May, 1.32⅛@1.32¼; July, 1.23⅞@1.24¼; September, 1.14¾@1.15; wheat ½ cent off to ¾ up; May, 1.43¼@1.43½; July, 1.29⅜ 1.29½; September, 1.25½@1.25⅝; oats, ¾@1⅜ advanced; May, 51½@51¾, and rye showing ⅜@⅞ gain; May, 1.16⅞. Provisions results were unchanged to 17 cents.

Pulp Mills in South to Cost $66,000,000

Indices of Major Industries Are 30 to 50% Above Year Ago.

New York, April 5.—Ten wood pulp plants involving an investment of $66,000,000 are under construction from Virginia to Texas, Dr. E. E. Randolph, of the University of North Carolina, says in a report of industrial trends in the South made public by the American Chemical Society, which will hold its ninety-third meeting at Chapel Hill April 12 to 15.

The plants, it is said, will employ at least 30,000 workers. Two will be located in Florida, and the others at Franklin, Va.; Plymouth, N. C.; Georgetown, S. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Brunswick, Ga.; Savannah, Ga.; Crossett, Ark.; Houston, Tex.

In addition, Southern newspapers are planning the erection of two plants in which they will manufacture their own newsprint. One will be built in Texas. The location of the other has not been determined.

Rapidity of tree growth is the chief influence in the migration southward of the pulp industry, according to Dr. Randolph. Forty years are required in the North for trees to reach a size which is attained in the South in half that time. Science, working with an abundance of raw materials, has made the Nation's supply of pulp practically limitless, Dr. Randolph points out. This is true also, he said, of cellulose products, including rayon, varnish, lacquers, plastics and explosives, now all synthetically produced.

The Chemical Engineering Department of the State College is now studying the trees of North Carolina to determine their availability for pulp.

Germany to Pay U. S. $22,474,736 For War Blasts

By the Associated Press.

A document filed here yesterday disclosed the German government has agreed to pay $22,474,736 upon claims growing largely out of wartime explosions at Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J.

Terms of the agreement, reached last July in Munich, came to light tonight on the eve of the anniversary of American entrance into the World War.

They were revealed in a brief filed before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., an agency of the Canadian Car & Foundary Co., the Bethlehem Steel Co. and underwriters who claimed $50,000,000 damages from the two explosions.

These interests opposed an attempt by 48 American holders of other claim awards to block the proposed settlement. The awardholders sought two weeks ago to intervene in the settlement on the ground it would deprive them of their pro rata share of any funds receivable from Germany.

The agreement on the Black Tom and Kingsland claims must win approval of the Mixed Claims Commission to become effective.

Yugoslav Students Riot Against Duce

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 5 (AP).—Police tonight broke up an anti-Italian demonstration of an estimated 600 students shouting within earshot of a reception attended by President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia.

President Benes arrived today for conferences designed to strengthen the Little Entente of Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

The students sought to impress upon him their conviction that the recently signed Italo-Yugoslav pact was unpopular and constituted a peril to the Little Entente. Numerous arrests were made and police guarded the highways after they received reports that peasants planned to march into Belgrade to take part in the demonstration.

Senate, House Get Bills To Heat D. C. Building

Identical bills to provide heat for the new District of Columbia building on Judiciary Square were introduced yesterday by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, and Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, in the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively.

The bills would authorize the furnishing of steam from the central heating plant of the Department of the Interior to the building situated on the plot bounded by Fourth and Fifth and D and G streets northwest.

Millionaire Is Accused In $500,000 Love Suit

New York, April 5 (U.P.).—Charles Crocker, millionaire San Francisco playboy, tonight sought testimony of his one-time friend, Walter S. Hobart, jr., to prove he did not alienate Hobart's affections from pretty Mrs. Helen Thomas Hobart, who is suing Crocker for $500,000.

Mrs. Hobart's suit charged Crocker furnished an apartment for her husband, an interior decorator, and persuaded Hobart to throw her out. Crocker's petition for Hobart's testimony said the decorator, now in London, "never had any affection" for his wife, and hence it could not be alienated.

Mexican Election.

Mexico City, April 5 (AP).—The Natonal Revolutionary (government) Party tonight began studying reports from state committees to determine victors in Sunday's virtually nation-wide congressional primaries.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 5.—There was a marked increase in trading over recent sessions of the stock market and although prices were somewhat mixed at the close, the tone was generally firm. Oils, rubbers and mining shares moved higher and European and Brazilian bonds were strong. The gilt-edged division held steady while transatlantics remained quiet.

Paris.—Securities were generally firm in the bourse with Royal Dutch advancing for a net gain of 163 francs. Rentes finished 15 to 75 centimes up and Suez Canal rose 90 francs. International issues were mixed while Bank of France issues closed 90 francs lower.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures jumped ⅝d to 3⅝d higher with May and July options touching new highs for the year. The market advanced on small North American shipments to the United Kingdom and strength at Buenos Aires and Chicago. Cotton futures closed 1 to 2 points higher. There was light Bombay and scattered selling due to the easier Egyptian market and contracts were scarce.

Treasury Hits Substitute Rail Retirement Act

Return of 100 Millions of Impounded Funds Would Upset Budget Status.

A new point of disagreement over the proposed substitute railroad retirement act, which involves the loss of about $100,000,000 to the Federal Treasury this fiscal year, was revealed last night.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was in conference until after dark with Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Robert L. Doughton, head of the House Ways and Means Committee, protesting the proposal to return to the railroads and their employes the $100,000,000 of taxes impounded when the carriers attacked the present retirement legislation in the courts.

The Treasury head offered a compromise proposal which was discussed with the Congressional leaders, and at the close of the conference it was reported that new estimates were to be asked from actuaries of the Railroad Retirement Board, the Social Security Board, Civil Service Commission and the Treasury. The actuaries are to be asked to report this week.

Taxes Seen Insufficient.

Previously, Treasury experts had protested that the proposed tax rates would not provide enough revenue to the Treasury to carry the load the annuity system created. The present act provides a tax of 3½ per cent of the pay roll from the employes, with the carriers paying an equal sum.

The rate agreed to by representatives of the railroads and of the employes at conferences called by President Roosevelt in an effort to reach an agreement that would avoid litigation over the retirement legislation was to start at 2½ per cent. In the course of 12 years it would be increased gradually to 3½ per cent. Negotiations have been under way between the Treasury, Congress leaders, the carriers, unions and the Railroad Retirement Board seeking to iron out the difference.

Actuaries of the roads and unions continued to insist that the taxes in the substitute plan would produce enough revenue.

Treasury Objects.

Yesterday, however, Secretary Morgenthau revealed the Treasury also is objecting to the plan, accepted by the carriers and workers, to return the impounded tax money to those who paid it. It has been estimated that the tax would provide the Treasury with some $134,000,000. Loss of approximately $100,000,000 would affect the budget position.

Meanwhile, the President's objective in calling the representatives of the carriers and the unions into conference three months ago remains to be realized.

It was December 28 that Mr. Roosevelt addressed letters to J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, asking them to get together, seeking an agreement on possible revisions in the rail retirement tax act which was due to expire February 28. Joint conferences were opened January 7, but February 28 arrived without any agreement having been reached. Congress was forced to extend provisions of the old act until June 30, 1938. Later the carriers and unions announced the new plan agreed upon.

Treasury objections to its proposals have since blocked enactment of the plan into law.

Helen Love Called Sane; Subject to Prison Term

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP).—A jury decided late today Helen Wills Love, slayer of her secret husband, Harry A. Love, is sane, leaving her subject to a prison sentence for second-degree murder.

The verdict followed testimony by three defense alienists that in their opinion Mrs. Love is sane. After her conviction Mrs. Love sank into a seven-day coma. She previously had told a jail matron she could cause her own death by exercise of will power.

Windsor Skips Wedding To Romp With His Dog

St. Wolfgang, Austria, April 5 (AP). The Duke of Windsor disappointed a lady about a wedding today.

But she was only a village girl, pretty brown-eyed Mizzi Perfaller, who became the bride of St. Wolfgang's village clerk, Franz Zimmerman. The duke had been invited to the wedding, but stayed at home. The duke wandered out to the golf course, but it was too wet to play and he amused himself romping with Schnooky, his Cairn terrier.

Wedding of Iowa Girl May Result in Charges

Mankato, Minn., Aupril 5 (AP).—County Attorney C. A. Johnson said tonight he expected to go to Estherville, Iowa, tomorrow to check records of the recent marriage of Virginia Deremer, 12 years old, to Ernest B. Johnson, 27.

Virginia, who will be 13 years old tomorrow, has been separated from her husband by agents of the county welfare board. County Attorney Johnson said he was considering bringing charges of contributing to a minor's delinquency against the husband and the girl's mother, Mrs. Alvina Deremer. When the girl was married March 25, her mother gave her age as 15 years.

Worthington Pump To Reopen Plant

New York, April 5 (AP).—Worthington Pump & Machinery Corporation plans early reopening of its Holyoke, Mass., plant, which has been closed since 1932, it was announced today.

H. V Beaver, president, said it was expected the resumption would eventually provide for re-employment of 400 to 500 workers. Reopening of the plant had been made necessary, he said, by a substantial increase in company's unfilled orders, now at the highest level in ten years.

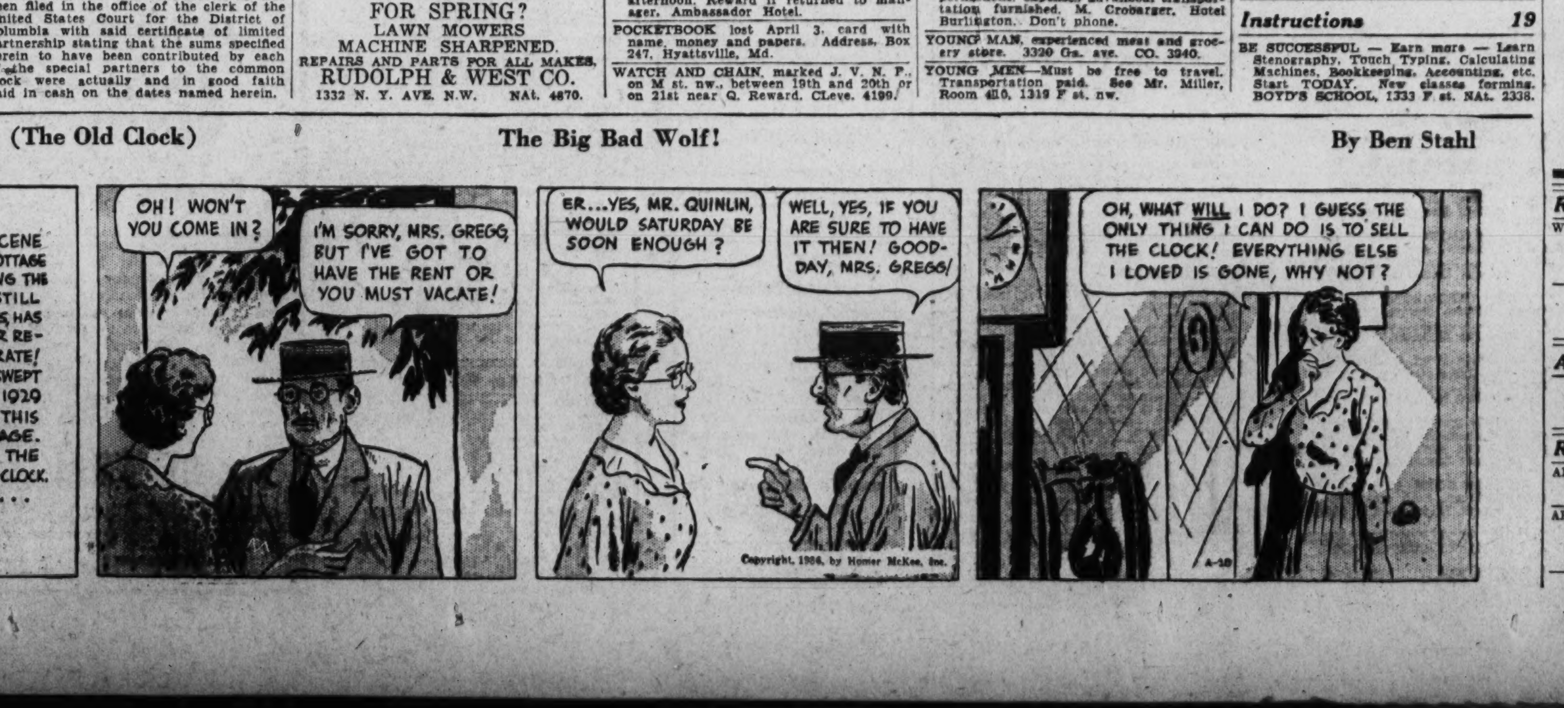
Classified Ad-Ventures (The Old Clock) — The Big Bad Wolf! — By Ben Stahl



IT IS 1934 AND THE SCENE IS SHIFTED TO A SMALL COTTAGE IN CALIFORNIA OVERLOOKING THE SEA. NANCY, A WIDOW STILL LOVELY, DESPITE HER YEARS, HAS COME TO THE END OF HER RESOURCES. SHE IS DESPERATE! ALL SHE OWNED WAS SWEPT AWAY IN THE CRASH OF 1929 AND SHE HAS RENTED THIS SMALL FURNISHED COTTAGE. SHE HAS KEPT EXCEPT THE PRECIOUS GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK. THE DOOR BELL RINGS.
OH! WON'T YOU COME IN?
I'M SORRY, MRS. GREGG, BUT I'VE GOT TO HAVE THE RENT OR YOU MUST VACATE!
ER...YES, MR. QUINLIN, WILL SUPPER BE SOON ENOUGH?
WELL, YES, IF YOU ARE SURE TO HAVE IT THEN! GOOD-DAY, MRS. GREGG!
OH, WHAT WILL I DO? I GUESS THE ONLY THING I CAN DO IS TO SELL THE CLOCK! EVERYTHING ELSE I LOVED IS GONE, WHY NOT?

J. M. McCoy, 81, Pension Office Veteran, Dies

Funeral of Former Deputy Disbursing Officer to Be Tomorrow.

Joseph Melville McCoy, 81, retired Government worker, of 3020 Tilden street northwest, died yesterday at his home after a short illness.

Mr. McCoy, who retired from active duty in 1926, had completed more than 48 years of service, practically all of which had been spent in the Pension Office. He had at one time been chief clerk and later deputy disbursing officer for the payment of pensions.

Mr. McCoy was born in Middleburne, Va., March 3, 1856. He married Miss Ella Peterson, of this city, in 1885. Their golden anniversary was celebrated here in 1935.

Surviving are his wife, Ella Peterson McCoy; two daughters, Mrs. W. R. McFarland, of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Louise W. McCoy, of Washington; three sons, Jackson McCoy, of Waterloo, Iowa; Whitley P. McCoy, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and David E. McCoy, of Washington; two sisters, the Misses Minnie and Sally McCoy, of Fairmont, W. Va., and a brother, Paul McCoy, of Bronxville, N. Y.

Mr. McCoy was a past master of Myron M. Parker Masonic Lodge, and a former member of the local chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Third and A streets southeast. Burial will be private.

Britons Unable To Appreciate Art, 'Stripper' Finds

London, April 5 (U.P.).—Diane Raye, the only strip-tease dancer to get a "billing" in Parliament, shed her clothes tonight in a British premiere that brought many hisses and little applause.

Diane's unveiling of the American art of stripping and teasing to British audiences at the Victoria Palace was anything but a success.

Diane was the first to admit it.

"They didn't give me a chance," she sobbed on the shoulder of her crooner husband, Jimmy Richards.

"They wouldn't let me do it right. Imagine, making me compromise my art behind a transparent curtain, a pair of net tights and a stage so dark I damn near fell off it."

Lynching Ban Bill Wins Supporters

At a meeting of 13 Illinois Democratic Representatives yesterday, indorsement was given the antilynching bill of Representative Arthur W. Mitchell (Democrat), of Illinois, with only one of the attending members dissenting.

Following the meeting, Mitchell said he hopes to have the bill called in the House tomorrow, call day for House committees, although he has been diven no definite assurance on that score.

At yesterday's meeting, Representative Leo Kocialkowski was the only member dissenting. Kocialsenting. kowski announced his intention of voting for the Gavagan bill, regarded as stronger in its penalties for lynching, but also regarded by many members as of doubtful constitutionality.

The members who went on record for the Mitchell bill were Representatives Lewis M. Long, Lewis L. Boyer, Hugh M. Rigney, James McAndrews, Laurence F. Arnold, Adolph J. Sabath, Chester Thompson,, Frank W. Fries, Scott W. Lucas, Thomas J. O'Brien, James A. Weeks and Mitchell.

Police Hunt Asked For Capital Girl, 17

Police were asked yesterday to search for 17-year-old Mary Follis, who left her home, 6320 Eighth street northwest, March 29, and has not been seen since.

The girls' mother, Mrs. Annie Follis, solicited the aid of police. She said her daughter had gone downtown to place her name on the roster of several employment agencies and had only 20 cents with her.

A canvass of the agencies failed to locate anybody answering Mary's description.

Mrs. Follis said the girl is about 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 115 pounds. She was clad in a black fur coat, gray suede shoes and a gray hat.

2 Critically Hurt As Auto Hits Pole

Cyrus J. Phillips, 34, of 1914 Benning road northeast, and John A. Cronquist, 25, attached to the Naval Reserve Station, were injured critically last night when their automobile struck a telephone pole near Phillips' home.

Phillips, physicians at Casualty Hospital said, suffered a possible skull fracture and internal injuries, as well as cuts and bruises.

Cronquist, who later was removed to Naval Hospital, suffered fractures of both legs and cuts and bruises.

Liquor Store Robbed By Two in Southwest

Two colored bandits late last night raided the liquor store of Max Sherman, in the 700 block of Fourth street southwest, and escaped with $93 in cash.

Sherman and his son Charles were waiting on two customers at the time.

The robbers herded Sherman, his son and the customers into a back room at pistol point, and escaped in a nautomobile.

Earhart Aide Held.

Fresno, Calif, April 5 (AP).—Frank Noonan, navigator for Amelia Earhart in her recent Honolulu flight, was under citation today for driving in a wrong traffic lane and his bride of two weeks was in a hospital, injured in an automobile crash.

America Prepares—For Peace!

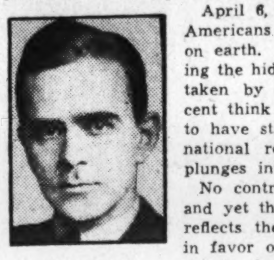
War Referendum Proposals Alarm U. S. Army Officials

Modern Method of Launching Conflicts Without Formal Notice Leaves No Time for Debate, Experts Point Out.

Europe is engaged in a feverish arms race. War talk fills the air. Against this background, The Post has been taking stock of America's own armed forces. This is the final article of the series.

By Edward T. Folliard.

April 6, 1917. Box-car headlines: War Declared, America at Armageddon. The call to the colors; the "flower of the Nation's manhood" responds. Soon pretty girls will be offering a kiss for an enlistment. Cheers for Wilson; jeers for the pacifists. Get the Kaiser! War!



FOLLIARD.

April 6, 1937. Twenty years have passed and Americans again are the most peace-loving people on earth. War books—particularly those depicting the hideousness of war—are best sellers. Polls taken by "America Speaks" show that 70 per cent think 1917-18 was a mistake; that we ought to have stayed out. A majority demand that a national referendum be taken before America plunges into another war. Peace!

No contrast could be more striking than that, and yet the American people today—if Congress reflects their sentiment correctly—are definitely in favor of strengthening the Army and Navy, thereby heeding George Washington's advice that the best way to preserve peace is to be prepared for war. The Army is being strengthened. So is the Navy, and the air forces of both. To the officers and men of the two services, who sadly watched successive economy programs seriously weaken the Nation's arms, all this is very gratifying. It is good for the morale to know that the people are behind you.

Yet these officers and men cannot help but be a little bewildered by the talk of National referenda.

A soldier or a sailor is taught that speed in warfare is paramount. He is reminded of Napoleon's remark that quarter hours decide the destinies of nations. If you are sure the other fellow is out to hit you, try and hit him first. The quicker you end a war the more lives and dollars you save. That's what the professional man of arms is taught.

Tries to Reconcile Views.

Today he is trying to reconcile that with the proposal that the people be allowed to take a Nationwide vote before the Army and Navy may strike.

What, he asks, is the enemy going to be doing while Americans are arguing and voting? Suppose he seizes Costa Rica, establishes a base there, and then proceeds to blow up the Panama Canal? Suppose, further, that he sends out his bombers to harry the fleet, the forts and the country's industrial centers. Are the Army and the Navy to be hobbled and held in leash until the votes are cast and counted?

Warlike countries no longer declare war or serve ultimatums, the student of military tactics points out. They just wade in and explain later, if they feel like it. No declaration of war accompanied Japan's seizure of Manchcuria, nor was there any in Mussolini's march against Ethiopia.

Wonder If Results Weighed.

Army and Navy officers say they appreciate the spirit in which Americans ask for a referendum on war, but at the same time they wonder whether these Americans have fully thought out the possible consequences of such a referendum.

Suppose, they say, that the country should vote against going to war with a trouble-making country, and suppose that this country, convinced that Uncle Sam is a "sissy," perpetrates new outrages which no sensible person thinks the American people will tolerate. Will there then be a second referendum?

The question of where America's armed forces are to do their fighting, whether it must be done solely on American terrirtory, is another one that is causing Army and Navy officers to ponder.

Recently, at a hearing before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on the universal draft bill, this question was brought up by James Waterman Wise, representing the American League Against War and Fascism.

For Defense War Only.

Mr. Wise said that he thought the only justifiable war this country could engage in would be one in defense of its own borders against an invasion.

"Did you mean by that," asked Senator Pepper, of Florida, "a war fought exclusively on the territory of the United States?"

"Yes."

"If you have an automobile at the curb and before you reach it to go off in it, I take it and then you attempt to restrain me, is that defensive or offensive?"

"It is defensive."

"If you and I are about to have a difficulty and I am about to pick up a stick to hit you over the head with it, and before I get the stick in my hand you hit me and put me out, is that defensive or offensive on your part?"

"That is defensive. * * *"

There followed a discussion about the World War, with Mr. Wise contending that America's part was not in any way defensive.

Logan Questions Wise.

Senator Logan, of Kentucky, took up where Senator Pepper left off on the question of what constitutes a defensive war. He asked:

"If you see some man approaching your home armed and equipped with instruments of death and you knew that he was going to make an attack on your home, and in order to protect your family from the result of such an attack you went out to meet him and ward off the attack, would that be defensive or would that be offensive?"

"I should say," replied Wise, "that would be defensive also."

"Then if some war lord, mad with power, had started out to conquer the nations of the earth, and you saw him taking Canada and knew he could use it as a base to invade the United States, you would insist, would you, that we should wait until we were actually invaded before we went out to ward off that threatening attack?"

Would Not Insist There.

"No, I would not insist on that; but I say that as I see it there is no likelihood of that happening. After all we have had about 125 years of complete peace with Canada."

Senator Logan explained that what he had in mind was a possible defeat of England and the seizure of Canada by the victor. Wise said that, in such a contingency, he believed there would be plenty of time for the United States to enact appropriate legislation.

There was no discussion of the Monroe Doctrine. When the young Republic proclaimed that doctrine, warning other countries to stay out of Latin America, it was making one of the greatest bluffs in history. It had no Navy to back up its warning. Today, however, it has a Navy that is—or is supposed to be—"second to none." How would Americans vote on using that Navy to enforce the Monroe Doctrine?

Maj. L. L. Simms Funeral Today In Arlington

Funeral services for Maj. Lyman L. Simms, 58, retired, of 1210 Geranium street northwest, who died at Walter Reed Hospital Sunday, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in Arlington Cemetery, section six, where he will be buried. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, will officiate.

A native of New Brunswick, Canada, Maj. Simms first served as a field clerk in the Quartermaster Corps from 1916 to 1917. Commissioned a captain in the Quartermaster Section of the Officers Reserve Corps the same year, he was immediately called to active duty and was promoted to major the following year. In September, 1920, he vacated his rank to accept a commission as captain, finance department, in the Regular Army. Retired in 1929 for disability received in line of duty, he was promoted the following year to the rank of major, retired.

He had two details of service in Washington, from June to October, 1917, as assistant to the Depot Quartermaster, and from 1924 to 1927 in the office of Chief of Finance. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva W. Simms, of Geranium street.

2 Drinks Enough For Jurors, Thinks New York Justice

New York, April 5 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Erskine C. Rogers prescribed for three jurors today what he considered a proper alcoholic diet—"two drinks and no more."

After ordering the jurors, the first picked for the perjury trial of Louis Luckman, an aftermath of the Samuel Drukman murder case, locked up for the night, Justice Rogers instructed them:

"Gentlemen, you can have two drinks for dinner tonight if you want them—but two drinks and no more."

He added it wouldn't be wise for them to take more than two, nor did he wish to burden the public with the cost of paying for more than that number.

Lehman Approves Jury For New Crime Attack

Albany, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—Impaneling of another special grand jury for investigation of organized crime in New York City was authorized tonight by Gov. Lehman.

Request for further investigation of racketeering and vice and "any connection between such acts and law enforcement officials," the Governor said, was made by Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, and members of a present special grand jury.

Missing From Home

ELLEN ROSILEE SIMONS.

Missing Arlington Girl Sought Here

Washington and Virginia police have been asked to search for Ellen Rosilee Simons, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Simons, of 2030 North Cleveland street, Aurora Heights, Arlington, who has been missing since last Friday.

According to her mother, Ellen left the house about 8:30 p. m. in her father's automobile.

She was dressed in blue snow suit, white shirt, brown suede jacket and brown shoes. Mrs. Simons said Ellen often said she would like to go to Florida or Texas.

Miss Talbott Rites Will Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Ethelyn Sarratt Talbott, 25, a former Washingtonian who died at sea three weeks ago, will be held at Fort Myer Chapel tomorrow at 3 p. m. Burial will be immediately afterward in Arlington National Cemetery.

Miss Talbott was returning from the Orient with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Samuel G. Talbott, United States Army, when she was stricken ill, and died aboard a liner en route to Honolulu. Col Talbott had been stationed for the last two years in Manila, P. I., and after a trip through China was returning to the United States with his wife and daughter.

Miss Talbott went to school in Washington, where she lived until her parents left the Capital ten years ago. She attended St. Margaret's Episcopal Church. She was a former student at Holton Arms School, and a graduate of Spence School, New York City.

Errol Flynn Safe; Flying to Paris

Barcelona, Spain, April 5 (U.P.).—Errol Flynn, actor and adventurer, was located tonight—his 6-foot-2-inch frame unmarked by a Spanish machine-gun bullet as had been reported erroneously.

The Hollywood star arrived by automobile from Valencia and took off by plane for Paris, where he probably will meet his wife, Lili Damita, who was excitedly planning to rush to his side from London "if he is hurt."

"I visited the Madrid front and operated a machine gun," Flynn said.

Dozen Families Menaced by Gas Fatal to Couple

San Francisco, April 5 (AP).—A man and his wife were found dead today in a home-made lethal gas chamber which investigators said was a potential death threat to more than a dozen families living in a three-story apartment building.

Victims of what two police inspectors said was murder and suicide were Leroy Irish, 40, mail carrier, and Mrs. Charlotte Irish, 43, a partial invalid.

$1 a Day Increase Given Carpenters

A new wage agreement providing for a $1 a day increase for union carpenters in Washington was announced last night by the Master Builders Association.

Beginning May 1 and continuing for one year, carpenters will be paid $12 for an 8-hour work day, compared to the $11 scale now in use. The increase is from $1.37½ to $1.50 an hour.

The agreement was signed last night at the offices of the Master Builders Association following several weeks of negotiations. J. R. Skinker headed the employers' committee and Frank Howard was chairman of the group representing the carpenters' district council.
